Steve Miranda will not be able to join us for the Board meeting this week. Steve recently accepted a new position with the Federal Reserve Board. What a great honor for him, the Board and the Academy! In his new role Steve will be responsible for both the Human Resource and internal Technical Services functions. We will miss him at the meeting and wish him well with his training!

Hello all--

Great summary responses. Thank you for your guidance. I think the "tiered" approach is a very reasonable request.

The current ICDA Board has requested my assistance in reviewing the first pilot programs seeking this new status. This role would be in effect even though I will not represent the Academy as an NDA (National Dietetic Association) Board member. In this way, I should be able to continue support the higher levels of practice such as those in the U.S.

Regards,

Sylvia

Subject: Agenda item 13.0 - Draft ICD response letter and background information

At the March Board meeting, Sylvia Escott-Stump, the Academy's representative to the International Confederation of Dietetic Associations (ICDA), presented the ICDA proposals on international competence standards and international accreditation process for the dietitian-nutritionist. Both proposals will be presented at ICDA's meeting in Granada, Spain in September (see workshop attachments for background).

The Board requested that I work with ACEND and CDR to develop feedback to the proposals for your approval. Based on our discussions, I am recommending that the attached draft communication, which includes our feedback, be sent to ICDA as the official Academy response. Please review and provide your input at the Board meeting on Friday.

Please note the difference in the survey form between ACEND's response and my suggestions related to international competence standards. I believe that professional standing would improve if everyone had the same minimum level of competence. That being said, I recognize that there is a need for practitioners to have different skills in different countries.

I have also attached ACEND Accreditation Standards for Foreign Dietitian Education Programs for you information.

Thank you very much.

Good afternoon,

Recently I received a blackmail threat from an organization claiming a DDoS attack on our web properties is imminent if a payment is not transmitted. We forwarded the email to our website vendor Verndale and IC3 (FBI division that investigates phishing scams). We've now received word that based on some of the language/word combinations used in the message, an "imminent DDoS attack" was actually very likely to happen. According to Verndale, the type of attack that has been following this particular threat is extremely difficult to manage without the necessary firewalls and there is no reliable way to trace the source of the attacks because they are using proxy servers in other countries and can easily jump from one country to the next. In addition, the attacks are precise in that they send too much traffic for the application to handle, but not enough to trigger automated built-in attack prevention features.

With membership renewal and FNCE registration in full swing, we are working with Verndale and quickly getting ahead of this via a service called Cloudflare. This new service will protect the Academy's websites at the DNS level instead of the hosting level. The Academy websites are a bigger target for these attacks because they're more successful than they've ever been in terms of exposure. Since much of the Academy's revenue relies on site stability (eatrightSTORE.org, the join application, event registration, donations, etc.), in addition to more members logging onto the site for interaction (elections, dues renewal, profile updates, plus accessing member benefits), we will be as primed as possible against any future attacks. We negotiated the costs down so the new program will not increase our expenses overall.

As you already know, cybercriminals are getting smarter and savvier, making protecting the organization an ever-changing battle. We will continue to be vigilant in protecting the Academy's web and social media properties and stay on top of the latest threat detection services.

Thank you and please let me know if you have any questions.

Action Alert: Suspend Medicare Competitive Bidding Program for Diabetes Testing Supplies

As of today, only 2.3 % or 1,696 Academy members have responded to the action alert. Please ask your members to urge Congress to suspend the Competitive Bidding Program. Your efforts will help reverse this trend of harmful practice for our patients.

Please send the following message to your membership:

Subject line: Action Alert: Suspend the Medicare Competitive Bidding Program for Diabetes Testing Supplies

Dear Colleague,

Your Senator and Congressman need to hear from you. Please urge Congress to suspend the Medicare Competitive Bidding Program for Diabetes Testing Supplies.

In 2011, Medicare tested a Competitive Bidding Program aimed to save money and to maintain the quality of care for patients. Although the Government Accountability Office (GAO) issued a report in 2012 stating that there was insufficient data on the programs' effectiveness, Medicare launched the program nationwide in 2013.

A recent peer-reviewed article in the American Diabetes Association's Diabetes Care journal, demonstrates that the Medicare Competitive Bidding Program for diabetes testing supplies has led to needless deaths, more hospitalizations and increased costs. Despite this, Medicare still plans to request new competitive bids on July 1.

Please take action today!

Action Alert: Child Nutrition and Hunger Programs

Please continue to support the Senate Agriculture Committee's bipartisan reauthorization of child nutrition programs bill, titled the Improving Child Nutrition Integrity and Access Act of 2016.

Encourage your members to take action today!

As of today, only 5% or 3,623 Academy members have responded to the action alert. The Senators need to know that their constituents strongly support this bill, which incorporates many of the Academy's recommendations to support healthy meals and promote nutrition education for our children. We expect a vote on this bill in the Senate later this spring.

Please send the following message to your membership:

Subject line: Action Alert: Child Nutrition and Hunger Programs in the Senate

Dear Colleague,

Your Senators need to know that their constituents strongly support the bi-partisan Child Nutrition Integrity and Access Act of 2016, which incorporates many of the Academy's recommendations to support healthy meals and promote nutrition education for our children.

Please take action today to support healthy meals for hungry children.

Thank you,

Action Alert: Suspend Medicare Competitive Bidding Program for Diabetes Testing Supplies

As of today, only 2.3 % or 1,696 Academy members have responded to the action alert. Please ask your members to urge Congress to suspend the Competitive Bidding Program. Your efforts will help reverse this trend of harmful practice for our patients.

Please send the following message to your membership:

*Subject line: Action Alert: Suspend the Medicare Competitive Bidding Program for Diabetes Testing Supplies

Dear Colleague,

Your Senator and Congressman need to hear from you. Please urge Congress to suspend the Medicare Competitive Bidding Program for Diabetes Testing Supplies.

In 2011, Medicare tested a Competitive Bidding Program aimed to save money and to maintain the quality of care for patients. Although the Government Accountability Office (GAO) issued a report in 2012 stating that there was insufficient data on the programs' effectiveness, Medicare launched the program nationwide in 2013.

A recent peer-reviewed article in the American Diabetes Association's Diabetes Care journal, demonstrates that the Medicare Competitive Bidding Program for diabetes testing supplies has led to needless deaths, more hospitalizations and increased costs. Despite this, Medicare still plans to request new competitive bids on July 1.

Please take action today!

Action Alert: Child Nutrition and Hunger Programs

Please continue to support the Senate Agriculture Committee's bipartisan reauthorization of child nutrition programs bill, titled the Improving Child Nutrition Integrity and Access Act of 2016.

Encourage your members to take action today!

As of today, only 5% or 3,623 Academy members have responded to the action alert. The Senators need to know that their constituents strongly support this bill, which incorporates many of the Academy's recommendations to support healthy meals and promote nutrition education for our children. We expect a vote on this bill in the Senate later this spring.

Please send the following message to your membership:

*Subject line: Action Alert: Child Nutrition and Hunger Programs in the Senate

Your Senators need to know that their constituents strongly support the bi-partisan Child Nutrition Integrity and Access Act of 2016, which incorporates many of the Academy's recommendations to support healthy meals and promote nutrition education for our children.

Please take action today to support healthy meals for hungry children.

Good afternoon,

Recently I received a blackmail threat from an organization claiming a DDoS attack on our web properties is imminent if a payment is not transmitted. We forwarded the email to our website vendor Verndale and IC3 (FBI division that investigates phishing scams). We've now received word that based on some of the language/word combinations used in the message, an "imminent DDoS attack" was actually very likely to happen. According to Verndale, the type of attack that has been following this particular threat is extremely difficult to manage without the necessary firewalls and there is no reliable way to trace the source of the attacks because they are using proxy servers in other countries and can easily jump from one country to the next. In addition, the attacks are precise in that they send too much traffic for the application to handle, but not enough to trigger automated built-in attack prevention features.

With membership renewal and FNCE registration in full swing, we are working with Verndale and quickly getting ahead of this via a service called Cloudflare. This new service will protect the Academy's websites at the DNS level instead of the hosting level. The Academy websites are a bigger target for these attacks because they're more successful than they've ever been in terms exposure. Since much of the Academy's revenue relies on site stability (eatrightSTORE.org, the join application, event registration, donations, etc.), in addition to more members logging onto the site for interaction (elections, dues renewal, profile updates, plus accessing member benefits), we will be as primed as possible against any future attacks. We negotiated the costs down so the new program will not increase our expenses overall.

As you already know, cybercriminals are getting smarter and savvier, making protecting the organization an ever-changing battle. We will continue to be vigilant in protecting the Academy's web and social media properties and stay on top of the latest threat detection services.

Thank you and please let me know if you have any questions.

You are the right person for this group, so thank you! I'm noticing a trend that we are fast becoming the only nutrition organization being asked to be at the table for deliberations, a great trend! This is one example; another is the invitation the Academy received from the Clinton Health Matters Initiative to serve as the nutrition content experts for its new College Health Program. We reached out to Margaret Garner to serve as our representative, but she was not able to accept. We then offered it to Connie Diekman who was thrilled to serve. Last week Evelyn represented the Academy at the roundtable on food, nutrition and health, organized by the Institute of Food Technologists and supported by the Charles Valentine Riley Memorial Foundation. Participants included leaders from food, nutrition and health organizations, academia and other stakeholders. Evelyn discussed the critical need for a unifying message and contributed ideas and insights on moving forward toward a common goal.

Hi Pat

I am happy to do so. This is a great project - I have taught dental students in the past and found they are very enthusiastic about advising families on healthy eating. I have worked with in a craniofacial team for many years again interfacing with dentists, orthodontists and oral surgeons.

I would be comfortable in this toke. Thanks. Lucille

It is a collaborative project with the National Maternal and Child Oral Health Resource Center, the American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry, the American Dental Association, the American Dental Hygienists' Association, and the Santa Fe Group. It is great the Academy was selected to represent childhood obesity.

Regardless of RWJF goal #1, I recommend we need to be a part of this advisory group. I would suggest Lucille take my place because of her expertise in children's nutrition. Should you agree, we need to share our involvement with the Sponsorship Committee when Pepsi comes up for

Dear Pat,

I hope that all is well with you!

I'm writing to invite you to become a part of an important new Robert Wood Johnson Foundation (RWJF) project—Engaging Oral Health Professionals in Efforts to Reduce Childhood Obesity—by joining the project's virtual advisory committee. The project is being spearheaded by a collaboration consisting of the National Maternal and Child Oral Health Resource Center, the American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry, the American Dental Association, the American Dental Hygienists' Association, and the Santa Fe Group.

A series of background papers designed to examine the state of the science related to preventing childhood obesity (children under age 12) and reducing the consumption of sugar-sweetened beverages among children has been commissioned. The findings from reviews of the scientific research and national surveys of oral health professionals will be shared during a national conference of stakeholders—a wide array of professionals—to refine evidence-based recommendations and strategies that oral health professionals, oral-health-related organizations, and others can employ to prevent childhood obesity. An invitation to the conference was sent to your organization. If you did not receive the invitation, please let me know. For more information about the conference, visit <http://www.oralhealth4healthyfutures.org>.

The project aligns with two RWJF goals: (1) to eliminate young children's consumption of sugar-sweetened beverages and (2) to ensure that children enter kindergarten at a healthy weight.

We understand that you are involved in many activities and your time is limited. For this reason, all advisory committee business will be conducted electronically. In other words, there will be no scheduled conference calls or meetings. When there is a topic to discuss or for which committee members' feedback is needed, the "conversations" will take place via e-mail or another convenient electronic method. This will allow discussion to take place in the most efficient manner possible and will enable everyone to take part in the discussion at a convenient time.

We hope that you will join this exciting project's virtual advisory committee and contribute to enabling children to live longer, healthier lives.

To let us know whether you or another representative from the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics are interested in being part of the committee, please contact Beth Lowe at eal38@gmail.com. For planning purposes, we would appreciate hearing about your decision by May 20.

Thank you so much for considering our request.

According to Verndale, the type of attack that has been following this particular threat is extremely difficult to manage without the necessary firewalls and there is no reliable way to trace the source of the attacks because they are using proxy servers in other countries and can easily jump from one country to the next. In addition, the attacks are precise in that they send too much traffic for the application to handle, but not enough to trigger automated built-in attack prevention features.

With membership renewal and FNCE registration in full swing, we are working with Verndale and quickly getting ahead of this via a service called Cloudflare. This new service will protect the Academy's websites at the DNS level instead of the hosting level. The Academy websites are a bigger target for these attacks because they're more successful than they've ever been in terms exposure. Since much of the Academy's revenue relies on site stability (eatrightSTORE.org, the join application, event registration, donations, etc.), in addition to more members logging onto the site for interaction (elections, dues renewal, profile updates, plus accessing member benefits), we will be as primed as possible against any future attacks. We negotiated the costs down so the new program will not increase our expenses overall.

As you already know, cybercriminals are getting smarter and savvier, making protecting the organization an ever-changing battle. We will continue to be vigilant in protecting the Academy's web and social media properties and stay on top of the latest threat detection services.

Ha! I laughed at those statements but grimaced at the ones about me! They are as bad as DFPI when it comes to misinformation. Do they really think I set salaries on whim and favoritism? No concept about running a multimillion dollar business. You and Lucille made me feel so much better. I know one person can submit multiple comments so it makes it feel like the whole Board thinks that way. By the way, I was interviewed. They don't know that I was offered the position two times before that but wanted to stay with CDR. Interesting that they are nasty about Jean R too. Have a good trip in and we can celebrate the changes on Thursday night!

Best,

Pat

Dr. Martin,

Thank you for getting back to us. We appreciate your time.

In the spirit of honest dialogue, we are disappointed that the questions we asked in our last email regarding AND's sponsorship guidelines and current sponsors went unanswered. We don't have a better understanding of how AND thinks PepsiCo "optimizes health through food and nutrition", or why corporate behavior and lobbying history are not part of AND's new sponsorship guidelines.

It has been disheartening that, over the last three years, our attempts at substantive dialogue with AND leadership have largely gone unanswered or been dismissed.

This is a topic of high importance to many dietitians, and one that has become part of a greater national dialogue on ethics and transparency. Our intention is to have this conversation to elevate the dietitian credential and ultimately strengthen our profession.

Many fellow dietitians have reached out to us over the last year -- especially after last year's Kids Eat Right/Kraft Singles controversy -- with concerns. Many do not feel heard or validated. Acknowledgment of their concerns by leadership, without justification or trivialization of the issue, would be a tremendous boon to AND.

There is a real opportunity here for an AND leader to make history and inspire the many dietitians who currently feel apathy and defeat.

Sincerely,

Thank you for your email. It was a privilege for me to be chosen by the members of the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics as the 2016-2017 President-elect. This is especially true as the Academy and the entire nutrition and dietetics profession prepare for our Second Century of serving the public -- in the U.S. and increasingly around the world.

As you know, on January 13, the Academy's Board of Directors voted to implement a one-year pilot program that includes 1) adopting the recommendations of the Sponsorship Advisory Task Force, 2) creating a Member Sponsorship Review Committee and 3) approving newly revised sponsorship guidelines. The task force's report includes tools the Academy is using to review potential sponsors.

I am grateful for the hard work of the task force and the committee, as well as to the House of Delegates which discussed the sponsorship issue and provided valuable feedback, and to all members who have made their voices known. I am confident that the guidelines and assessment tools will assist the committee and the organization in selecting sponsors in alignment with the Academy's mission and vision.

We truly appreciate the hard work and dedication of the volunteer committees, task forces, work groups and individual members in serving our Academy and profession. The work of the of the Member Sponsorship Review Committee is ongoing and the development of assessment tools to support the sponsorship process is in progress. I will share your comments with the committee.

Thank you again for your email. To those members of DFPI who are not members of the Academy, I strongly encourage you to join. Help us make our Second Century a historic and healthful time for all people.

Yours very truly,

Dear Dr. Martin,

Dietitians For Professional Integrity extends its congratulations on your new position as President-Elect of the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics.

We very interested in advocating for sponsorship reform, and strongly believe dialogue with AND leadership is an important piece of our work.

We are pleased with some of the progress we have seen since our inception in February of 2013, including the formation of the Sponsorship Advisory Task Force in 2014.

Specifically regarding the recently revised sponsorship guidelines, some concerns and questions remain for us:

- 1) Some of the new guidelines (i.e.: "the sponsor's mission and vision align with AND's") existed in the previous version, under which PepsiCo -- and former sponsors Coca-Cola, Kellogg's, and General Mills -- was deemed an appropriate sponsor.
- 2) The guidelines focus on product portfolios and do not consider corporate behavior, lobbying history, and media statements as a measure of whether a company is an appropriate sponsor. Current sponsor PepsiCo, for example, has lobbied against soda taxes and against the inclusion of added sugar on the Nutrition Facts Panel. Its CEO has been quoted as saying that "if all consumers exercised... the problem of obesity wouldn't exist." How does this align with AND's mission and vision?
- 3) Are existing sponsors going to go through this review process? If so, how is PepsiCo an example of a company that "optimizes health through food and nutrition"?
- 4) Back in January 2016, it was announced that the Board of Directors "voted to implement a pilot program encompassing many of the SATF's recommendations." Can you comment on the status of this new committee and the development of assessment tools to support the sponsorship process?

Our position is not one of "zero sponsorship." While that is certainly an option, we don't see this as an issue of being "for" or "against" sponsorship. That rhetoric creates a dichotomy that only further divides dietitians and does not address systemic issues.

Instead, let's think about what kind of sponsorship is appropriate, relevant, and ethical for a health organization. We also don't think sponsors must be limited to the food sector; wellness, technology, and culinary companies could make for excellent partners.

We hear from dietitians and dietitians-to-be who have concerns about the current sponsorship model on a weekly basis. This is an issue of high priority for many of our colleagues.

We always welcome dialogue, and want you to know that you can always reach out to us for further conversation on this topic. Our foremost priority is to elevate the RDN credential. As evidenced by last year's Kraft Singles/Kids Eat Right controversy, sponsorship plays a large role in public perception of who we are and what we stand for.

Thank you for your time. We look forward to ongoing dialogue with you.

Subject: Agenda item 13.0 - Draft ICD response letter and background information

At the March Board meeting, Sylvia Escott-Stump, the Academy's representative to the International Confederation of Dietetic Associations (ICDA), presented the ICDA proposals on international competence standards and international accreditation process for the dietitian-nutritionist. Both proposals will be presented at ICDA's meeting in Granada, Spain in September (see workshop attachments for background).

The Board requested that I work with ACEND and CDR to develop feedback to the proposals for your approval. Based on our discussions, I am recommending that the attached draft communication, which includes our feedback, be sent to ICDA as the official Academy response. Please review and provide your input at the Board meeting on Friday.

