

From: Pamela Ronald
To: Jon
Subject: Re: Karl
Date: Thursday, December 27, 2018 8:24:22 PM

Hi Jon

I have asked Karl to delete his tweet or at least refrain from further inflaming the situation. I suggest ignoring their tweets or if you want I can tweet that the situation is resolved and refer them to your tweet

What do you prefer ?

All the best,
Pam

<http://CropGeneticsInnovation.org>

On Dec 27, 2018, at 8:21 PM, Jon <jon@jonentine.com> wrote:

Now Kevin Senapathy, equally adolescent, and a close buddy of Karl's is retweeting Karl's inflammatory post based on what appears to be things you wrote to Karl that, in my mind, misrepresents what happened re: the board situation. I won't engage either of them but they are both doing their best to hurt the GLP.

Jon Entine, Executive Director
Genetic Literacy Project
GeneticLiteracyProject.org
(513) 319-8388

On Dec 27, 2018, at 10:13 PM, Pamela Ronald <pcronald@ucdavis.edu> wrote:

Dear Jon,

I did see your tweet and appreciate it.

I will ask Karl if he would be willing to delete his tweet. I dont want this to escalate either.

Take care
All the best,
Pam

<https://cropgeneticsinnovation.ucdavis.edu/>

On Dec 27, 2018, at 6:44 PM, Jon Entine
<jon@jonentine.com> wrote:

Well, I told you Karl would be destructive.

I'm not going to weigh in on Twitter. I posted a Tweet as you requested.

I listed you in the original 990 based on a telephone conversation in which you agreed to be a board member. When you represented to me that you did not agree, I purged the record as you requested. Now Karl is trying in his very destructive way to make a case out of this. I hope you will not allow this to escalate. Karl has been very destructive to numerous people. My board thinks he is unstable (unrelated to issues involving us, but based on his interactions within the community). I do as well.

Jon