Adrienne,

Thanks for heads up. Please keep us advised...this is quite concerning.

I have no idea what type of attack. Private sector entities may be their only targets, but I don't want any of you to be harmed by those who see you as industry spokespersons. Let's hope that I am overreacting

On Monday, I will talk to those at BIO who work with Ketchum/GMO answers to see what they discussed in Friday's phone call.

I have copied Kevin Folta, Karl von Mogel, David Tribe and Keith Kloor here as well.

What type of attack would this be that you expect? Denial of Service type? Hacking the password?

Please spread the word among your colleagues who have websites and who might be targets of this attack. Note that the e mail below says the focus will be corporate websites, but who knows where they are drawing that line.

We wanted to alert you that the hacker community Anonymous is planning a series of attacks on biotechnology and food company websites on Wednesday, November 5. Trade association and corporate websites of CBI members are being targeted in this planned attack. We are putting together a crisis plan and have notified our digital and IT teams to prepare. We are arranging a call with all of you for 5:30 p.m. ET so we can quickly get you up-to-speed on our game plan and how we can work together to prepare. A calendar invite will be sent to you momentarily.

Please know that we are taking this threat very seriously.

Best,
Lorraine Thelian