Please note the difference in the survey form between ACEND's response and my suggestions related to international competence standards. I believe that professional standing would improve if everyone had the same minimum level of competence. That being said, I recognize that there is a need for practitioners to have different skills in different countries.

I have also attached ACEND Accreditation Standards for Foreign Dietitian Education Programs for you information.

Thank you very much.

Dr. Martin,

Thank you for getting back to us. We appreciate your time.

In the spirit of honest dialogue, we are disappointed that the questions we asked in our last email regarding AND's sponsorship guidelines and current sponsors went unanswered. We don't have a better understanding of how AND thinks PepsiCo "optimizes health through food and nutrition", or why corporate behavior and lobbying history are not part of AND's new sponsorship guidelines.

It has been disheartening that, over the last three years, our attempts at substantive dialogue with AND leadership have largely gone unanswered or been dismissed.

This is a topic of high importance to many dietitians, and one that has become part of a greater national dialogue on ethics and transparency. Our intention is to have this conversation to elevate the dietitian credential and ultimately strengthen our profession.

Many fellow dietitians have reached out to us over the last year -- especially after last year's Kids Eat Right/Kraft Singles controversy -- with concerns. Many do not feel heard or validated. Acknowledgment of their concerns by leadership, without justification or trivialization of the issue, would be a tremendous boon to AND.

There is a real opportunity here for an AND leader to make history and inspire the many dietitians who currently feel apathy and defeat.

Sincerely,

This is especially true as the Academy and the entire nutrition and dietetics profession prepare for our Second Century of serving the public -- in the U.S. and increasingly around the world.

As you know, on January 13, the Academy's Board of Directors voted to implement a one-year pilot program that includes 1) adopting the recommendations of the Sponsorship Advisory Task Force, 2) creating a Member Sponsorship Review Committee and 3) approving newly revised sponsorship guidelines. The task force's report includes tools the Academy is using to review potential sponsors.

I am grateful for the hard work of the task force and the committee, as well as to the House of Delegates which discussed the sponsorship issue and provided valuable feedback, and to all members who have made their voices known. I am confident that the guidelines and assessment tools will assist the committee and the organization in selecting sponsors in alignment with the Academy's mission and vision.

We truly appreciate the hard work and dedication of the volunteer committees, task forces, work groups and individual members in serving our Academy and profession. The work of the of the Member Sponsorship Review Committee is ongoing and the development of assessment tools to support the sponsorship process is in progress. I will share your comments with the committee.

Dear Dr. Martin,

Dietitians For Professional Integrity extends its congratulations on your new position as President-Elect of the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics.

We very interested in advocating for sponsorship reform, and strongly believe dialogue with AND leadership is an important piece of our work.

We are pleased with some of the progress we have seen since our inception in February of 2013, including the formation of the Sponsorship Advisory Task Force in 2014.

Specifically regarding the recently revised sponsorship guidelines, some concerns and questions remain for us:

1) Some of the new guidelines (i.e.: "the sponsor's mission and vision align with AND's") existed in the previous version, under which PepsiCo -- and former sponsors Coca-Cola, Kellogg's, and General Mills -- was deemed an appropriate sponsor.

2) The guidelines focus on product portfolios and do not consider corporate behavior, lobbying history, and media statements as a measure of whether a company is an appropriate sponsor. Current sponsor PepsiCo, for example, has lobbied against soda taxes and against the inclusion of added sugar on the Nutrition Facts Panel. Its CEO has been quoted as saying that "if all consumers exercised... the problem of obesity wouldn't exist." How does this align with AND's mission and vision?

3) Are existing sponsors going to go through this review process? If so, how is PepsiCo an example of a company that "optimizes health through food and nutrition"?

4) Back in January 2016, it was announced that the Board of Directors "voted to implement a pilot program encompassing many of the SATF's recommendations." Can you comment on the status of this new committee and the development of assessment tools to support the sponsorship process?

Our position is not one of "zero sponsorship." While that is certainly an option, we don't see this as an issue of being "for" or "against" sponsorship. That rhetoric creates a dichotomy that only further divides dietitians and does not address systemic issues.

Instead, let's think about what kind of sponsorship is appropriate, relevant, and ethical for a health organization. We also don't think sponsors must be limited to the food sector; wellness, technology, and culinary companies could make for excellent partners.

We hear from dietitians and dietitians-to-be who have concerns about the current sponsorship model on a weekly basis. This is an issue of high priority for many of our colleagues.

We always welcome dialogue, and want you to know that you can always reach out to us for further conversation on this topic. Our foremost priority is to elevate the RDN credential. As evidenced by last year's Kraft Singles/Kids Eat Right controversy, sponsorship plays a large role in public perception of who we are and what we stand for.

Thank you for your time. We look forward to ongoing dialogue with you.

At the March Board meeting, Sylvia Escott-Stump, the Academy's representative to the International Confederation of Dietetic Associations (ICDA), presented the ICDA proposals on international competence standards and international accreditation process for the dietitian-nutritionist. Both proposals will be presented at ICDA's meeting in Granada, Spain in September (see workshop attachments for background).

The Board requested that I work with ACEND and CDR to develop feedback to the proposals for your approval. Based on our discussions, I am recommending that the attached draft communication, which includes our feedback, be sent to ICDA as the official Academy response. Please review and provide your input at the Board meeting on Friday.

Please note the difference in the survey form between ACEND's response and my suggestions related to international competence standards. I believe that professional standing would improve if everyone had the same minimum level of competence. That being said, I recognize that there is a need for practitioners to have different skills in different countries.

I have also attached ACEND Accreditation Standards for Foreign Dietitian Education Programs for you information.

Thank you very much.

We also still have a face to face meeting at FNCE on the calendar. Historically, this meeting was scheduled in order to review the audit report that was to be provided to the Board at their FNCE face to face meeting. This year, there will not be a Board meeting at the end of FNCE. Given that, I would recommend that we not have the FAC face to face meeting either. We can either schedule another call in September, or use the meeting we currently have set, to address the audit. I know FNCE is a long, draining week for all of you and you want to get home to your families. If we cancel this meeting, we will not only save your time, but, save money since we will not need to fly in the auditors. So, let me know your thoughts on this issue as well.

We also still have a face to face meeting at FNCE on the calendar. Historically, this meeting was scheduled in order to review the audit report that was to be provided to the Board at their FNCE face to face meeting. This year, there will not be a Board meeting at the end of FNCE. Given that, I would recommend that we not have the FAC face to face meeting either. We can either schedule another call in September , or use the meeting we currently have set, to address the audit. I know FNCE is a long, draining week for all of you and you want to get home to your families. If we cancel this meeting, we will not only save your time, but, save money since will not need to fly in the auditors. So, let me know your thoughts on this issue as well.

Dr. Martin,

Thank you for getting back to us. We appreciate your time.

In the spirit of honest dialogue, we are disappointed that the questions we asked in our last email regarding AND's sponsorship guidelines and current sponsors went unanswered. We don't have a better understanding of how AND thinks PepsiCo "optimizes health through food and nutrition", or why corporate behavior and lobbying history are not part of AND's new sponsorship guidelines.

It has been disheartening that, over the last three years, our attempts at substantive dialogue with AND leadership have largely gone unanswered or been dismissed.

This is a topic of high importance to many dietitians, and one that has become part of a greater national dialogue on ethics and transparency. Our intention is to have this conversation to elevate the dietitian credential and ultimately strengthen our profession.

Many fellow dietitians have reached out to us over the last year -- especially after last year's Kids Eat Right/Kraft Singles controversy -- with concerns. Many do not feel heard or validated. Acknowledgment of their concerns by leadership, without justification or trivialization of the issue, would be a tremendous boon to AND.

There is a real opportunity here for an AND leader to make history and inspire the many dietitians who currently feel apathy and defeat.

Sincerely,

Dietitians For Professional Integrity

Thank you for your email. It was a privilege for me to be chosen by the members of the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics as the 2016-2017 President-elect. This is especially true as the Academy and the entire nutrition and dietetics profession prepare for our Second Century of serving the public -- in the U.S. and increasingly around the world.

As you know, on January 13, the Academy's Board of Directors voted to implement a one-year pilot program that includes 1) adopting the recommendations of the Sponsorship Advisory Task Force, 2) creating a Member Sponsorship Review Committee and 3) approving newly revised sponsorship guidelines. The task force's report includes tools the Academy is using to review potential sponsors.

I am grateful for the hard work of the task force and the committee, as well as to the House of Delegates which discussed the sponsorship issue and provided valuable feedback, and to all members who have made their voices known. I am confident that the guidelines and assessment tools will assist the committee and the organization in selecting sponsors in alignment with the Academy's mission and vision.

We truly appreciate the hard work and dedication of the volunteer committees, task forces, work groups and individual members in serving our Academy and profession. The work of the of the Member Sponsorship Review Committee is ongoing and the development of assessment tools to support the sponsorship process is in progress. I will share your comments with the committee.

Thank you again for your email. To those members of DFPI who are not members of the Academy, I strongly encourage you to join. Help us make our Second Century a historic and healthful time for all people.

Dear Dr. Martin,

Dietitians For Professional Integrity extends its congratulations on your new position as President-Elect of the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics.

We very interested in advocating for sponsorship reform, and strongly believe dialogue with AND leadership is an important piece of our work.

We are pleased with some of the progress we have seen since our inception in February of 2013, including the formation of the Sponsorship Advisory Task Force in 2014.

Specifically regarding the recently revised sponsorship guidelines, some concerns and questions remain for us:

1) Some of the new guidelines (i.e.: "the sponsor's mission and vision align with AND's") existed in the previous version, under which PepsiCo -- and former sponsors Coca-Cola, Kellogg's, and General Mills -- was deemed an appropriate sponsor.

2) The guidelines focus on product portfolios and do not consider corporate behavior, lobbying history, and media statements as a measure of whether a company is an appropriate sponsor. Current sponsor PepsiCo, for example, has lobbied against soda taxes and against the inclusion of added sugar on the Nutrition Facts Panel. Its CEO has been quoted as saying that "if all consumers exercised... the problem of obesity wouldn't exist." How does this align with AND's mission and vision?

3) Are existing sponsors going to go through this review process? If so, how is PepsiCo an example of a company that "optimizes health through food and nutrition"?

4) Back in January 2016, it was announced that the Board of Directors "voted to implement a pilot program encompassing many of the SATF's recommendations." Can you comment on the status of this new committee and the development of assessment tools to support the sponsorship process?

Our position is not one of "zero sponsorship." While that is certainly an option, we don't see this as an issue of being "for" or "against" sponsorship. That rhetoric creates a dichotomy that only further divides dietitians and does not address systemic issues.

Instead, let's think about what kind of sponsorship is appropriate, relevant, and ethical for a health organization. We also don't think sponsors must be limited to the food sector; wellness, technology, and culinary companies could make for excellent partners.

We hear from dietitians and dietitians-to-be who have concerns about the current sponsorship model on a weekly basis. This is an issue of high priority for many of our colleagues.

We always welcome dialogue, and want you to know that you can always reach out to us for further conversation on this topic. Our foremost priority is to elevate the RDN credential. As evidenced by last year's Kraft Singles/Kids Eat Right controversy, sponsorship plays a large role in public perception of who we are and what we stand for.

Thank you for your time. We look forward to ongoing dialogue with you.

CDR Representative

This year, we will be adding three new participants; Jo Jo Dantone-DeBarbieris, Dianne Polly and Manjushree Karkare. As is our tradition, we would like everyone to provide a picture and a small bio to be shared with Committee members. I am attaching a copy of the current list for everyone to review to see if you would like to change the picture or bio and for Jo Jo, Dianne and Manjushree to see what we would like them to provide. Send your information and/or changes to Linda Serwat at Lserwat@eatright.org.

I am also attaching a preliminary schedule for FY17 schedule. Currently, we still have the last Tuesday of each month set on the calendar. Please let us know if this will be a problem. We also still have a face to face meeting at FNCE on the calendar. Historically, this meeting was scheduled in order to review the audit report that was to be provided to the Board at their FNCE face to face meeting. This year, there will not be a Board meeting at the end of FNCE. Given that, I would recommend that we not have the FAC face to face meeting either. We can either schedule another call in September , or use the meeting we currently have set, to address the audit. I know FNCE is a long, draining week for all of you and you want to get home to your families. If we cancel this meeting, we will not only save your time, but, save money since will not need to fly in the auditors. So, let me know your thoughts on this issue as well.

I look forward to another productive year from the best Committee in the business! As always, if you have any questions or concerns, please let me know either via email or at extension 4730 at headquarters.

Thank you Joyce for your heart warming note. You have been heard! You should be contacted soon with a solution for you for this year.

There will be some recommendations to the Leadership to develop some policies regarding dues for members who are similarly situated. We appreciate it very much, when members let us know what situations they are facing, rather than just dropping their membership.

Thank you again for sharing. I am copying others, who will continue to work on this issue. My term as president ends in May. However, know that your concern will not be forgotten. Have a great day.

What a sad situation and helping this one member is benevolent and the right thing to do. What do we do for others with similar situations? Is there a policy for this type of situation and do other associations adjust fees based on employment status? Giving discounts get tricky if other members find out. In my practice if someone can not pay a copay or other fee and we feel it is a hardship I will pay the fee or copay but not call it a discount. Your suggestion Donna is a good one the board can chip in to pay her membership not give her free or discounted membership. We are not offering this to others. Thanks, Lucille

Dear Dr Crayton,

I viewed your inspiring video that you sent to AND members earlier today. Thank you for all your hard work over the past year. You truly have accomplished quite a bit while at the helm of our esteemed professional organization. Congratulations on a job well done!

If I may, I would like to bring an Academy policy to your attention – a policy that you may or may not be aware of, but that I hope you will consider changing.

First, I need to give you a little background. I have been unemployed for 18 months. I lost my job in Nov 2014 when I needed to take time off from work to care for a family member who was not covered under FMLA. Due to excessive absences from work, I was terminated. I have been diligently seeking employment ever since but, with the exception of a few per diem, temporary, and freelance jobs, I have not been able to secure steady full-time (or even part-time) employment. At this point, unless something drastic changes, I am on track to earn only about $7,000 this year.

Last year at this time - when I had been unemployed for 5 months - I had contacted the Academy to request that my membership dues be reduced. I was told that the only thing the Academy could do was to spread my payments out (between June 2015 and January 2016), but that no discount could be extended. Because I value my membership in the Academy, I accepted the payment plan option (which actually increased my membership dues as administrative fees were added).

This year, however, I simply will not be able to afford the membership dues, even if they are spread out between June 2016 and January 2017. Nearly all the income I am earning is going toward paying my health insurance premiums. Due to the financial strain my unexpected long-term unemployment has put on our household, my retired husband went back to work last month.

I have been a member of the Academy since I was an undergraduate. If memory serves me, I first became a member in 1980 - 36 years ago. I do not wish to forfeit my membership in the Academy but, as I'm sure you can imagine, I have been faced with many such difficult choices over the past year. If a waiver of this year's dues (or a substantial discount) is not possible, then I will not, most unfortunately, be able to renew my membership in the Academy nor the 3 DPGs to which I belong (DCE, HEN, DIFM).

Last month, I sent the Academy an email with the same information I am relating to you now, requesting a waiver or discount of my membership dues. Matthew Novotny responded as follows: "Thank you for contacting us, and for your years of membership and support. Unfortunately, we're unable to discount or waive Academy membership dues in this manner. If you find you are unable to renew your membership this year, we understand, but wanted you to know it is possible and easy to resume your membership whenever your financial situation improves. I encourage you to reach to me personally whenever you are ready to renew or reactivate your membership. We would be happy to waive your reinstatement fee should your membership lapse..."

I am still in a state of disbelief that AND has no policy to assist decades-long members, especially those who are Fellows, when they are experiencing financial difficulty. Although I value my membership with AND, many of my RD friends and colleagues do not, and are not members. AND's inability or unwillingness to help unemployed members maintain their membership does not, to say the least, breed good will. My membership dues for the National Kidney Foundation were reduced from $125 to $57 when I informed them of my dire financial situation this past December.

As the Academy's President, I thought it was important for you to be aware of this.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Joyce Vergili (RD # 15115)

You raise good points. We have not contacted Joyce so let's step back. I benchmarked and found numerous "hardship" forms and procedures offered by American Bar, Dental, a Psychology association, etc. None totally waive the dues so let's not go there. Also, having the Board pay is very thoughtful of you but that sets a precedent and I doubt the Board would want to pass the hat if this "hardship" concept becomes more prevalent. My benchmarking shows that the "hardship" dues are about 1/3, generally have a 5 year max, and there is a form to sign that basically says it is an ethics violation if they are falsifying their situation.

So, how about Jim offers Joyce $75 dues and we will solidify the "hardship" procedure and forms.

I have been a member of the Academy since I was an undergraduate. If memory serves me, I first became a member in 1980 - 36 years ago. I do not wish to forfeit my membership in the Academy but, as I'm sure you can imagine, I have been faced with many such difficult choices over the past year. If a waiver of this year's dues (or a substantial discount) is not possible, then I will not, most unfortunately, be able to renew my membership in the Academy nor the 3 DPGs to which I belong (DCE, HEN, DIFM).

Last month, I sent the Academy an email with the same information I am relating to you now, requesting a waiver or discount of my membership dues. Matthew Novotny responded as follows: "Thank you for contacting us, and for your years of membership and support. Unfortunately, we're unable to discount or waive Academy membership dues in this manner. If you find you are unable to renew your membership this year, we understand, but wanted you to know it is possible and easy to resume your membership whenever your financial situation improves. I encourage you to reach to me personally whenever you are ready to renew or reactivate your membership. We would be happy to waive your reinstatement fee should your membership lapse..."

I am still in a state of disbelief that AND has no policy to assist decades-long members, especially those who are Fellows, when they are experiencing financial difficulty. Although I value my membership with AND, many of my RD friends and colleagues do not, and are not members. AND's inability or unwillingness to help unemployed members maintain their membership does not, to say the least, breed good will. My membership dues for the National Kidney Foundation were reduced from $125 to $57 when I informed them of my dire financial situation this past December.

As the Academy's President, I thought it was important for you to be aware of this.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

We are a very compassionate Association, and this kind of gesture will get us a lot of positive publicity, instead of a lot of negative publicity had we not done anything. Love the solution. I also love the idea of a fund to help these type people. I would contribute!

What a sad situation and helping this one member is benevolent and the right thing to do. What do we do for others with similar situations? Is there a policy for this type of situation and do other associations adjust fees based on employment status? Giving discounts get tricky if other members find out. In my practice if someone can not pay a copay or other fee and we feel it is a hardship I will pay the fee or copay but not call it a discount. Your suggestion Donna is a good one the board can chip in to pay her membership not give her free or discounted membership. We are not offering this to others. Thanks, Lucille

Dear Dr Crayton,

I viewed your inspiring video that you sent to AND members earlier today. Thank you for all your hard work over the past year. You truly have accomplished quite a bit while at the helm of our esteemed professional organization. Congratulations on a job well done!

