Subject: RE: Letter Re Rodent Carcinogenicity Studies

Jeffrey, et al.

I am responding to Michael Miller's letter dated December 12, 2016 (copy above).

1. First, the letter requests copies of 11 listed animal carcinogenicity studies prepared by or for companies other than Monsanto Company. We did not produce these studies as part of the defendant's document productions because Monsanto Company does not have copies of them. It is my understanding that Monsanto employee David Saltmiras was given access only to certain limited information from those studies when he worked on the 2015 article with Dr. Greim and others.

2. Second, the December 12 letter requests that English-translated reports be provided for two rodent carcinogenicity studies prepared by Japanese scientists. Monsanto also does not have copies of these two studies. However, we did produce what appears to be an English version of part of one of those studies, identified as H-95053, prepared by Nippon Experimental Medical Research Institute in 1999. See MONGLY 01281135 – 01281397. And in Japanese text, we produced what appears to be the summary text and table of contents only for that same study. See MONGLY 02591218 – 02591263. With respect to that 1999 study, H-95053, we also produced a 2013 review of the study. See MONGLY 01280739 – 1281042.