If I may, I would like to bring an Academy policy to your attention – a policy that you may or may not be aware of, but that I hope you will consider changing.

First, I need to give you a little background. I have been unemployed for 18 months. I lost my job in Nov 2014 when I needed to take time off from work to care for a family member who was not covered under FMLA. Due to excessive absences from work, I was terminated. I have been diligently seeking employment ever since but, with the exception of a few per diem, temporary, and freelance jobs, I have not been able to secure steady full-time (or even part-time) employment. At this point, unless something drastic changes, I am on track to earn only about $7,000 this year.

Last year at this time - when I had been unemployed for 5 months - I had contacted the Academy to request that my membership dues be reduced. I was told that the only thing the Academy could do was to spread my payments out (between June 2015 and January 2016), but that no discount could be extended. Because I value my membership in the Academy, I accepted the payment plan option (which actually increased my membership dues as administrative fees were added).

This year, however, I simply will not be able to afford the membership dues, even if they are spread out between June 2016 and January 2017. Nearly all the income I am earning is going toward paying my health insurance premiums. Due to the financial strain my unexpected long-term unemployment has put on our household, my retired husband went back to work last month.

I have been a member of the Academy since I was an undergraduate. If memory serves me, I first became a member in 1980 - 36 years ago. I do not wish to forfeit my membership in the Academy but, as I'm sure you can imagine, I have been faced with many such difficult choices over the past year. Hi!

Since this is my last BOD meeting and it is a short meeting I thought I would just send everyone the catalog link (below) and if you have any interest in purchasing something then you can just email me or we can take care of business at a break! Remember 25% of each sale goes to the Academy Foundation! Hopefully by the end of May I can give you a revised total of what has been raised but I know it is over $10,000!

I have also attached the Trunk Show exclusives...if you send just $50 you can get one or all of the exclusive items for half price!

Thank you all for the quick response. The reduced fee seems plausible. If the $75 is a problem for her, I agree with Donna, we can pay it for this year(Evelyn, Lucille and Donna). There will be no need to get the entire Board involved.

Hope this arrangement will work for her. It may get us some goodwill!

Also, having the Board pay is very thoughtful of you but that sets a precedent and I doubt the Board would want to pass the hat if this "hardship" concept becomes more prevalent. My benchmarking shows that the "hardship" dues are about 1/3, generally have a 5 year max, and there is a form to sign that basically says it is an ethics violation if they are falsifying their situation.

So, how about Jim offers Joyce $75 dues and we will solidify the "hardship" procedure and forms.

What a sad situation and helping this one member is benevolent and the right thing to do. What do we do for others with similar situations? Is there a policy for this type of situation and do other associations adjust fees based on employment status? Giving discounts get tricky if other members find out. In my practice if someone can not pay a copay or other fee and we feel it is a hardship I will pay the fee or copay but not call it a discount. Your suggestion Donna is a good one the board can chip in to pay her membership not give her free or discounted membership. We are not offering this to others. Thanks, Lucille

Dear Dr Crayton,

I viewed your inspiring video that you sent to AND members earlier today. Thank you for all your hard work over the past year. You truly have accomplished quite a bit while at the helm of our esteemed professional organization. Congratulations on a job well done!

If I may, I would like to bring an Academy policy to your attention – a policy that you may or may not be aware of, but that I hope you will consider changing.

First, I need to give you a little background. I have been unemployed for 18 months. I lost my job in Nov 2014 when I needed to take time off from work to care for a family member who was not covered under FMLA. Due to excessive absences from work, I was terminated. I have been diligently seeking employment ever since but, with the exception of a few per diem, temporary, and freelance jobs, I have not been able to secure steady full-time (or even part-time) employment. At this point, unless something drastic changes, I am on track to earn only about $7,000 this year.

Last year at this time - when I had been unemployed for 5 months - I had contacted the Academy to request that my membership dues be reduced. I was told that the only thing the Academy could do was to spread my payments out (between June 2015 and January 2016), but that no discount could be extended. Because I value my membership in the Academy, I accepted the payment plan option (which actually increased my membership dues as administrative fees were added).

This year, however, I simply will not be able to afford the membership dues, even if they are spread out between June 2016 and January 2017. Nearly all the income I am earning is going toward paying my health insurance premiums. Due to the financial strain my unexpected long-term unemployment has put on our household, my retired husband went back to work last month.

I have been a member of the Academy since I was an undergraduate. If memory serves me, I first became a member in 1980 - 36 years ago. I do not wish to forfeit my membership in the Academy but, as I'm sure you can imagine, I have been faced with many such difficult choices over the past year. If a waiver of this year's dues (or a substantial discount) is not possible, then I will not, most unfortunately, be able to renew my membership in the Academy nor the 3 DPGs to which I belong (DCE, HEN, DIFM).

Last month, I sent the Academy an email with the same information I am relating to you now, requesting a waiver or discount of my membership dues. Matthew Novotny responded as follows: "Thank you for contacting us, and for your years of membership and support. Unfortunately, we're unable to discount or waive Academy membership dues in this manner. If you find you are unable to renew your membership this year, we understand, but wanted you to know it is possible and easy to resume your membership whenever your financial situation improves. I encourage you to reach to me personally whenever you are ready to renew or reactivate your membership. We would be happy to waive your reinstatement fee should your membership lapse..."

I am still in a state of disbelief that AND has no policy to assist decades-long members, especially those who are Fellows, when they are experiencing financial difficulty. Although I value my membership with AND, many of my RD friends and colleagues do not, and are not members. AND's inability or unwillingness to help unemployed members maintain their membership does not, to say the least, breed good will. My membership dues for the National Kidney Foundation were reduced from $125 to $57 when I informed them of my dire financial situation this past December.

As the Academy's President, I thought it was important for you to be aware of this.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Dear Dr Crayton,

I viewed your inspiring video that you sent to AND members earlier today. Thank you for all your hard work over the past year. You truly have accomplished quite a bit while at the helm of our esteemed professional organization. Congratulations on a job well done!

If I may, I would like to bring an Academy policy to your attention – a policy that you may or may not be aware of, but that I hope you will consider changing.

First, I need to give you a little background. I have been unemployed for 18 months. I lost my job in Nov 2014 when I needed to take time off from work to care for a family member who was not covered under FMLA. Due to excessive absences from work, I was terminated. I have been diligently seeking employment ever since but, with the exception of a few per diem, temporary, and freelance jobs, I have not been able to secure steady full-time (or even part-time) employment. At this point, unless something drastic changes, I am on track to earn only about $7,000 this year.

Last year at this time - when I had been unemployed for 5 months - I had contacted the Academy to request that my membership dues be reduced. I was told that the only thing the Academy could do was to spread my payments out (between June 2015 and January 2016), but that no discount could be extended. Because I value my membership in the Academy, I accepted the payment plan option (which actually increased my membership dues as administrative fees were added).

This year, however, I simply will not be able to afford the membership dues, even if they are spread out between June 2016 and January 2017. Nearly all the income I am earning is going toward paying my health insurance premiums. Due to the financial strain my unexpected long-term unemployment has put on our household, my retired husband went back to work last month.

I have been a member of the Academy since I was an undergraduate. If memory serves me, I first became a member in 1980 - 36 years ago. I do not wish to forfeit my membership in the Academy but, as I'm sure you can imagine, I have been faced with many such difficult choices over the past year. If a waiver of this year's dues (or a substantial discount) is not possible, then I will not, most unfortunately, be able to renew my membership in the Academy nor the 3 DPGs to which I belong (DCE, HEN, DIFM).

Last month, I sent the Academy an email with the same information I am relating to you now, requesting a waiver or discount of my membership dues. Matthew Novotny responded as follows: "Thank you for contacting us, and for your years of membership and support. Unfortunately, we're unable to discount or waive Academy membership dues in this manner. If you find you are unable to renew your membership this year, we understand, but wanted you to know it is possible and easy to resume your membership whenever your financial situation improves. I encourage you to reach to me personally whenever you are ready to renew or reactivate your membership. We would be happy to waive your reinstatement fee should your membership lapse..."

I am still in a state of disbelief that AND has no policy to assist decades-long members, especially those who are Fellows, when they are experiencing financial difficulty. Although I value my membership with AND, many of my RD friends and colleagues do not, and are not members. AND's inability or unwillingness to help unemployed members maintain their membership does not, to say the least, breed good will. My membership dues for the National Kidney Foundation were reduced from $125 to $57 when I informed them of my dire financial situation this past December.

As the Academy's President, I thought it was important for you to be aware of this.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Lucille:

You raise good points. We have not contacted Joyce so let's step back. I benchmarked and found numerous "hardship" forms and procedures offered by American Bar, Dental, a Psychology association, etc. None totally waive the dues so let's not go there. Also, having the Board pay is very thoughtful of you but that sets a precedent and I doubt the Board would want to pass the hat if this "hardship" concept becomes more prevalent. My benchmarking shows that the "hardship" dues are about 1/3, generally have a 5 year max, and there is a form to sign that basically says it is an ethics violation if they are falsifying their situation.

So, how about Jim offers Joyce $75 dues and we will solidify the "hardship" procedure and forms.

What a sad situation and helping this one member is benevolent and the right thing to do. What do we do for others with similar situations? Is there a policy for this type of situation and do other associations adjust fees based on employment status? Giving discounts get tricky if other members find out. In my practice if someone can not pay a copay or other fee and we feel it is a hardship I will pay the fee or copay but not call it a discount. Your suggestion Donna is a good one the board can chip in to pay her membership not give her free or discounted membership. We are not offering this to others. Thanks, Lucille

Dear Dr Crayton,

I viewed your inspiring video that you sent to AND members earlier today. Thank you for all your hard work over the past year. You truly have accomplished quite a bit while at the helm of our esteemed professional organization. Congratulations on a job well done!

If I may, I would like to bring an Academy policy to your attention – a policy that you may or may not be aware of, but that I hope you will consider changing.

First, I need to give you a little background. I have been unemployed for 18 months. I lost my job in Nov 2014 when I needed to take time off from work to care for a family member who was not covered under FMLA. Due to excessive absences from work, I was terminated. I have been diligently seeking employment ever since but, with the exception of a few per diem, temporary, and freelance jobs, I have not been able to secure steady full-time (or even part-time) employment. At this point, unless something drastic changes, I am on track to earn only about $7,000 this year.

Last year at this time - when I had been unemployed for 5 months - I had contacted the Academy to request that my membership dues be reduced. I was told that the only thing the Academy could do was to spread my payments out (between June 2015 and January 2016), but that no discount could be extended. Because I value my membership in the Academy, I accepted the payment plan option (which actually increased my membership dues as administrative fees were added).

This year, however, I simply will not be able to afford the membership dues, even if they are spread out between June 2016 and January 2017. Nearly all the income I am earning is going toward paying my health insurance premiums. Due to the financial strain my unexpected long-term unemployment has put on our household, my retired husband went back to work last month.

I have been a member of the Academy since I was an undergraduate. If memory serves me, I first became a member in 1980 - 36 years ago. I do not wish to forfeit my membership in the Academy but, as I'm sure you can imagine, I have been faced with many such difficult choices over the past year. If a waiver of this year's dues (or a substantial discount) is not possible, then I will not, most unfortunately, be able to renew my membership in the Academy nor the 3 DPGs to which I belong (DCE, HEN, DIFM).

Last month, I sent the Academy an email with the same information I am relating to you now, requesting a waiver or discount of my membership dues. Matthew Novotny responded as follows: "Thank you for contacting us, and for your years of membership and support. Unfortunately, we're unable to discount or waive Academy membership dues in this manner. If you find you are unable to renew your membership this year, we understand, but wanted you to know it is possible and easy to resume your membership whenever your financial situation improves. I encourage you to reach to me personally whenever you are ready to renew or reactivate your membership. We would be happy to waive your reinstatement fee should your membership lapse..."

I am still in a state of disbelief that AND has no policy to assist decades-long members, especially those who are Fellows, when they are experiencing financial difficulty. Although I value my membership with AND, many of my RD friends and colleagues do not, and are not members.

AND's inability or unwillingness to help unemployed members maintain their membership does not, to say the least, breed good will. My membership dues for the National Kidney Foundation were reduced from $125 to $57 when I informed them of my dire financial situation this past December.

As the Academy's President, I thought it was important for you to be aware of this.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

What a sad situation and helping this one member is benevolent and the right thing to do. What do we do for others with similar situations? Is there a policy for this type of situation and do other associations adjust fees based on employment status? Giving discounts get tricky if other members find out. In my practice if someone can not pay a copay or other fee and we feel it is a hardship I will pay the fee or copay but not call it a discount. Your suggestion Donna is a good one the board can chip in to pay her membership not give her free or discounted membership. We are not offering this to others. Thanks, Lucille

Regardless of RWJF goal #1, I recommend we need to be a part of this advisory group. I would suggest Lucille take my place because of her expertise in children's nutrition. Should you agree, we need to share our involvement with the Sponsorship Committee when Pepsi comes up for renewal.

Dear Pat,

I hope that all is well with you!

I'm writing to invite you to become a part of an important new Robert Wood Johnson Foundation (RWJF) project—Engaging Oral Health Professionals in Efforts to Reduce Childhood Obesity—by joining the project’s virtual advisory committee. The project is being spearheaded by a collaboration consisting of the National Maternal and Child Oral Health Resource Center, the American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry, the American Dental Association, the American Dental Hygienists’ Association, and the Santa Fe Group.

A series of background papers designed to examine the state of the science related to preventing childhood obesity (children under age 12) and reducing the consumption of sugar-sweetened beverages among children has been commissioned. The findings from reviews of the scientific research and national surveys of oral health professionals will be shared during a national conference of stakeholders—a wide array of professionals—to refine evidence-based recommendations and strategies that oral health professionals, oral-health-related organizations, and others can employ to prevent childhood obesity. An invitation to the conference was sent to your organization. If you did not receive the invitation, please let me know. For more information about the conference, visit <http://www.oralhealth4healthyfutures.org>.

The project aligns with two RWJF goals: (1) to eliminate young children’s consumption of sugar-sweetened beverages and (2) to ensure that children enter kindergarten at a healthy weight.

We understand that you are involved in many activities and your time is limited. For this reason, all advisory committee business will be conducted electronically. In other words, there will be no scheduled conference calls or meetings. When there is a topic to discuss or for which committee members’ feedback is needed, the “conversations” will take place via e-mail or another convenient electronic method. This will allow discussion to take place in the most efficient manner possible and will enable everyone to take part in the discussion at a convenient time.

We hope that you will join this exciting project’s virtual advisory committee and contribute to enabling children to live longer, healthier lives.

To let us know whether you or another representative from the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics are interested in being part of the committee, please contact Beth Lowe at eal38@gmail.com. For planning purposes, we would appreciate hearing about your decision by May 20.

Thank you so much for considering our request.

Generally, we have the meeting to get the audit accepted. Since the Board will not be meeting after FNCE, the review from auditors can be done via conference call. We can either do this on the September call or the October call. So, I could see not having a face to face meeting at FNCE.

Paul, Margaret and Kay, I am sure none of you have been worried about this, but I think we need to rethink out F2F FAC meeting at FNCE being after the closing session on Tuesday? If we do not have a board meeting anymore on Wednesday, a lot of people will be trying to catch flights, and I don't think having a meeting late Tuesday afternoon will work. I know I always have to catch two flights to get home and the latest flight I can get is 6:30pm that will get me in at midnight. Which means I would probably have to leave no later than 4:30pm. While this might work out, I thought it was worth thinking about doing something different? Maybe a breakfast meeting on Tuesday? Other suggestions? I was already trying to book flights, as they seem to be going out of sight for me, but was unsure what time we could get away on Tuesday.

Dear Dr Crayton,

I viewed your inspiring video that you sent to AND members earlier today. Thank you for all your hard work over the past year. You truly have accomplished quite a bit while at the helm of our esteemed professional organization. Congratulations on a job well done!

If I may, I would like to bring an Academy policy to your attention – a policy that you may or may not be aware of, but that I hope you will consider changing.

First, I need to give you a little background. I have been unemployed for 18 months. I lost my job in Nov 2014 when I needed to take time off from work to care for a family member who was not covered under FMLA. Due to excessive absences from work, I was terminated. I have been diligently seeking employment ever since but, with the exception of a few per diem, temporary,

Last year at this time - when I had been unemployed for 5 months - I had contacted the Academy to request that my membership dues be reduced. This year, however, I simply will not be able to afford the membership dues, even if they are spread out between June 2016 and January 2017. Nearly all the income I am earning is going toward paying my health insurance premiums. Due to the financial strain my unexpected long-term unemployment has put on our household, my retired husband went back to work last month.

I have been a member of the Academy since I was an undergraduate. If memory serves me, I first became a member in 1980 - 36 years ago. I do not wish to forfeit my membership in the Academy but, as I'm sure you can imagine, I have been faced with many such difficult choices over the past year. If a waiver of this year's dues (or a substantial discount) is not possible, then I will not, most unfortunately, be able to renew my membership in the Academy nor the 3 DPGs to which I belong (DCE, HEN, DIFM).

Unfortunately, we're unable to discount or waive Academy membership dues in this manner. If you find you are unable to renew your membership this year, we understand, but wanted you to know it is possible and easy to resume your membership whenever your financial situation improves. I encourage you to reach to me personally whenever you are ready to renew or reactivate your membership. We would be happy to waive your reinstatement fee should your membership lapse..."

I am still in a state of disbelief that AND has no policy to assist decades-long members, especially those who are Fellows, when they are experiencing financial difficulty. Although I value my membership with AND, many of my RD friends and colleagues do not, and are not members. AND's inability or unwillingness to help unemployed members maintain their membership does not, to say the least, breed good will. Hi,

I received an invitation from Robert Wood Johnson Foundation (see below) to join its advisory committee on the “Engaging Oral Health Professionals in Efforts to Reduce Childhood Obesity.” It is a collaborative project with the National Maternal and Child Oral Health Resource Center, the American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry, the American Dental Association, the American Dental Hygienists’ Association, and the Santa Fe Group. It is great the Academy was selected to represent childhood obesity.

Regardless of RWJF goal #1, I recommend we need to be a part of this advisory group. I would suggest Lucille take my place because of her expertise in children's nutrition. Should you agree, we need to share our involvement with the Sponsorship Committee when Pepsi comes up for renewal.

Dear Pat,

I'm writing to invite you to become a part of an important new Robert Wood Johnson Foundation (RWJF) project—Engaging Oral Health Professionals in Efforts to Reduce Childhood Obesity—by joining the project's virtual advisory committee. The project is being spearheaded by a collaboration consisting of the National Maternal and Child Oral Health Resource Center, the American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry, the American Dental Association, the American Dental Hygienists' Association, and the Santa Fe Group.

A series of background papers designed to examine the state of the science related to preventing childhood obesity (children under age 12) and reducing the consumption of sugar-sweetened beverages among children has been commissioned. The findings from reviews of the scientific research and national surveys of oral health professionals will be shared during a national conference of stakeholders—a wide array of professionals—to refine evidence-based recommendations and strategies that oral health professionals, oral-health-related organizations, and others can employ to prevent childhood obesity. An invitation to the conference was sent to your organization. If you did not receive the invitation, please let me know. For more information about the conference, visit <http://www.oralhealth4healthyfutures.org>.

The project aligns with two RWJF goals: (1) to eliminate young children's consumption of sugar-sweetened beverages and (2) to ensure that children enter kindergarten at a healthy weight.

We understand that you are involved in many activities and your time is limited. For this reason, all advisory committee business will be conducted electronically. In other words, there will be no scheduled conference calls or meetings. When there is a topic to discuss or for which committee members' feedback is needed, the "conversations" will take place via e-mail or another convenient electronic method. This will allow discussion to take place in the most efficient manner possible and will enable everyone to take part in the discussion at a convenient time.

We hope that you will join this exciting project's virtual advisory committee and contribute to enabling children to live longer, healthier lives.

To let us know whether you or another representative from the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics are interested in being part of the committee, please contact Beth Lowe at eal38@gmail.com. For planning purposes, we would appreciate hearing about your decision by May 20.

Thank you so much for considering our request.

Dear Dr Crayton,

I viewed your inspiring video that you sent to AND members earlier today. Thank you for all your hard work over the past year. You truly have accomplished quite a bit while at the helm of our esteemed professional organization. Congratulations on a job well done!

If I may, I would like to bring an Academy policy to your attention – a policy that you may or may not be aware of, but that I hope you will consider changing.

First, I need to give you a little background. I have been unemployed for 18 months. I lost my job in Nov 2014 when I needed to take time off from work to care for a family member who was not covered under FMLA. Due to excessive absences from work, I was terminated. I have been diligently seeking employment ever since but, with the exception of a few per diem, temporary, and freelance jobs, I have not been able to secure steady full-time (or even part-time) employment. At this point, unless something drastic changes, I am on track to earn only about $7,000 this year.

Last year at this time - when I had been unemployed for 5 months - I had contacted the Academy to request that my membership dues be reduced. I was told that the only thing the Academy could do was to spread my payments out (between June 2015 and January 2016), but that no discount could be extended. Because I value my membership in the Academy, I accepted the payment plan option (which actually increased my membership dues as administrative fees were added).

This year, however, I simply will not be able to afford the membership dues, even if they are spread out between June 2016 and January 2017. Nearly all the income I am earning is going toward paying my health insurance premiums. Due to the financial strain my unexpected long-term unemployment has put on our household, my retired husband went back to work last month.

I have been a member of the Academy since I was an undergraduate. If memory serves me, I first became a member in 1980 - 36 years ago. I do not wish to forfeit my membership in the Academy but, as I'm sure you can imagine, I have been faced with many such difficult choices over the past year. If a waiver of this year's dues (or a substantial discount) is not possible, then I will not, most unfortunately, be able to renew my membership in the Academy nor the 3 DPGs to which I belong (DCE, HEN, DIFM).

Last month, I sent the Academy an email with the same information I am relating to you now, requesting a waiver or discount of my membership dues. Matthew Novotny responded as follows: "Thank you for contacting us, and for your years of membership and support. Unfortunately, we're unable to discount or waive Academy membership dues in this manner. If you find you are unable to renew your membership this year, we understand, but wanted you to know it is possible and easy to resume your membership whenever your financial situation improves. I encourage you to reach to me personally whenever you are ready to renew or reactivate your membership. We would be happy to waive your reinstatement fee should your membership lapse..."

I am still in a state of disbelief that AND has no policy to assist decades-long members, especially those who are Fellows, when they are experiencing financial difficulty. Although I value my membership with AND, many of my RD friends and colleagues do not, and are not members. AND's inability or unwillingness to help unemployed members maintain their membership does not, to say the least, breed good will. My membership dues for the National Kidney Foundation were reduced from $125 to $57 when I informed them of my dire financial situation this past December.

I hope that all is well with you!

I'm writing to invite you to become a part of an important new Robert Wood Johnson Foundation (RWJF) project—Engaging Oral Health Professionals in Efforts to Reduce Childhood Obesity—by joining the project's virtual advisory committee. The project is being spearheaded by a collaboration consisting of the National Maternal and Child Oral Health Resource Center, the American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry, the American Dental Association, the American Dental Hygienists' Association, and the Santa Fe Group.

A series of background papers designed to examine the state of the science related to preventing childhood obesity (children under age 12) and reducing the consumption of sugar-sweetened beverages among children has been commissioned. The findings from reviews of the scientific research and national surveys of oral health professionals will be shared during a national conference of stakeholders—a wide array of professionals—to refine evidence-based recommendations and strategies that oral health professionals, oral-health-related organizations, and others can employ to prevent childhood obesity. An invitation to the conference was sent to your organization. If you did not receive the invitation, please let me know. For more information about the conference, visit <http://www.oralhealth4healthyfutures.org>.

sugar-sweetened beverages and (2) to ensure that children enter kindergarten at a healthy weight.

We understand that you are involved in many activities and your time is limited. For this reason, all advisory committee business will be conducted electronically. In other words, there will be no scheduled conference calls or meetings. When there is a topic to discuss or for which committee members' feedback is needed, the "conversations" will take place via e-mail or another convenient electronic method. This will allow discussion to take place in the most efficient manner possible and will enable everyone to take part in the discussion at a convenient time.

We hope that you will join this exciting project's virtual advisory committee and contribute to enabling children to live longer, healthier lives.

To let us know whether you or another representative from the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics are interested in being part of the committee, please contact Beth Lowe at eal38@gmail.com. For planning purposes, we would appreciate hearing about your decision by May 20.

Thank you so much for considering our request.

With warm regards,
Katrina

Paul, Margaret and Kay, I am sure none of you have been worried about this, but I think we need to rethink out F2F FAC meeting at FNCE being after the closing session on Tuesday? If we do not have a board meeting anymore on Wednesday, a lot of people will be trying to catch flights, and I don't think having a meeting late Tuesday afternoon will work. I know I always have to catch two flights to get home and the latest flight I can get is 6:30pm that will get me in at midnight. Which means I would probably have to leave no later than 4:30pm. While this might work out, I thought it was worth thinking about doing something different? Maybe a breakfast meeting on Tuesday? Other suggestions? I was already trying to book flights, as they seem to be going out of sight for me, but was unsure what time we could get away on Tuesday.

I am copying Lucille and Donna on this matter in that this is a policy issue that may need BOD action, if there is a change.

Dear Dr Crayton,

I viewed your inspiring video that you sent to AND members earlier today. Thank you for all your hard work over the past year. You truly have accomplished quite a bit while at the helm of our esteemed professional organization. Congratulations on a job well done!

If I may, I would like to bring an Academy policy to your attention – a policy that you may or may not be aware of, but that I hope you will consider changing.

First, I need to give you a little background. I have been unemployed for 18 months. I lost my job in Nov 2014 when I needed to take time off from work to care for a family member who was not covered under FMLA. Due to excessive absences from work, I was terminated. I have been diligently seeking employment ever since but, with the exception of a few per diem, temporary, and freelance jobs, I have not been able to secure steady full-time (or even part-time) employment. At this point, unless something drastic changes, I am on track to earn only about $7,000 this year.

Last year at this time - when I had been unemployed for 5 months - I had contacted the Academy to request that my membership dues be reduced. I was told that the only thing the Academy could do was to spread my payments out (between June 2015 and January 2016), but that no discount could be extended. Because I value my membership in the Academy, I accepted the payment plan option (which actually increased my membership dues as administrative fees were added).

This year, however, I simply will not be able to afford the membership dues, even if they are spread out between June 2016 and January 2017. Nearly all the income I am earning is going toward paying my health insurance premiums. Due to the financial strain my unexpected long-term unemployment has put on our household, my retired husband went back to work last month.

I have been a member of the Academy since I was an undergraduate. If memory serves me, I first became a member in 1980 - 36 years ago. I do not wish to forfeit my membership in the Academy but, as I'm sure you can imagine, I have been faced with many such difficult choices over the past year. If a waiver of this year's dues (or a substantial discount) is not possible, then I will not, most unfortunately, be able to renew my membership in the Academy nor the 3 DPGs to which I belong (DCE, HEN, DIFM).

Last month, I sent the Academy an email with the same information I am relating to you now, requesting a waiver or discount of my membership dues. Matthew Novotny responded as follows: "Thank you for contacting us, and for your years of membership and support. Unfortunately, we're unable to discount or waive Academy membership dues in this manner. If you find you are unable to renew your membership this year, we understand, but wanted you to know it is possible and easy to resume your membership whenever your financial situation improves. I encourage you to reach to me personally whenever you are ready to renew or reactivate your membership. We would be happy to waive your reinstatement fee should your membership lapse..."

I am still in a state of disbelief that AND has no policy to assist decades-long members, especially those who are Fellows, when they are experiencing financial difficulty. Although I value my membership with AND, many of my RD friends and colleagues do not, and are not members. AND's inability or unwillingness to help unemployed members maintain their membership does not, to say the least, breed good will. My membership dues for the National Kidney Foundation were reduced from $125 to $57 when I informed them of my dire financial situation this past December.

As the Academy's President, I thought it was important for you to be aware of this.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Joyce Vergili (RD # 15115)

Thank you for your quick response. I agree Nancy Collins would be a great addition. The selection of nominees was based on the identified opportunity areas. Sonja, for instance, is an expert on wasted food and she also contributed 100k towards Second Century. Judy Rodriguez is nominated because she is the new ICDA delegate. Susan Finn and Judy Dodd both are donors and co-chairs of Second Century. Marty Yadrik is chair-elect of the Foundation. Glenna and Ethan are part of the appreciative inquiry interview as were other Past Presidents.

The Diversity Matrix is used to ensure a representative group attends the Summit. The Matrix includes demographics, specialty, and membership category qualifications.

Brenda Richardson or Dr. Nancy Collins both offer an additional depth of knowledge. Full disclosure Nancy is a good friend of mine but I lean toward her. She is a legal expert on nursing home abuse works with countless lawyers, a wound care expert and sold a tech company to a major corporation. As you can imagine not a easy personality but very knowledgable and a visionary. I also think very highly of Brenda, great chair of PAC, quality control expert and expert in long term care. Perhaps you have others to consider...

So glad to see Ellie Krieger on the list I think her notoriety will be a great asset. I notice long term care or geriatrics does not seem to be represented. You may have someone that can fill that position. If not I may have some ideas of who can fill into that space.

Aside from my suggestion I approve. Thanks, Lucille

Pat, Donna, Lucille, Cathy

I took a cursory look at the International Accreditation Process for Education Program for Dietitian-Nutritionists and one thought immediately came to mind regarding possible negative unintended consequence if we are somehow not part of this:

I think many USA academic institutions that currently are NOT accredited by us would be attracted to this accreditation and some currently accredited by us with a nutrition program would consider that accreditation. Why? The marketing appeal, esp. with online, the current competitive higher ed environment, and emphasis on global learning to be able to say your institution has an INTERNATIONAL accreditation. The image and marketing cache that could come out of that could drown out all our yelling about how we are better quality, etc. In addition, prospective students may feel like they will have a competitive edge in the national and international labor market, in emerging health promotion areas where the RDN might be nice but not required, in international jobs, in jobs in other countries, etc. It could move us/the image of our accredited programs/grad to a lower second tier of grads who are considered clinicians specific to US practice needs.

I think we need to think about this very carefully – not outright reject or accept – but try to find a way to make sure we are part of this hence risk becoming seen as a secondary or less desirable option.

I took a cursory look at the International Accreditation Process for Education Program for Dietitian-Nutritionists and one thought immediately came to mind regarding possible negative unintended consequence if we are somehow not part of this:

I think many USA academic institutions that currently are NOT accredited by us would be attracted to this accreditation and some currently accredited by us with a nutrition program would consider that accreditation. Why? The marketing appeal, esp. with online, the current competitive higher ed environment, and emphasis on global learning to be able to say your institution has an INTERNATIONAL accreditation. The image and marketing cache that could come out of that could drown out all our yelling about how we are better quality, etc. In addition, prospective students may feel like they will have a competitive edge in the national and international labor market, in emerging health promotion areas where the RDN might be nice but not required, in international jobs, in jobs in other countries, etc. It could move us/the image of our accredited programs/grad to a lower second tier of grads who are considered clinicians specific to US practice needs.

I think we need to think about this very carefully – not outright reject or accept – but try to find a way to make sure we are part of this hence risk becoming seen as a secondary or less desirable option.

Action Alert: Ask Congress to Suspend the Medicare Competitive Bidding Program for Diabetes Testing Supplies

In 2011, Medicare tested a Competitive Bidding Program aimed to save money and to maintain the quality of care for patients. Although the Government Accountability Office (GAO) issued a report in 2012 stating that there was insufficient data on the programs effectiveness, Medicare launched the program nationwide in 2013.

A recent peer-reviewed article in the American Diabetes Associations Diabetes Care journal, demonstrated that the Medicare Competitive Bidding Program for diabetes testing supplies has led to needless deaths, more hospitalizations and increased costs. Despite this, Medicare still plans to request new competitive bids on July 1. The Diabetes Care and Education Dietetic Practice Group leadership has been very active and voiced concerns for patients unable to receive supplies needed.

So here are the next steps:

1. Exercise your voice. We are asking you to take action now and urge Congress to suspend the Competitive Bidding Program. Your efforts will help reverse this trend of harmful practice for our patients.

TAKE ACTION TODAY!

2. Make a contribution to ANDPAC. The funds help the Academy support decision makers who understand the importance of quality of care for diabetes patients. Because of relationships built through ANDPAC, the Academy actively voices concerns for patients unable to receive diabetes testing supplies.

Thank you for taking action today!

Dr. Evelyn F. Crayton, RDN, LDN, FAND

President, 2015-2016

The Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics Political Action Committee is a separate segregated fund of the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics used to support candidates and elected officials. Academy members are not required to contribute to ANDPAC and there is no reprisal for not contributing. Amounts recommended for contribution in Academy publications are merely suggestions and there is no minimum contribution level.

Yes these are important points. I have need thinking about that and trying to be positive but have options. Maybe we can have discussions with the Canada and Australia folks to identify options we can present as a group consensus. Maybe a tiered accreditation such as level 1 and 2 where 2 is recognized as higher and schools can opt and US, Canada and Australia are in the 2 tier. We would need to help identify scopes of practice but at least we are in there and represent the level to which others can aspire. Just a thought.

I took a cursory look at the International Accreditation Process for Education Program for Dietitian-Nutritionists and one thought immediately came to mind regarding possible negative unintended consequence if we are somehow not part of this:

I think many USA academic institutions that currently are NOT accredited by us would be attracted to this accreditation and some currently accredited by us with a nutrition program would consider that accreditation. Why? The marketing appeal, esp. with online, the current competitive higher ed environment, and emphasis on global learning to be able to say your institution has an INTERNATIONAL accreditation. The image and marketing cache that could come out of that could drown out all our yelling about how we are better quality, etc. In addition, prospective students may feel like they will have a competitive edge in the national and international labor market, in emerging health promotion areas where the RDN might be nice but not required, in international jobs, in jobs in other countries, etc. It could move us/the image of our accredited programs/grad to a lower second tier of grads who are considered clinicians specific to US practice needs.

I think we need to think about this very carefully – not outright reject or accept – but try to find a way to make sure we are part of this hence risk becoming seen as a secondary or less desirable option.

We would like both of you involved as the speakers for the first session - approximately a 45 time block. Once we have the legislative sessions finalized we will assist with the direction we would expect for the first session. Once we have the additional details, we will schedule a time to talk over a conference call.

Please confirm that you will be attending PPW and willing to serve as opening session speakers.

I look forward to working with both of you.

Hi. Have been thinking about the tours and want to say that if you have never seen a flamenco show then you should really consider it. Sorry was only thinking of myself yesterday when I did not recommend it. I would not be interested in going, have seen it, but you should consider it.

BTW Pat when the hotel reservations are made they can make some for me too that would be great. Cathy made reservations for two rooms to include me but it would be nice if she doesn't have to put that on her credit card.

Thx, and nice talking with you all. Look forward to spending time together. Enjoy the weekend.

Good morning:

Just following up with you to see if you received the PPW travel information sent a few weeks ago and if you have already made travel arrangements. If you did not receive the information, I am including it below. You may disregard the previous deadline date mentioned in the email but, please make every attempt to make your arrangements as soon as possible. See below:

Dear ANDPAC and LPPC leaders,

We are looking forward to a successful Public Policy Workshop (PPW) in Washington DC! This message will provide you the information you need in order to:

- Register for PPW 2016 using the complementary registration code
- Make your travel arrangements

Please make your travel arrangements no later than Friday, April 22, 2016 and forward a copy of your travel information to me.

PPW Meeting Schedule Guidance:

- Thursday, 6/23/2016 PPW Opening Session, 3:00 p.m. Eastern Time
- LPPC leaders are scheduled to attend the PPC and PAL meeting at 2:00 p.m.
 - ANDPAC leaders are scheduled to assist with the ANDPAC booth at 2:00 p.m.

- Friday, 6/24/2016 ANDPAC Signature Breakfast and Hill Visits
- LPPC and ANDPAC leaders are asked to leave on Friday. Please work with your affiliate to schedule your Hill visits in order to accommodate flights out on Friday.

Travel Guidance for PPW 2016:

Please Note: Leaders should plan to arrive on Thursday morning and depart on Friday. We recommend flying into Reagan Washington National Airport (DCA), but Dulles (IAD) and Baltimore Washington Airport (BWI) are also options that may offer additional flights and better airfares. You would need to plan additional time for travel and there are cost-effective options for these airports for which we can provide assistance.

Also, if your arrival and departure dates outside of the approved dates require advance approval, please contact Christine Rhone at dctemp@eatright.org prior to booking your travel. As a reminder, you can “hold” your trip for up to 24 hours if necessary in the system.

Pat, Donna, Lucille, Cathy

I took a cursory look at the International Accreditation Process for Education Program for Dietitian-Nutritionists and one thought immediately came to mind regarding possible negative unintended consequence if we are somehow not part of this:

I think many USA academic institutions that currently are NOT accredited by us would be attracted to this accreditation and some currently accredited by us with a nutrition program would consider that accreditation. Why? The marketing appeal, esp. with online, the current competitive higher ed environment, and emphasis on global learning to be able to say your institution has an INTERNATIONAL accreditation. The image and marketing cache that could come out of that could drown out all our yelling about how we are better quality, etc. In addition, prospective students may feel like they will have a competitive edge in the national and international labor market, in emerging health promotion areas where the RDN might be nice but not required, in international jobs, in jobs in other countries, etc. It could move us/the image of our accredited programs/grad to a lower second tier of grads who are considered clinicians specific to US practice needs.

I think we need to think about this very carefully – not outright reject or accept – but try to find a way to make sure we are part of this hence risk becoming seen as a secondary or less desirable option.

Good morning:

Just following up with you to see if you received the PPW travel information sent a few weeks ago and if you have already made travel arrangements. If you did not receive the information, I am including it below. You may disregard the previous deadline date mentioned in the email but, please make every attempt to make your arrangements as soon as possible. See below:

Dear ANDPAC and LPPC leaders,

We are looking forward to a successful Public Policy Workshop (PPW) in Washington DC! This message will provide you the information you need in order to:

- Register for PPW 2016 using the complementary registration code
- Make your travel arrangements

Please make your travel arrangements no later than Friday, April 22, 2016 and forward a copy of your travel information to me.

PPW Meeting Schedule Guidance:

Thursday, 6/23/2016 PPW Opening Session, 3:00 p.m. Eastern Time

- LPPC leaders are scheduled to attend the PPC and PAL meeting at 2:00 p.m.
- ANDPAC leaders are scheduled to assist with the ANDPAC booth at 2:00 p.m.

Friday, 6/24/2016 ANDPAC Signature Breakfast and Hill Visits

- LPPC and ANDPAC leaders are asked to leave on Friday. Please work with your affiliate to schedule your Hill visits in order to accommodate flights out on Friday.

Travel Guidance for PPW 2016:

Please Note: Leaders should plan to arrive on Thursday morning and depart on Friday. We recommend flying into Reagan Washington National Airport (DCA), but Dulles (IAD) and Baltimore Washington Airport (BWI) are also options that may offer additional flights and better airfares. You would need to plan additional time for travel and there are cost-effective options for these airports for which we can provide assistance.

Also, if your arrival and departure dates outside of the approved dates require advance approval, please contact Christine Rhone at dctemp@eatright.org prior to booking your travel. As a reminder, you can “hold” your trip for up to 24 hours if necessary in the system.

Academy Travel Store Important Information – Please Read

In order for your airfare to be charged to the Academy credit card on file, you must have an active Traveler Profile in Deem@work® (formerly aXiom), the online booking tool for the Academy Travel Desk. If you previously had a profile in aXiom, visit the Deem to add your profile to Deem@work.

If you previously have NOT had a traveler profile, please contact Rebecca McHale and you will receive an activation email from Deem@work within two (2) business days prompting you to complete your profile.

The 2016 Food & Nutrition Conference & Expo™ (FNCE®) will be held October 15-18 in Boston, Massachusetts preceded by the House Leadership Team (HLT) meeting on October 13 and the House of Delegates meeting October 14-15. We traditionally have held a Board meeting immediately following FNCE®, however based on feedback from Board members after the October 2015 meeting, we will instead hold a face to face meeting in November.

The Executive Office staff will make your reservations at the FNCE® headquarters hotel, Westin Boston Waterfront, for arrival on Thursday, October 13 and departure on Tuesday, October 18. For members of the HLT, we will make your hotel reservations for arrival on Wednesday, October 12. If your arrival and departure dates are otherwise, please notify me. Your hotel room will be master-billed; you will be asked to pay for incidentals.

Complimentary FNCE® registration is now open. Registration instructions follow:

- Complete your registration online by going to www.eatrightfnce.org
- o Click on the "Attend" tab

- o Select the Registration link
- o In the New Registration section on the left side, enter the registration code “2016BOD” under your name

You are approved to make your travel arrangements for FNCE®; see instructions below. In order for your airfare to be charged to the Academy credit card on file, you must have an active Traveler Profile in the Academy’s online booking tool Deem@work® (formerly aXiom). If you do not have a traveler profile, please contact Rebecca McHale at rmchale@eatright.org and you will receive an activation email from Deem@work® within two business days prompting you to complete your profile. If you wish to book your travel on your own, please submit your expenses for reimbursement after the conclusion of the meeting.

Thanks Lucille. I am suggesting that a member who has worked on the EAL represent AND at this important meeting. Ester Myers' name came to mind, in that she was our Scientific Officer in charge of its' development.

Last year we sent a member who was knowledgeable in the area of CHD instead of the Past President.

We are looking forward to a successful Public Policy Workshop (PPW) in Washington DC! This message will provide you the information you need in order to:

- Register for PPW 2016 using the complementary registration code
- Make your travel arrangements

Please make your travel arrangements no later than Friday, April 22, 2016 and forward a copy of your travel information to me.

PPW Meeting Schedule Guidance:

Thursday, 6/23/2016 PPW Opening Session, 3:00 p.m. Eastern Time

Travel Guidance for PPW 2016:

Please Note: Leaders should plan to arrive on Thursday morning and depart on Friday. We recommend flying into Reagan Washington National Airport (DCA), but Dulles (IAD) and Baltimore Washington Airport (BWI) are also options that may offer additional flights and better airfares. You would need to plan additional time for travel and there are cost-effective options for these airports for which we can provide assistance.

To raise awareness of the importance of research in dietetics, the Academy is declaring May as Research Month. The Academy promotes evidence-based practice and urges members to become involved in the research process. Practice-based research activity is critical to discovering not only how nutrition interventions affect different disease states, but also how they impact outcomes and the lives of patients. In addition, practice-based research in community settings fills a public health function and determines the role of nutrition in achieving a healthy population.

Hello Evelyn, Lucille, Sonja, and Donna,

With input from the Academy and Foundation BODs, the HOD, many internal and external stakeholder interviews, consultants and staff, the final version of the Second Century summit name and task has been developed, and are presented below. These will be included in the summit save-the-date communications which will be sent next week to the first round of member invitees. Your feedback today or tomorrow is appreciated, especially if there is any strongly negative opposition to them.

Name: The Nutrition Impact Summit: Connecting Strengths, Inspiring Innovation, Scaling Up Solutions

Task: How might we accelerate progress toward good health and well-being for all people through collaboration across food, wellness, and healthcare systems?

Hello Evelyn, Lucille, Sonja, and Donna,

With input from the Academy and Foundation BODs, the HOD, many internal and external stakeholder interviews, consultants and staff, the final version of the Second Century summit name and task has been developed, and are presented below. These will be included in the summit save-the-date communications which will be sent next week to the first round of member invitees. Your feedback today or tomorrow is appreciated, especially if there is any strongly negative opposition to them.

Name: The Nutrition Impact Summit: Connecting Strengths, Inspiring Innovation, Scaling Up Solutions

Task: How might we accelerate progress toward good health and well-being for all people through collaboration across food, wellness, and healthcare systems?

Thank you!

Hi Steve,

First, congratulations on your new position! The Federal Reserve is very lucky to have you and the honor spills over to the Academy. Knowing Janet Yellen is fantastic and now we have an "in" with you which may open the door to her being a keynote speaker at a future FNCE!

We will miss your perspective next week at the meeting but it is perfectly understandable you need to be acclimated to your new role. Again, congratulations!

Pat,

I believe that you are aware that I very recently moved from Cornell University to a new role on the Board of the Federal Reserve of the United States.

Unfortunately, this means that I won't be able to make the upcoming Board meeting in Chicago. They simply have me scheduled with so many 1-1 and group meetings that there's no way I can break away for two days this early in my tenure. I'm operating under the assumption that this will be a short-lived phenomenon and that I will be able to return to regular participation in Academy sessions shortly.

I apologize in advance for missing next week's meeting. Frankly, I had forgotten just how crazy the first few weeks on a major new role can be!

Steve

PS - Good news. I have had a chance to meet Janet Yellen. VERY nice lady.

Hi Steve,

First, congratulations on your new position! The Federal Reserve is very lucky to have you and the honor spills over to the Academy. Knowing Janet Yellen is fantastic and now we have an "in" with you which may open the door to her being a keynote speaker at a future FNCE!

We will miss your perspective next week at the meeting but it is perfectly understandable you need to be acclimated to your new role. Again, congratulations!

Best,

Pat

Unfortunately, this means that I won't be able to make the upcoming Board meeting in Chicago. I'm operating under the assumption that this will be a short-lived phenomenon and that I will be able to return to regular participation in Academy sessions shortly.

I apologize in advance for missing next week's meeting. Frankly, I had forgotten just how crazy the first few weeks on a major new role can be!

Action Alert: Ask Congress to Suspend the Medicare Competitive Bidding Program for Diabetes Testing Supplies

The Academy opened a new action alert. An Academy action alert email message will be sent to all members on Friday, May 6. You can take action here today!

In 2011, Medicare tested a Competitive Bidding Program aimed to save money and to maintain the quality of care for patients. Although the Government Accountability Office (GAO) issued a report in 2012 stating that there was insufficient data on the programs' effectiveness, Medicare launched the program nationwide in 2013.

A recent peer-reviewed article in the American Diabetes Association's Diabetes Care journal, demonstrates that the Medicare Competitive Bidding Program for diabetes testing supplies has led to needless deaths, more hospitalizations and increased costs. Despite this, Medicare still plans to request new competitive bids on July 1. Diabetes Care and Education DPG leadership has been very active and voiced concerns for patients unable to receive supplies needed.

Action Alert Senate Bill: Child Nutrition and Hunger Programs

Please send your members a reminder about supporting the Senate Agriculture Committee's bipartisan reauthorization of child nutrition programs bill, titled the Improving Child Nutrition Integrity and Access Act of 2016.

As of today, only 4.6 % or 3,382 Academy members have responded to the action alert. The Senators need to know that their constituents strongly support this bill, which incorporates many of the Academy's recommendations to support healthy meals and promote nutrition education for our children. We expect a vote on this bill in the Senate later this spring.

Please send the following message to your membership:

*Subject line: Action Alert: Child Nutrition and Hunger Programs in the Senate

Your Senators need to know that their constituents strongly support the bi-partisan Child Nutrition Integrity and Access Act of 2016, which incorporates many of the Academy's recommendations to support healthy meals and promote nutrition education for our children.

Joan, Is the Academy going to be doing headshots at the May BOD meeting for the incoming board members? I had one done in Denver, but really hate it. Do you think there is anyway to have another one done in Chicago if we are doing them at the May board meeting? I would be glad to personally pay to have mine taken again. Thanks!

Greetings from ACEND,

The Accreditation Council for Education in Nutrition and Dietetics (ACEND[®]) is writing to keep you informed of our standards development work. A copy of the May update is posted on the ACEND Standards webpage www.eatrightacend.org/ACEND/Standards.

The Mayupdate explains how the associate degree practitioner prepared in the proposed future education model will be a different practitioner than the associate degree practitioner prepared under the current ACEND accreditation standards (2012 and 2017 draft standards). The update also answers questions we received at the March NDEP meetings and the April ACEND virtual town hall meeting. We invite all stakeholders who are interested in learning more about the work of ACEND to attend these meetings which are held the second Thursday of each month at 11:30 a.m. Central Time. The next meeting will occur May 12. Information for connecting to the virtual town hall is posted on the ACEND Standards webpage www.eatrightacend.org/ACEND/Standards.

We also would like to remind you to provide input on the draft 2017 Accreditation Standards at the following survey link prior to Friday, May 13, 2016.

•<https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/2017Std2>

The 2017 draft standards are the result of a planned five-year review cycle of the current 2012 Accreditation Standards to ensure compliance with USDE regulations; and are different from the future education model associate's, bachelor's and master's degree standards that will be released for public comment later this year.

Please share this information with your constituents/colleagues. If you or they have questions, please send them to acend@eatright.org or call 312-899-4872, so we can respond to them. Future editions of the monthly update will include these questions and an ACEND response.

Thank you so much.

Did You Know?

Although the terms certificate and certification are often used interchangeably in the marketplace, there is a difference.

A certificate program is an intensive training program with a component that assesses the participant. Upon completion of the program, participants receive a certificate attesting to the attainment of a new knowledge/skill set (e.g., Academy/CDR Certificate Program in Adult Weight Management). Unlike a certification program, participants do not receive a professional designation. Individuals completing a Certificate program receive CPEUs for training and assessment time regardless of whether they pass the post-course assessment and receive the certificate.

A certification is a process, often voluntary, by which individuals who have demonstrated the level of knowledge and skill required in the profession, occupation, role, or skill are identified to the public and other stakeholders. Certification eligibility requirements often include specific academic degrees, and documented supervised years of work experience in the profession, plus successful completion of a rigorous examination. Examples of certification programs include the registered dietitian, and dietetic technician, registered programs administered by CDR.

CDR News Highlights

Congratulations to CDR's 100,000th Credentialed Practitioner

"It is quite an honor to become a Registered Dietitian. The "RD" letters not only represent being a member of a dynamic and evolving field, but also the countless hours of time, determination, and effort spent to attain the title. It is even more of an honor to be the 100,000th person in the history of the profession to achieve the RD status. I cannot thank the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics and the Commission on Dietetic Registration enough for their support and guidance throughout this process and the opportunities they have offered to allow me to achieve my goals."

Sam Kramer, MS, RD

Practice Competencies Initiative

The CDR Competency Assurance Panel collaborated with the Academy's Quality Management Committee on the development of dietetics practice competencies and performance indicators. These competencies and performance indicators will replace the current learning need codes for the Professional Development Portfolio recertification system in 2015 beginning with new registrants whose registration begins on or after June 2nd, 2015 and current registrants beginning their June 1, 2016 recertification cycle. An article describing the development and validation of the practice competencies was published in the June 2015 Journal of the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics.

The CDR website has been updated to include a Practice Competencies section which includes several practitioner resources including recordings of webinar presentations made during 2015-2016.

CDR has scheduled several webinars to introduce CDR credentialed practitioners and students to the new Professional Development Portfolio practice competencies. Practitioner webinars are scheduled on:

- Monday, April 18, 2016 at 12:00 noon central time. Registration information is available at the following link: Click here to register
- Thursday, May 5, 2016 at 12:00 noon central time. Registration information is available at the following link: Click here to register

Student webinar is scheduled for:

- Wednesday, April 20, 2016 at 12:00 noon central time. Registration information is available at the following link: Click here to register
- For additional information go to <http://www.cdrnet.org/competencies>.
- All webinars will be recorded and placed on the CDR website.

Hi Lucille,

Great point – Let's plan for a 2.5 hour time frame instead. I will work with staff to pre-record presentations for viewing by BOD members in advance of the orientation. That way we can focus on duties and responsibilities of the Board, i.e., duties of loyalty, confidentiality, conflict of interest, representation at meeting, etc.

We can hold the orientation any time throughout the month of June that works for your schedules – if that may open up more dates.

Hi Lucille,

Great point – Let's plan for a 2.5 hour time frame instead. I will work with staff to pre-record presentations for viewing by BOD members in advance of the orientation. That way we can focus on duties and responsibilities of the Board, i.e., duties of loyalty, confidentiality, conflict of interest, representation at meeting, etc.

We can hold the orientation any time throughout the month of June that works for your schedules – if that may open up more dates.

Dear Donna,

I, along with my colleague, Milton Stokes, would like to invite you to a unique opportunity for leaders in the retail, foodservice and culinary industries who are passionate about produce. Given all of your fabulous work in school foodservice—and the wonderful recognition you have received by the FLOTUS and others—we do hope you can attend. Your leadership and perspectives are so important.

The Monsanto Vegetable Seeds Immersion and Field Day Experience is scheduled for August 8-10, 2016 in Sacramento, CA. This event is focused on the produce supply chain – from seed to supermarket to sauté pan.

In addition to this correspondence, you will receive a separate RSVP email from “Monsanto Vegetables Seeds” in the next week or so. This email will include your unique registration link with detailed event information, including directions for scheduling your travel. In the interim, some key highlights of this Monsanto immersion experience include:

EVENT OVERVIEW

Arrival Date and Time: Monday, August 8th by 2:00 pm for opening networking reception, beginning at 4:00 pm.

DAY 1, Tuesday, August 9th. The focus for the day is Produce Supply Chain. Sessions include:

- Trend Tracking: Hear the latest produce trends for increasing consumption.
- The Dish on Today's Produce Global Supply Chain: Gain an in-depth understanding of the economic trends, players and evolving nature of the produce global supply chain.
- Creating Opportunities for Better Understanding and Closer Collaboration among Grower-Shippers, Distributors and Foodservice Operators: Discuss opportunities for synergies, partnerships and produce promotion with industry experts from across the supply chain.
- Cultivating Produce to Meet Consumer Demand for Flavor and Quality as well as to Ensure a Consistent, Reliable Supply: The value chain, including the consumer, expects a year-round, consistent quality supply of all their produce favorites.

- Dig-In Dialogue with Monsanto's Chief Technology Officer, Robb Fraley, PhD: Ask anything in this rapid-fire discussion with Monsanto's leading agriculture innovator.

DAY 2, Wednesday, August 10th. The focus for the day is Produce Products and Consumers.

- In-Field Vegetable Breeder Chats and Produce Tastings: Prepare to get dirty (okay, not that dirty) as we spend the morning in the field talking with breeders of melons, onions, tomatoes, sweet and hot peppers. We will discuss (and taste) the qualities and traits of high interest to consumers and farmers throughout the world.
- Flavor, Quality and Consistent Supply: What More Do Chefs and Volume Foodservice Operators Want?: Share your wish list for produce given current needs and future trends.

Departure Date and Time: Our program ends with lunch on Wednesday, August 10th (airline departures from Sacramento at or after 3 pm).

Expenses: Travel expenses (air travel as well as hotel, meals and ground transportation associated with the event) will be covered by Monsanto.

We do hope you will join us; we would be delighted to host you this year. Please RSVP at your earliest convenience as space is limited. NOTE: A separate email from "Monsanto Vegetable Seeds" will include your unique registration link with detailed event information, including directions for scheduling your travel.

We look forward to hearing from you soon. Please feel free to contact me if you have any questions about anything at all.

The President-elect's role on committees varies in participation. Your role for instance on the Committee for Lifelong Learning is not to review FNCE session proposals, but rather to provide an overview of the Academy's strategic direction to guide the committee in its decision-making. Staff supporting each of the boards/committees will be sending you orientation materials and more details.

You will be asked to present at Affiliate, DPG and MIG meetings. Affiliate, DPG and MIG invitations are discussed on the 4Ps calls. Please e-mail the 3Ps (Lucille, Evelyn, Pat) and Joan Schwaba (jschwaba@eatright.org) which invitations you accept, their dates and locations so we can develop a calendar of events. A copy of the 2016-17 Presidents' Calendar is attached. The calendar is a standing agenda item for each 4Ps meeting. Representation at other organizational meetings should be discussed with me and the 3Ps to track these and to avoid representation duplication; for example, the Chief Science Officer attends the annual Experimental Biology meeting but you may also receive an invite. Attached are the Representation at Meetings policies which provide information on Academy representation at Affiliate, DPG and MIG meetings and at other organizations.

To make your travel arrangements for these meetings, you are encouraged to use ATC Travel Management www.atcmeetings.com/Academy and enter the GL Code 1032430 and Meeting Authorization Code 9198834.

While serving on the Board in one of the three presidential positions, you are entitled to the following:

- Monthly Stipend
- Academy American Express card

- Academy Business Cards

Monthly Stipend

As President-elect, you will receive a $750 monthly stipend. This stipend is intended to help cover any incidental expenses that you may incur as President-elect and will increase to $2,000 in June, 2017 to cover expenses during your year as President. As Immediate Former-president, the stipend decreases back to $750. You will receive your first stipend in June, 2016. It will be directly deposited into your bank account the first week of every month and you will receive an email the day prior notifying you of the deposit. No paperwork is required for use of the stipend. In addition to the stipend you will be reimbursed for all expenses incurred on behalf of and approved by the Academy.

American Express Card

As President-elect, you are offered an American Express card to use during your three-year tenure on the Board. The primary benefit of providing this card is to give you another line of credit to use for the expenses you will incur during your tenure. The Academy pays the credit card fee, however, you will be responsible for paying any expenses incurred on the card that are personal. Any reimbursable expenses would require you to submit to the Academy an expense reimbursement form. The Academy will reimburse you either by check or direct deposit, so please let us know which method you prefer. If you are not currently set up for direct deposit and would like to be, please contact Joan (jschwaba@eatright.org or 312-899-4798) and she will work with the Accounting Services Team to begin the process.

Please let me know if you want a card, and we will fill out the information and mail it to you for your signature.

Business Cards

As President-elect you receive Academy business and note cards for your use when representing the Academy.

I look forward to working with you and I will make sure we schedule some “alone time” for any questions you may have. As always, please contact me anytime!

Yes, the call is at 12:30pm CT. I am reattaching the agenda and all the supporting materials in one email. I'm sorry they were sent piecemeal. That may have caused confusion with the initial agenda sent a couple of weeks ago before we changed the time/date.

Talk to you soon!

Subject: Headshots

Joan, Is the Academy going to be doing headshots at the May BOD meeting for the incoming board members? I had one done in Denver, but really hate it. Do you think there is anyway to have another one done in Chicago if we are doing them at the May board meeting? I would be glad to personally pay to have mine taken again. Thanks!

Maria, I decided to bother you instead of Paul on this issue. I went on-line today and donated $250 to ANDPAC and $250 to the Foundation. I did it with my credit card, but have yet to receive any kind of confirmation? The website said they would email me confirmation, but that was over an hour ago. Do you have any way of checking to see if the transactions went through? After what we were talking about with the website today on the FAC call I hope this is not another issue with the website. I would think the notification would be immediate like most web sites? If I put something in wrong it should have notified me of that also. Sorry to bother you, but I usually give Paul a check at the FAC face to face meeting, but since we are not having one I thought I better go on line and donate instead. Missed being able to see you at our usual F2F meeting. Hope you are doing well. Thanks for your help with this issue.

My apologies for not responding sooner but we were out all last week at our National Leadership Conference meeting.

Yes we are more than happy to extend a comp registration for Donna Martin at ANC this year, and appreciate the reciprocal arrangement to send one of our leaders to FNCE this year. Attached is a link for the ANC registration form. Just fill out and write -- COMP PER P MONTAGUE – on top and send back to me and I will have it processed.

Pat, I am very interested in going to this event, but wanted to check with you to make sure there was not any conflict of interest since it was a Monsanto event. They have asked if I would like to bring someone from the Academy to it also in a second email. What are your thoughts? I would love to continue to get educated about this subject as it might be useful information for the Second Century Summit. Monsanto is paying all expenses.

Dear Donna,

I, along with my colleague, Milton Stokes, would like to invite you to a unique opportunity for leaders in the retail, foodservice and culinary industries who are passionate about produce. Given all of your fabulous work in school foodservice—and the wonderful recognition you have received by the FLOTUS and others—we do hope you can attend. Your leadership and perspectives are so important.

The Monsanto Vegetable Seeds Immersion and Field Day Experience is scheduled for August 8-10, 2016 in Sacramento, CA. This event is focused on the produce supply chain – from seed to supermarket to sauté pan.

In addition to this correspondence, you will receive a separate RSVP email from “Monsanto Vegetables Seeds” in the next week or so. This email will include your unique registration link with detailed event information, including directions for scheduling your travel. In the interim, some key highlights of this Monsanto immersion experience include:

EVENT OVERVIEW

Arrival Date and Time: Monday, August 8th by 2:00 pm for opening networking reception, beginning at 4:00 pm.

DAY 1, Tuesday, August 9th. The focus for the day is Produce Supply Chain. Sessions include:

- Trend Tracking: Hear the latest produce trends for increasing consumption.
- The Dish on Today's Produce Global Supply Chain: Gain an in-depth understanding of the economic trends, players and evolving nature of the produce global supply chain.
- Creating Opportunities for Better Understanding and Closer Collaboration among Grower-Shippers, Distributors and Foodservice Operators: Discuss opportunities for synergies, partnerships and produce promotion with industry experts from across the supply chain.
- Cultivating Produce to Meet Consumer Demand for Flavor and Quality as well as to Ensure a Consistent, Reliable Supply: The value chain, including the consumer, expects a year-round, consistent quality supply of all their produce favorites.
- Dig-In Dialogue with Monsanto's Chief Technology Officer, Robb Fraley, PhD: Ask anything in this rapid-fire discussion with Monsanto's leading agriculture innovator.

DAY 2, Wednesday, August 10th. The focus for the day is Produce Products and Consumers.

- In-Field Vegetable Breeder Chats and Produce Tastings: Prepare to get dirty (okay, not that dirty) as we spend the morning in the field talking with breeders of melons, onions, tomatoes, sweet and hot peppers. We will discuss (and taste) the qualities and traits of high interest to consumers and farmers throughout the world.

· Flavor, Quality and Consistent Supply: What More Do Chefs and Volume Foodservice Operators Want?: Share your wish list for produce given current needs and future trends.

Departure Date and Time: Our program ends with lunch on Wednesday, August 10th (airline departures from Sacramento at or after 3 pm).

Expenses: Travel expenses (air travel as well as hotel, meals and ground transportation associated with the event) will be covered by Monsanto.

We do hope you will join us; we would be delighted to host you this year. Please RSVP at your earliest convenience as space is limited. NOTE: A separate email from “Monsanto Vegetable Seeds” will include your unique registration link with detailed event information, including directions for scheduling your travel.

We look forward to hearing from you soon. Please feel free to contact me if you have any questions about anything at all.

House Introduces Child Nutrition Bill

The House of Representatives' Committee on Education and the Workforce introduced their version of child nutrition reauthorization, which sets the scope of programs like National School Breakfast and Lunch Program, Farm to School, Child and Adult Care Food Program, Fresh Fruit and Vegetable program, and WIC. This is the next step in reauthorizing these important programs, but we are cautious as this bill aligns with very few Academy recommendations. We believe that this bill will be debated very soon. The Academy continues to work with its partners to ensure that these important programs are strengthened and protected. To read more, see this week's Eat Right Weekly.

New Action Alert: Ask Congress to Suspend the Medicare Competitive Bidding Program for Diabetes Testing Supplies

The Academy opened a new action alert. An Academy action alert email message will be sent to all members later this week. You can take action here today!

In 2011, Medicare tested a Competitive Bidding Program aimed to save money and to maintain the quality of care for patients. Although the Government Accountability Office (GAO) issued a report in 2012 stating that there was insufficient data on the programs' effectiveness, Medicare launched the program nationwide in 2013.

A recent peer-reviewed article in the American Diabetes Association's Diabetes Care journal, which shows that the Medicare Competitive Bidding Program for diabetes testing supplies has led to needless deaths, more hospitalizations and increased costs. Despite this, Medicare still plans to put out new competitive bids on July 1. DCE leadership has been very active and voiced concerns for patients unable to receive supplies needed. We are asking you to take action now and urge Congress to suspend the Competitive Bidding Program. Your efforts will help reverse this trend of harmful practice for our patients.

Action Alert Senate Bill: Child Nutrition and Hunger Programs

Please send your members a reminder about supporting the Senate Agriculture Committee's bipartisan reauthorization of child nutrition programs bill, titled the Improving Child Nutrition Integrity and Access Act of 2016.

As of today, only 4.3 % or 3,164 Academy members have responded to the action alert. The Senators need to know that their constituents strongly support this bill, which incorporates many of the Academy's recommendations to support healthy meals and promote nutrition education for our children. We expect a vote on this bill in the Senate later this spring.

Please send the following message to your membership:

*Subject line: Action Alert: Child Nutrition and Hunger Programs in the Senate

Dear Colleague,

Your Senators need to know that their constituents strongly support the bi-partisan Child Nutrition Integrity and Access Act of 2016, which incorporates many of the Academy's recommendations to support healthy meals and promote nutrition education for our children.

Please take action today to support healthy meals for hungry children.

Thank you,

House Begins Annual Debate on Agriculture and Nutrition Spending

The Academy is closely watching as Congress is supposed to pass 24 spending bills addressing federal agency requests made by the President last February. Specifically, the Academy is watching four of these items – the Senate and House Agriculture and Labor, Health Human Services bills. In addition to the spending levels outlined in the legislation, the proposed policy changes, called "riders," are being monitored. This Fiscal Year 2017 spending deliberation started with the House Appropriations Committee debating the $21.3 billion agriculture and nutrition program spending bill which proposes $451 million less overall on agricultural programs than in FY 2016 and $281 million below President Barack Obama's FY 2017 request. USDA Final Rule Released Outlining Healthy Meals and Snacks in Child Care

A finalized rule released from USDA will strengthen nutrition standards for food and beverages served to young children and others in day care settings. Young children and adults in day care will now receive meals with more whole grains, a greater variety of vegetables and fruits, and less added sugars and solid fats. The science-based standards introduced in this final rule will elevate the nutritional quality of meals and snacks provided under the CACFP to better align with the Dietary Guidelines for Americans and to be consistent with the meals children receive as part of the National School Lunch Program (NSLP) and School Breakfast Program (SBP).

House Introduces Child Nutrition Bill

The House of Representatives' Committee on Education and the Workforce introduced their version of child nutrition reauthorization, which sets the scope of programs like National School Breakfast and Lunch Program, Farm to School, Child and Adult Care Food Program, Fresh Fruit and Vegetable program, and WIC. This is the next step in reauthorizing these important programs, but we are cautious as this bill aligns with very few Academy recommendations. We believe that this bill will be debated very soon. The Academy continues to work with its partners to ensure that these important programs are strengthened and protected. To read more, see this week's Eat Right Weekly.

New Action Alert: Ask Congress to Suspend the Medicare Competitive Bidding Program for Diabetes Testing Supplies

The Academy opened a new action alert. An Academy action alert email message will be sent to all members later this week. You can take action here today!

In 2011, Medicare tested a Competitive Bidding Program aimed to save money and to maintain the quality of care for patients. Although the Government Accountability Office (GAO) issued a report in 2012 stating that there was insufficient data on the programs' effectiveness, Medicare launched the program nationwide in 2013.

A recent peer-reviewed article in the American Diabetes Association's Diabetes Care journal, which shows that the Medicare Competitive Bidding Program for diabetes testing supplies has led to needless deaths, more hospitalizations and increased costs. Despite this, Medicare still plans to put out new competitive bids on July 1. DCE leadership has been very active and voiced concerns for patients unable to receive supplies needed. We are asking you to take action now and urge Congress to suspend the Competitive Bidding Program. Your efforts will help reverse this trend of harmful practice for our patients.

Action Alert Senate Bill: Child Nutrition and Hunger Programs

Please send your members a reminder about supporting the Senate Agriculture Committee's bipartisan reauthorization of child nutrition programs bill, titled the Improving Child Nutrition Integrity and Access Act of 2016.

As of today, only 4.3 % or 3,164 Academy members have responded to the action alert. The Senators need to know that their constituents strongly support this bill, which incorporates many of the Academy's recommendations to support healthy meals and promote nutrition education for our children. We expect a vote on this bill in the Senate later this spring.

Please send the following message to your membership:

*Subject line: Action Alert: Child Nutrition and Hunger Programs in the Senate

Dear Colleague,

Your Senators need to know that their constituents strongly support the bi-partisan Child Nutrition Integrity and Access Act of 2016, which incorporates many of the Academy's recommendations to support healthy meals and promote nutrition education for our children.

Please take action today to support healthy meals for hungry children.

Katie,

I hope that this email finds you well! We continue to be concerned about the impact of CEP provision in the House version of CNR. We know that you and your boss understand the impact in his district and we are so grateful for his support.

We also wanted to send along this great story from Burke County football team and hunger. It is a really telling story about the need in the Congressman's district.

<http://www.cbsnews.com/news/high-school-football-team-battles-malnutrition/>

We will be sending along an email that details our concerns later today, please let us know what else we can do as we look to mark up.

Many many many thanks!

Best,

Jenn

Katie,

Thank you for meeting with Donna yesterday. I know it meant a lot to her to connect with you. She sent the links below, and I have added the Academy's article on the visit.

Donna was also kind enough to talk about the impact of the change in CEP threshold to your district. I have attached the information for your review and cc-ed Donna to continue this conversation and to provide context if you have questions.

We are also hearing that there may be a markup next week? Do you have any insights on timing on moving this bill?

Many many thanks to you and your boss!

Very best,

Jenn

Hi Joan

My apologies for not responding sooner but we were out all last week at our National Leadership Conference meeting.

Yes we are more than happy to extend a comp registration for Donna Martin at ANC this year, and appreciate the reciprocal arrangement to send one of our leaders to FNCE this year. Attached is a link for the ANC registration form. Just fill out and write -- COMP PER P MONTAGUE – on top and send back to me and I will have it processed.

I know rooms are filling up at the Hyatt Regency which is the headquarters hotel, but if you get me the dates that Donna will need a hotel reservation, I will share that with our Meetings staff and they will get her in. Below is the link to hotels so you have information.

Katie,

I hope that this email finds you well! We continue to be concerned about the impact of CEP provision in the House version of CNR. We know that you and your boss understand the impact in his district and we are so grateful for his support.

We also wanted to send along this great story from Burke County football team and hunger. It is a really telling story about the need in the Congressman's district.

<http://www.cbsnews.com/news/high-school-football-team-battles-malnutrition/>

We will be sending along an email that details our concerns later today, please let us know what else we can do as we look to mark up.

Many many many thanks!

All,

The FY16 Forecast and FY17 Budget has been loaded onto the portal for you to review. It is a large deck, as always, that can be broken down into two sections;

1. Overview – Pages 1-19
2. Supporting detail – Pages 20 – 51

On the supporting detail pages, I attempted to identify the areas that are generating the “largest changes” in FY17 when compared to FY16. In some cases, there may not be anything material to address. For example, Rent and Utilities are going up $22K in 2017. The reason; higher operating expenses in the Chicago office. That’s all there is!! I hope the supporting detail gives you an idea of what the Academy is proposing.

As many of you already know, to arrive at this 51 page summary, we first start with every area of the business providing to us their expectations for the remainder of FY16 and for FY17. Once this is done, Christian and his team go through each project, identify concerns and sit with each manager who is responsible for the project, and their supervisor, to address changes. Once this has been done, I go through every project and look for more opportunity. This process was very successful this year. However, it didn't get us as far as we needed to be. Therefore, I drilled down into each project further and evaluated each line item. If the revenue was too high, I looked to adjust it. If the revenue was too low, a stretch objective was added. The same thing could be said for the expenses. In some cases, managers did not have enough expense. If this was the case, expenses were added. However, in most of the situations, expenses were cut.

The largest area of expense cuts was in travel. It will be a risk. However, it should not impact anyone's ability to manage the business. The biggest adjustments will come in our drive to use technology. For example, we did not budget for a Vice Chair Orientation or Affiliate training in Chicago in FY17. We will find a way to use technology to achieve the same effect. We also took a hard look at the travel expenses for staff at FNCE or to the host offices if there was an expectation of working remotely. Adjustments were made to be consistent and fair. For example, a remote supervisor will only get two trips to the host office (either Chicago or Washington DC) to manage their team in FY17. A non-supervising remote employee will have one trip available. You would be surprised how much money we saved on this issue alone. This does not mean people won't travel to Chicago or Washington DC. It just means they will travel less and have to package together the required meetings with the need to supervise staff.

As you go through this deck, please keep in mind quite a bit of this information has not been entirely disclosed to anyone, including staff. Please take notice of the footnote on page one of the deck; "Not to be disclosed outside of the Academy Finance and Audit Committee". When and how we communicate the information may determine success or failure. Internally, once the FAC approves the budget and recommends it to the Board for their approval, staff will be informed of budget changes, adjustments and impact. In most cases, there will not be too many surprises. However, Pat, Mary Beth and I should address it with the rest of the executive team first.

You will also find items in this deck that will impact the membership. Once approved, staff will create a communication plan. The communication plan will be critical to our success. So, disclosure before this is completed could either result in failure or in raising anxiety or stress unnecessarily. Since the most sensitive issues will not be implemented until the second half of FY17, we have given ourselves the time we need to effectively communicate to the membership the plans for FY17. Also, we want to make sure you, as well as the Board members, have all the information you need to help make the plan successful. Besides, you have every right to alter anything in this package before it goes to the Board. So, what you see now may not be what the Board gets to approve.

In any event, I look forward to talking to everyone next week. If you have not received the webinar invitation, please let me know as soon as possible.

Paul

The next 4Ps call was scheduled for Tuesday, April 26. Originally the FAC meeting was scheduled for April 27-28 and was recently changed to the 26th-27th. We still had it on our calendar for the 27th-28th, so we need to cancel. Attached is the agenda that was to be discussed. Pat is open on Thursday, April 28 at 2:00pm CT or Friday, April 29 at 12:00pm CT. Do either of these work for your schedules?

Subject: Annual Nutrition Conference

Joan, I would really like to attend the Annual Nutrition Conference (School Nutrition Association) again in San Antonio in July (10-13). Can you check with Pat to get approval and see about getting the complimentary registration again? Can you also see if they will get hotel accommodations for me too if it is approved for me to go? It is just like our annual meeting and hard to get hotel reservations, but I know they can make that happen. The School Nutrition Services Practice Group has asked me to come to some of their networking events already. I was not planning on going when the board retreat was conflicting with it, but now that we have cancelled that, I would really like to go. Thanks for your help as usual! Once I am on the P's calls, I know I will be able to get this handled without having to bother you!

Subject: Annual Nutrition Conference

Joan, I would really like to attend the Annual Nutrition Conference (School Nutrition Association) again in San Antonio in July (10-13). Can you check with Pat to get approval and see about getting the complimentary registration again? Can you also see if they will get hotel accommodations for me too if it is approved for me to go? It is just like our annual meeting and hard to get hotel reservations, but I know they can make that happen. The School Nutrition Services Practice Group has asked me to come to some of their networking events already. I was not planning on going when the board retreat was conflicting with it, but now that we have cancelled that, I would really like to go. Thanks for your help as usual! Once I am on the P's calls, I know I will be able to get this handled without having to bother you!

Subject: RE: IMPORTANT: Upcoming Meeting Information

Dear Board members,

I am sharing additional information regarding upcoming Board meetings. The decision not to have a face to face retreat meeting is stated below. I am asking however that you continue to save the retreat dates of July 9-11 for a webinar(s) in order that we address ongoing Board business. We also added a day to meet face to face immediately preceding the Second Century Summit. The Board meeting and Summit dates and times are provided in the email below. We will continue using webinars on focused topics, i.e., PCMH/ACO, Grassroots Advocacy, that were initiated this year.

Joan will be sending out a communication to incoming Board members regarding a June orientation webinar highlighting Board member roles and responsibilities and major Academy programs and policies. Any continuing Board members who would like to participate are welcome to do so. In October at our Board meeting in Nashville, you asked that we not hold our regularly scheduled meeting at FNCE®, therefore, are looking to meet face to face in November. Joan will be sending you an updated 2016-17 Board meeting calendar shortly.

Best regards,

Pat

Jenn and Mary Pat, Thanks for sending me this information. I found a couple of items in the letter that did not make sense. Feel free to take or leave suggestions. See below:

1. Require a review of the current rule on a la carte servings (probably just need to add of)2.
2. We recommend the Senate's Improving Child Nutrition Integrity and Access Act that provides incentives for improving verification numbers but also provides support at the state level for improved coordination of data systems, of which the continuing eligibility provision is a vital component

(need to add that or something else to make this make sense)

3. These provisions ensure that these effective WIC services are meeting the needs of the population the program is intended to serve. (add s to provision)

We wanted to give you a heads up that we are sending this letter to the House Ed and Workforce Committee staff on the majority side, the main authors of the discussion draft.

We plan to send this today from Evelyn and Pat, and if/when the a House bill is actually introduced we will may have more public statements.

As we mentioned last week, the Academy has been working with the Committee staff to make this bill incrementally better. We are sending this letter to formalize our recommendations.

Your thoughts are always welcome.

Very best,

If the Academy would like to send a representative to this meeting I would be glad to go, but only if this is a meeting that we need board representation at.

Dear Ms. Martin,

Allow me to introduce myself; my name is Florence Uruakpa and I met you at Buffalo NY at the CDR/AND certificate of training in childhood and adolescent weight management program held Sept 10-12, 2015. You were one of the speakers at the session (you presented on Day 3. You were the last speaker).

Also, we met at the airport when we were leaving Buffalo.

I am writing to ask if you'll find time (in your very busy schedule) to speak at one of the Symposia at the 2016 IFT Annual Meeting and Food Expo to be held in Chicago, IL in July 16-19, 2016.

I am the Chair of one of IFT's conference Symposia, and I'd like to invite you to speak at the symposium on "Obesity/weight management". It will be an honor to have you as a speaker for that symposium.

I have already submitted the proposal and preliminary update on the submitted proposal from IFT shows that it will be approved. I will know the status of the proposal by next week. If you'll be interested in serving as one of the speakers, I'll need more details on your accomplishments to include in my revised proposal to be submitted in 3 days (I'm assuming you'll be willing to accept my invitation to give a talk at the session).

Kindly respond back to me by Sunday Jan 31, 2016.

Rumblings in the House on Child Nutrition Programs

The House Education and the Workforce Committee is getting ready to debate child nutrition and hunger programs, like WIC, School Meals, Farm to School, Child and Adult Care Food Package and Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Program. The Academy continues to engage and work with members of Congress on this Committee to include our recommendations. We have sent a letter, from the Academy's President Dr. Crayton and the Chief Executive Officer Pat Babjak, with our thoughts on the Committee's discussion draft of the bill. We will keep you posted on any developments in the House, but also encourage you to push the Senate Action Alert on Child Nutrition programs to your members. The Senate bill has the majority of our recommendations and we need to show our support. If you have any questions please email Jenn Folliard.

Show Me the Money! Congress Debates 2017 Spending

The House Agriculture Appropriations sub-committee debated and passed a bill that funds programs like WIC, food and agriculture research, nutrition education through Team Nutrition, kitchen equipment grants and many other programs. The full Appropriations committee is set to debate this bill Tuesday at 11am. A full write of the hearing and the outcomes will be in Eat Right Weekly. Over the last 4 months the Academy has worked with members of Congress on the Appropriations Committee to submit specific funding requests for priority programs as well as submitted a letter with all of the funding priorities of the Academy within the Departments of Agriculture and Health and Human Services. The Academy is closely watching, over the next few months, as Congress debates spending priorities for 2017. We are especially watching out for policy changes or funding decreases that may impact the Dietary Guidelines for Americans, school meals and other nutrition programs.

Healthy People 2020 Webinar on Screening & Early Intervention for Diabetes

On April 19, the Diabetes Advocacy Alliance and the Office of Disease Prevention and Health Promotion at the Department of Health and Human Services will host a meeting with Healthy People 2020 Stakeholders. This is the 3rd meeting, and will focus on screening and early intervention for diabetes, as well as ways to promote the new United States Preventive Services Task Force (USPSTF) screening guideline. The Academy is a member in the Diabetes Advocacy Alliance. See the agenda and learn more here.

Academy Participates in Hill Day to Promote Public Health!

On April 19th, Academy staff lead a group of advocates on the Hill with the Coalition for Health Funding. The focus of the Coalition meetings will be urging lawmakers to join the new House Public Health Caucus, as well as continuing to educate staff on the importance of the public health continuum, including the importance of nutrition in public health. The day started with a kick-off breakfast featuring Rep. Rob Wittman as the speaker. Stay tuned for ways to follow-up with your member of Congress!

Please let us know if you have questions.

Best,

Teresa

Donna,

We wanted to give you a heads up that we are sending this letter to the House Ed and Workforce Committee staff on the majority side, the main authors of the discussion draft.

We plan to send this today from Evelyn and Pat, and if/when the a House bill is actually introduced we will may have more public statements.

As we mentioned last week, the Academy has been working with the Committee staff to make this bill incrementally better. We are sending this letter to formalize our recommendations.

Your thoughts are always welcome.

Very best,

Jenn

Lucille's intentions were good but I think you need to be on too. I wrote to Lucille (see below) before I saw your email, so I will make sure I underscore the spokesperson role and Jeanne's strong concerns. I thought Dianne Polly, who will serve on three groups, was being taken off QM Committee and Denice was going there. Again, I think Lucille was trying to protect your time, but if you're willing by all means you should be on even if Denice stays. I'm sure Lucille told you about the conversation with Denice and Michele.

I was really looking forward to seeing both of you this past weekend. It's in the high 70's here and if only I hadn't made my reservation for Saturday morning departure!

Hi!

We have an option and that is to include Donna and Denice. Jeanne said she would "make it work" but she has great trepidation about Denice and worries she'll question every decision already made by the group. How about putting Donna on too because the presidents are the spokespeople on public policy issues?

Joan, Thanks for following up on this request. I decided not to do the presentation for the IFT, because what she wanted me to present on was not evidenced based enough for this organization. She instead asked me to do a webinar for her on food insecurity. If the Academy would like to send a representative to this meeting I would be glad to go, but only if this is a meeting that we need board representation at.

We missed Pat in Denver, but the meeting was great. Lucille and I had a lot of fun and really enjoyed the presentations and getting to know the spoke persons. Doris and her staff did a great job.

Subject: RE: Speaker at 2016 IFT Annual Conference

Hi Donna –

How exciting! I think you are clear; the Board retreat is scheduled for July 9-11 in Charleston, SC and there are not any other Board events currently scheduled for July.

Best regards,

Joan

Joan, Dr. Uruakpa has invited me to present at the IFT conference in Chicago this July. Please see her email below. I told her I would have to ask you all if there was anything on the BOD schedule that would interfere with this meeting. I told her that "if" I were to be elected President-elect that the Academy meetings would be my first priority. I told her I would try and get some guidance from you today. She did say they would pay my way to go. I know you are like me and getting ready for the Candidate Forum, but I thought I would reach out to see what your thoughts were?

Subject: Speaker at 2016 IFT Annual Conference

Dear Ms. Martin,

Allow me to introduce myself; my name is Florence Uruakpa and I met you at Buffalo NY at the CDR/AND certificate of training in childhood and adolescent weight management program held Sept 10-12, 2015. You were one of the speakers at the session (you presented on Day 3. You were the last speaker).

Also, we met at the airport when we were leaving Buffalo.

I am writing to ask if you'll find time (in your very busy schedule) to speak at one of the Symposia at the 2016 IFT Annual Meeting and Food Expo to be held in Chicago, IL in July 16-19, 2016.

I am the Chair of one of IFT's conference Symposia, and I'd like to invite you to speak at the symposium on "Obesity/weight management". It will be an honor to have you as a speaker for that symposium.

I have already submitted the proposal and preliminary update on the submitted proposal from IFT shows that it will be approved. I will know the status of the proposal by next week. If you'll be interested in serving as one of the speakers, I'll need more details on your accomplishments to include in my revised proposal to be submitted in 3 days (I'm assuming you'll be willing to accept my invitation to give a talk at the session).

Kindly respond back to me by Sunday Jan 31, 2016.

I look forward to hearing from you at your earliest convenience.

That is what Lucille said. Such entitlement! To date she has not contributed one thing to the board! She cannot even follow along on the agenda during board meetings, does that remind you of anyone?

I also heard that Evelyn stayed an extra day in Denver before going home. She also came early. How long until June 1st? We need to shut her down and all her traveling with it!

June 1 marks a new day and Lucille and I are in sync!

Lucille's intentions were good but I think you need to be on too. I wrote to Lucille (see below) before I saw your email, so I will make sure I underscore the spokesperson role and Jeanne's strong concerns. I thought Dianne Polly, who will serve on three groups, was being taken off QM Committee and Denice was going there. Again, I think Lucille was trying to protect your time, but if you're willing by all means you should be on even if Denice stays. I'm sure Lucille told you about the conversation with Denice and Michele.

I was really looking forward to seeing both of you this past weekend. It's in the high 70's here and if only I hadn't made my reservation for Saturday morning departure!

Dear Board members,

I am sharing additional information regarding upcoming Board meetings. The decision not to have a face to face retreat meeting is stated below. I am asking however that you continue to save the retreat dates of July 9-11 for a webinar(s) in order that we address ongoing Board business. We also added a day to meet face to face immediately preceding the Second Century Summit. The Board meeting and Summit dates and times are provided in the email below. We will continue using webinars on focused topics, i.e., PCMH/ACO, Grassroots Advocacy, that were initiated this year.

Joan will be sending out a communication to incoming Board members regarding a June orientation webinar highlighting Board member roles and responsibilities and major Academy programs and policies. Any continuing Board members who would like to participate are welcome to do so. In October at our Board meeting in Nashville, you asked that we not hold our regularly scheduled meeting at FNCE®, therefore, are looking to meet face to face in November. Joan will be sending you an updated 2016-17 Board meeting calendar shortly.

The Board meeting will take place September 20-21, beginning at 1:00pm on September 20 and adjourning at 11:00am on September 21 to allow Board members to attend the Summit, which begins at 2:00pm on September 21 and will adjourn at 2:00pm on September 23.

Pat, The conversation with Denice and Michelle concerns me greatly! Denice has driven me crazy with all the requests she makes of the staff to get information that is not worth all the time the staff has to put in to get it. She is going to drive LPPC crazy. I will be glad to keep her in check!!!

Lucille's intentions were good but I think you need to be on too. I wrote to Lucille (see below) before I saw your email, so I will make sure I underscore the spokesperson role and Jeanne's strong concerns. I thought Dianne Polly, who will serve on three groups, was being taken off QM Committee and Denice was going there. Again, I think Lucille was trying to protect your time, but if you're willing by all means you should be on even if Denice stays. I'm sure Lucille told you about the conversation with Denice and Michele.

I was really looking forward to seeing both of you this past weekend. It's in the high 70's here and if only I hadn't made my reservation for Saturday morning departure!

How about putting Donna on too because the presidents are the spokespeople on public policy issues?

Pat, Just wanted to let you know that I thought the meeting in Denver was excellent. I really learned a lot from the excellent speakers and thoroughly enjoyed getting to know the media spokespersons. I think it was great to have Lucille and I there, so they could see what changes are in store from a leadership perspective. We both got positive responses from the presentations we did. I did one on Michelle Obama's visit and she did one on her vision for the Academy.

Lucille told me that she took me off of LLPC for next year. I told her I was very disappointed with that decision. I understand that she was trying to protect me from extra work, but I have never been on LPPC and was really excited about getting to work on that committee. Public Policy is one of my passions, for sure, and something I think I am really good at. I am not sure what can be done about it at this point in the game, but I did want to let you know that I was disappointed. I think she feels pretty bad about it also. I told her I wish she has just talked to me about it before making the decision. I would have given up FAC over LPPC since I have been on FAC for 4 years. Talk to you soon!

Donna,

We're wrapping up the SNS DPG Transition Meeting, and we certainly hope to honor you at all of our member events this year. Katie Gustafson, our DPG manager, is going to follow up with Joan S. about getting them on your calendar, but I wanted to reach out to you personally.

1. Do you think you'll be at ANC 2016 and able to attend our breakfast on July 11? I know you mentioned possibly having an Academy leadership retreat that weekend.
2. We are changing our networking event to Sunday evening at FNCE. We are hoping we can at least get on your calendar for a few minutes (maybe 15), but we know it will be crazy for you.

We are also very concerned about the ability to get FNCE sponsors because of the new policy that all DPG event sponsors are FNCE exhibitors. Tami, our sponsorship chair, has been in conversations with 5 prospective FNCE sponsors and none of them are exhibiting. We have heard that exhibit expenses in Boston are particularly cost prohibitive. We're not sure what we can do. Do you have suggestions on who we can contact in the Academy to raise this specific concern? I know it is also being addressed in the House of Delegates, and we will use our voice there, too.

Thanks,

Julie

I foresee that they are potential leaders in the Academy.

Also, since I'll be there, let me know if I can help out in anyway.

Subject: Exciting News

I am happy to share some exciting news from the Academy.

We have secured an amazing keynote speaker for the Opening Session in Boston. Lucille Beseler's vision for FNCE is to feature a strong businesswoman who can motivate and inspire our members. We have booked Barbara Corcoran, a nationally recognized personality who will be a big draw for all age groups.

<image002.jpg>As one of the "Sharks" on ABC's hit TV show "Shark Tank," Barbara has invested in 22 businesses, competing to make deals for all to see, then shepherding them to success. I am one of the many millions of fans who watch this popular network show.

Barbara Corcoran's "credentials" include straight D's in high school and college and 20 jobs by the time she turned 23. She took a $1,000 loan to start The Corcoran Group and became one of the most successful entrepreneurs in the country. Barbara's latest book, Shark Tales, takes readers behind the scenes of her life and business and televised venture capitalism. Famously brash and blunt, bold and courageous, Barbara is a brilliant identifier of opportunity and talent that is often invisible to others. Read more about Barbara at www.barbaracorcoran.com.

FNCE promotions are just beginning, and the Academy will aggressively promote this exciting featured speaker to all potential attendees.

Congratulations to Donna Martin! First Lady Michelle Obama will visit Burke County (Ga.) Middle School on April 7, joining Donna and her students to plant the school garden as part of her American Garden Tour highlighting the impact and benefits of diverse gardens across the country. Rural Burke County has a Farm to School Program that provides farm-fresh produce to its students daily. We will share this information with our members in Eat Right Weekly, eatrightPRO.org and on social media channels. By the way, Burke County Middle School was awarded a 2015-2016 General Mills Champions Grant through the Academy Foundation.

In addition, Donna has been invited by USDA's Under Secretary Kevin Concannon to address school nutrition policy changes at The Obesity Society meeting in New Orleans on November 4, 2016. Under Secretary Concannon recommended Donna join him as a panel member so that the audience would benefit from hearing a "real-world perspective from a progressive SFA director."

All,

Just a reminder that we have a Finance and Audit Committee meeting on the mornings of April 26th and April 27th. The webinars will be from 8 – 11:30 a.m. CDT. Please make sure you are available. This is an important meeting since it will address the 2017 Fiscal Year budget. The information is nearly complete. We will begin posting the information for the meeting on Monday. Maria will let you know as she posts the information. I am attaching the preliminary agenda for you. It may change a little, but, the content should stay the same. We will provide to you the financial results for February and March. However, they are not on the agenda out of respect for your time. We will discuss them if the Committee would like too. At the very least, you will see them again in May.

If you have any questions, please let me know.

Paul

As a reminder we ask that you share information with us about invitations you have accepted to present at Affiliate, DPG, MIG and/or other organization meetings as Board members speaking on Academy activities and Academy-related business. In order to track the presentations, we request you please communicate to us any meetings you attend on behalf of the Academy by submitting the Board Representation at Meetings form. Board policies related to Board member representation at meetings are attached. Board members attending affiliate, DPG, MIG and/or other organization meetings should have all expenses reimbursed by the affiliate, DPG, MIG and/or other organization. In accordance with policy, Board members may not accept an honorarium or fee for representing the Academy or for presenting on Academy-related business or initiatives. You may, however, ask that the honorarium be sent in

Just following up to see if there is anything I can assist with regarding the IFT speaking engagement. The Academy traditionally has a Board member attend IFT as our representative. Would this be something you would be interested in doing?
Thanks!

Joan, Dr. Uruakpa has invited me to present at the IFT conference in Chicago this July. Please see her email below. I told her I would have to ask you all if there was anything on the BOD schedule that would interfere with this meeting. I told her that "if" I were to be elected President-elect that the Academy meetings would be my first priority. I told her I would try and get some guidance from you today. She did say they would pay my way to go. I know you are like me and getting ready for the Candidate Forum, but I thought I would reach out to see what your thoughts were?

Subject: Speaker at 2016 IFT Annual Conference

Dear Ms. Martin,

Allow me to introduce myself; my name is Florence Uruakpa and I met you at Buffalo NY at the CDR/AND certificate of training in childhood and adolescent weight management program held Sept 10-12, 2015. You were one of the speakers at the session (you presented on Day 3. You were the last speaker).

Also, we met at the airport when we were leaving Buffalo.

I am writing to ask if you'll find time (in your very busy schedule) to speak at one of the Symposia at the 2016 IFT Annual Meeting and Food Expo to be held in Chicago, IL in July 16-19, 2016.

I am the Chair of one of IFT's conference Symposia, and I'd like to invite you to speak at the symposium on "Obesity/weight management". It will be an honor to have you as a speaker for that symposium.

I have already submitted the proposal and preliminary update on the submitted proposal from IFT shows that it will be approved. I will know the status of the proposal by next week. If you'll be interested in serving as one of the speakers, I'll need more details on your accomplishments to include in my revised proposal to be submitted in 3 days (I'm assuming you'll be willing to accept my invitation to give a talk at the session).

Kindly respond back to me by Sunday Jan 31, 2016.

I look forward to hearing from you at your earliest convenience.

Please see below. I know that Doris made you aware of the winter storm about to hit Denver. I just cancelled my trip. Unfortunately I was leaving tomorrow when it hits and I can't chance returning on Sunday due to commitments on Monday.

I believe if you are traveling today it should not be a problem but there may be one leaving on Sunday.

I had side meetings scheduled with a couple attendees so I am in the process of rescheduling those. I will miss seeing you, and as Evelyn knows, this is a great meeting both from a learning perspective as well as fun!

Hi Doris-

Since there is an official winter storm warning in effect in Denver until 8am MST on Sunday, we should be able to cancel any necessary flights without incurring a rebooking fee/penalty. If we can get a list of any staff or other funded individuals who need to cancel, Mary can handle these cancellations with the ATC Travel Store.

Canceled tickets for this trip can be used as a flight credit for future purchases. The flights will not be refunded and the airlines do not allow the transfer a ticket credit to somebody else's name, but we can use these flight credits for a future travel for any of the canceled individuals. Those flight credits will remain on file with the travel store for the next 12 months so we can apply them as needed for a future flight.

We do need the traveler names immediately so we can expedite the cancellations.

Hi Doris-

Since there is an official winter storm warning in effect in Denver until 8am MST on Sunday, we should be able to cancel any necessary flights without incurring a rebooking fee/penalty. If we can get a list of any staff or other funded individuals who need to cancel, Mary can handle these cancellations with the ATC Travel Store.

Canceled tickets for this trip can be used as a flight credit for future purchases. The flights will not be refunded and the airlines do not allow the transfer a ticket credit to somebody else's name, but we can use these flight credits for a future travel for any of the canceled individuals. Those flight credits will remain on file with the travel store for the next 12 months so we can apply them as needed for a future flight.

We do need the traveler names immediately so we can expedite the cancellations.

Katie,

Thank you for meeting with Donna yesterday. I know it meant a lot to her to connect with you. She sent the links below, and I have added the Academy's article on the visit.

Donna was also kind enough to talk about the impact of the change in CEP threshold to your district. I have attached the information for your review and cc-ed Donna to continue this conversation and to provide context if you have questions.

We are also hearing that there may be a markup next week? Do you have any insights on timing on moving this bill?

Many many thanks to you and your boss!

Very best,

Please see below. I know that Doris made you aware of the winter storm about to hit Denver. I just cancelled my trip. Unfortunately I was leaving tomorrow when it hits and I can't chance returning on Sunday due to commitments on Monday.

I believe if you are traveling today it should not be a problem but there may be one leaving on Sunday.

I had side meetings scheduled with a couple attendees so I am in the process of rescheduling those. I will miss seeing you, and as Evelyn knows, this is a great meeting both from a learning perspective as well as fun!

Thanks, Diane. Mary Beth already cancelled and based on Doris' and Susie's assessments, I will too since I'm scheduled to go and return at the worst times predicted for the storm. I have to be back on Monday and can't take the chance of being snowed in. Susie is using MB's room since she no longer feels comfortable driving. I will need mine cancelled.

Hi all,

There is a winter storm watch in effect for Denver from Friday through Sunday. According to the weather service, in addition to snow, it will also be cold so dress warm (Saturday temp 39, Sunday temp 37).

Safe travels and if anything comes up, please do not hesitate to call me on my cell phone 312/415-2999.

Best regards,

Hi All,

Looking forward to seeing you all tomorrow!

Just got a weather update....looks like rain turning to snow Friday night. We could get up to 14 inches, but since its been so warm it will melt and only have 8 inches on the ground.

Spring Time in the Rockies

WINTER STORM WATCH IN EFFECT FROM LATE FRIDAY NIGHT THROUGH LATE SATURDAY NIGHT... THE NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE IN DENVER HAS ISSUED A WINTER STORM WATCH...WHICH WILL BE IN EFFECT FROM LATE FRIDAY NIGHT THROUGH LATE SATURDAY NIGHT. * TIMING...EVENING THUNDERSTORMS FRIDAY NIGHT ARE EXPECTED TO TRANSITION TO WIDESPREAD RAIN LATER IN THE EVENING. RAIN WILL CHANGE OVER TO SNOW BY MIDNIGHT OR DURING THE EARLY MORNING HOURS SATURDAY. SNOW IS THEN EXPECTED TO CONTINUE THROUGH THE DAY SATURDAY AND SATURDAY NIGHT. LIGHTER SNOW IS EXPECTED ON SUNDAY. * SNOW ACCUMULATIONS...ACCUMULATIONS OF 8 TO 14 INCHES WILL BE POSSIBLE BY SUNDAY MORNING. THE HIGH DENSITY SNOW WILL TEND TO SETTLE AS IT ACCUMULATES...SO THAT SNOW DEPTHS COULD REMAIN LESS THAN 8 INCHES. * WIND/VISIBILITY...NORTH TO NORTHEAST WINDS 15 TO 25 MPH...ESPECIALLY EAST OF I-25. * IMPACTS...SNOW-COVERED AND SNOW PACKED ROADS ARE EXPECTED...ESPECIALLY ON BRIDGES...OVERPASSES AND SECONDARY STREETS. THE SNOW WILL BE A WET AND HEAVY SNOW WITH HIGH LIQUID DENSITIES. ACCUMULATING SNOW ON TREE BRANCHES MAY CAUSE TREES TO BREAK. THE SNOW WILL ALSO BE HEAVY TO SHOVEL...AND RESIDENTS SHOULD BE CAUTIOUS TO AVOID OVER-EXERTION WHILE SHOVELLING. PRECAUTIONARY/PREPAREDNESS ACTIONS... A WINTER STORM WATCH MEANS THERE IS A POTENTIAL FOR SIGNIFICANT SNOW...SLEET...OR ICE ACCUMULATIONS THAT MAY IMPACT TRAVEL. CONTINUE TO MONITOR THE LATEST FORECASTS.

The change in office from Sylvia to you occurs in September following the Congress. Marsha mentioned that it would be in everyone's best interest if you would be able to attend the Congress in September so that you gain familiarity since you will be in office until the next Congress in 2020. Please note in Marsha's email to me that a second representative is permitted to attend the Representative workshop to be held the afternoon of Sept. 5th and morning of Sept. 6th. Please let us know if you are available to go to Granada, Spain on September 5-10, 2016. As you can see from Marsha's note she is thrilled with the representative being you!

Hi Pat,

Thanks so much for advising of upcoming changes in the Academy's official Representative to ICDA and providing Judy's CV. Having met her, I anticipate she will be a wonderful official Representative. I also anticipate this change will follow the annual meeting in Granada.

As each ICDA Member Association is permitted to send a second Representative to the Representative's Workshop being held on the late afternoon of September 5th and morning of September 6th, Sylvia, as the Academy's current official Representative, can advise the Secretariat if Judy will be attending as a second person. We will be issuing a request to register for the Workshop, sometime in June.

I am sending the Form to be used for advising of a new official Representative. Probably better timing that the completed Form comes in with the Nomination for Director. A mention that Judy will be the official Representative of the Academy when changes are made in Sep will prevent confusion about who to is to receive official communications between now and September meetings.

I am very happy to hear you will be in Granada for the Congress because it is always great when we can find some time to visit. It will be here before we know it!

My best,

Marsha

I am very pleased to inform you that all of our flights to Granada, Spain for the ICD are covered by comp tickets, providing a savings of $28,000! Thanks go to Diane Enos and her team for careful management of the booking process.

Paul told me about his suggestion that we consider not attending the Congress this year in Spain due to budget constraints. As primary stakeholders (we pay 50% of the dues, prorated based on total membership), our absence would be a political mistake. Lucille and Donna are there as the Academy's top leadership; Sylvia is an ICDA Board member and the Academy's official representative; Judy becomes the official representative for 2016-2020 and assumes office immediately following the Congress; I am the alternate delegate. We will carefully assess the ROI of continued membership and evaluate the benefits in relation to our international strategic plan going forward, including potential global initiatives emanating from the Second Century Summit. In the interim, I feel strongly that we need to show our support.

To Dietitians for Professional Integrity:

Thank you for your email. It was a privilege for me to be chosen by the members of the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics as the 2016-2017 President-elect. This is especially true as the Academy and the entire nutrition and dietetics profession prepare for our Second Century of serving the public -- in the U.S. and increasingly around the world.

As you know, on January 13, the Academy's Board of Directors voted to implement a one-year pilot program that includes 1) adopting the recommendations of the Sponsorship Advisory Task Force, 2) creating a Member Sponsorship Review Committee and 3) approving newly revised sponsorship guidelines. The task force's report includes tools the Academy is using to review potential sponsors.

I am grateful for the hard work of the task force and the committee, as well as to the House of Delegates which discussed the sponsorship issue and provided valuable feedback, and to all members who have made their voices known. I am confident that the guidelines and assessment tools will assist the committee and the organization in selecting sponsors in alignment with the Academy's mission and vision.

We truly appreciate the hard work and dedication of the volunteer committees, task forces, work groups and individual members in serving our Academy and profession. The work of the of the Member Sponsorship Review Committee is ongoing and the development of assessment tools to support the sponsorship process is in progress. I will share your comments with the committee.

Thank you again for your email. To those members of DFPI who are not members of the Academy, I strongly encourage you to join. Help us make our Second Century a historic and healthful time for all people.

Subject: Hello from Dietitians For Professional Integrity

Dear Dr. Martin,

Dietitians For Professional Integrity extends its congratulations on your new position as President-Elect of the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics.

We very interested in advocating for sponsorship reform, and strongly believe dialogue with AND leadership is an important piece of our work.

We are pleased with some of the progress we have seen since our inception in February of 2013, including the formation of the Sponsorship Advisory Task Force in 2014.

Specifically regarding the recently revised sponsorship guidelines, some concerns and questions remain for us:

1) Some of the new guidelines (i.e.: "the sponsor's mission and vision align with AND's") existed in the previous version, under which PepsiCo -- and former sponsors Coca-Cola, Kellogg's, and General Mills -- was deemed an appropriate sponsor.

2) The guidelines focus on product portfolios and do not consider corporate behavior, lobbying history, and media statements as a measure of whether a company is an appropriate sponsor. Current sponsor PepsiCo, for example, has lobbied against soda taxes and against the inclusion of added sugar on the Nutrition Facts Panel. Its CEO has been quoted as saying that "if all consumers exercised... the problem of obesity wouldn't exist." How does this align with AND's mission and vision?

3) Are existing sponsors going to go through this review process? If so, how is PepsiCo an example of a company that "optimizes health through food and nutrition"?

4) Back in January 2016, it was announced that the Board of Directors "voted to implement a pilot program encompassing many of the SATF's recommendations." Can you comment on the status of this new committee and the development of assessment tools to support the sponsorship process?

Our position is not one of "zero sponsorship." While that is certainly an option, we don't see this as an issue of being "for" or "against" sponsorship. That rhetoric creates a dichotomy that only further divides dietitians and does not address systemic issues.

Instead, let's think about what kind of sponsorship is appropriate, relevant, and ethical for a health organization. We also don't think sponsors must be limited to the food sector; wellness, technology, and culinary companies could make for excellent partners.

We hear from dietitians and dietitians-to-be who have concerns about the current sponsorship model on a weekly basis. This is an issue of high priority for many of our colleagues.

We always welcome dialogue, and want you to know that you can always reach out to us for further conversation on this topic. Our foremost priority is to elevate the RDN credential. As evidenced by last year's Kraft Singles/Kids Eat Right controversy, sponsorship plays a large role in public perception of who we are and what we stand for.

Thank you for your time. We look forward to ongoing dialogue with you.

Sincerely,

Thank you for your email. It was a privilege for me to be chosen by the members of the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics as the 2016-2017 President-elect. This is especially true as the Academy and the entire nutrition and dietetics profession prepare for our Second Century of serving the public -- in the U.S. and increasingly around the world.

As you know, on January 13, the Academy's Board of Directors voted to implement a one-year pilot program that includes 1) adopting the recommendations of the Sponsorship Advisory Task Force, 2) creating a Member Sponsorship Review Committee and 3) approving newly revised sponsorship guidelines. The task force's report includes tools the Academy is using to review potential sponsors.

I am grateful for the hard work of the task force and the committee, as well as to the House of Delegates which discussed the sponsorship issue and provided valuable feedback, and to all members who have made their voices known. I am confident that the guidelines and assessment tools will assist the committee and the organization in selecting sponsors in alignment with the Academy's mission and vision.

We truly appreciate the hard work and dedication of the volunteer committees, task forces, work groups and individual members in serving our Academy and profession. The work of the of the Member Sponsorship Review Committee is ongoing and the development of assessment tools to support the sponsorship process is in progress. I will share your comments with the committee.

Thank you again for your email. To those members of DFPI who are not members of the Academy, I strongly encourage you to join. Help us make our Second Century a historic and healthful time for all people.

Yours very truly,

Donna

Subject: Hello from Dietitians For Professional Integrity

Dear Dr. Martin,

Dietitians For Professional Integrity extends its congratulations on your new position as President-Elect of the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics.

We very interested in advocating for sponsorship reform, and strongly believe dialogue with AND leadership is an important piece of our work.

We are pleased with some of the progress we have seen since our inception in February of 2013, including the formation of the Sponsorship Advisory Task Force in 2014.

Specifically regarding the recently revised sponsorship guidelines, some concerns and questions remain for us:

1) Some of the new guidelines (i.e.: "the sponsor's mission and vision align with AND's") existed in the previous version, under which PepsiCo -- and former sponsors Coca-Cola, Kellogg's, and General Mills -- was deemed an appropriate sponsor.

2) The guidelines focus on product portfolios and do not consider corporate behavior, lobbying history, and media statements as a measure of whether a company is an appropriate sponsor. Current sponsor PepsiCo, for example, has lobbied against soda taxes and against the inclusion of added sugar on the Nutrition Facts Panel. Its CEO has been quoted as saying that "if all consumers exercised... the problem of obesity wouldn't exist." How does this align with AND's mission and vision?

3) Are existing sponsors going to go through this review process? If so, how is PepsiCo an example of a company that "optimizes health through food and nutrition"?

4) Back in January 2016, it was announced that the Board of Directors "voted to implement a pilot program encompassing many of the SATF's recommendations." Can you comment on the status of this new committee and the development of assessment tools to support the sponsorship process?

Our position is not one of "zero sponsorship." While that is certainly an option, we don't see this as an issue of being "for" or "against" sponsorship. That rhetoric creates a dichotomy that only further divides dietitians and does not address systemic issues.

Instead, let's think about what kind of sponsorship is appropriate, relevant, and ethical for a health organization. We also don't think sponsors must be limited to the food sector; wellness, technology, and culinary companies could make for excellent partners.

We hear from dietitians and dietitians-to-be who have concerns about the current sponsorship model on a weekly basis. This is an issue of high priority for many of our colleagues.

We always welcome dialogue, and want you to know that you can always reach out to us for further conversation on this topic. Our foremost priority is to elevate the RDN credential. As evidenced by last year's Kraft Singles/Kids Eat Right controversy, sponsorship plays a large role in public perception of who we are and what we stand for.

Thank you for your time. We look forward to ongoing dialogue with you.

Sincerely,

Dietitians For Professional Integrity

Dear Judy,

We are also nominating you for a Director position on the ICDA Board. We have filled out the attached call for nomination form. Please prepare a 2-3 page resume that outlines your career highlights that apply to the criteria on the last page:

The change in office from Sylvia to you occurs in September following the Congress. Marsha mentioned that it would be in everyone's best interest if you would be able to attend the Congress in September so that you gain familiarity since you will be in office until the next Congress in 2020. Please note in Marsha's email to me that a second representative is permitted to attend the Representative workshop to be held the afternoon of Sept. 5th and morning of Sept. 6th. Please let us know if you are available to go to Granada, Spain on September 5-10, 2016. As you can see from Marsha's note she is thrilled with the representative being you!

Hi Pat,

Thanks so much for advising of upcoming changes in the Academy's official Representative to ICDA and providing Judy's CV. Having met her, I anticipate she will be a wonderful official Representative. I also anticipate this change will follow the annual meeting in Granada.

As each ICDA Member Association is permitted to send a second Representative to the Representative's Workshop being held on the late afternoon of September 5th and morning of September 6th, Sylvia, as the Academy's current official Representative, can advise the Secretariat if Judy will be attending as a second person. We will be issuing a request to register for the Workshop, sometime in June.

I am sending the Form to be used for advising of a new official Representative. Probably better timing that the completed Form comes in with the Nomination for Director. A mention that Judy will be the official Representative of the Academy when changes are made in Sep will prevent confusion about who to is to receive official communications between now and September meetings.

I am very happy to hear you will be in Granada for the Congress because it is always great when we can find some time to visit. It will be here before we know it!

My best,

Marsha

I am very pleased to inform you that all of our flights to Granada, Spain for the ICD are covered by comp tickets, providing a savings of $28,000! Thanks go to Diane Enos and her team for careful management of the booking process.

Paul told me about his suggestion that we consider not attending the Congress this year in Spain due to budget constraints. As primary stakeholders (we pay 50% of the dues, prorated based on total membership), our absence would be a political mistake. Lucille and Donna are there as the Academy's top leadership; Sylvia is an ICDA Board member and the Academy's official representative; Judy becomes the official representative for 2016-2020 and assumes office immediately following the Congress; I am the alternate delegate. We will carefully assess the ROI of continued membership and evaluate the benefits in relation to our international strategic plan going forward, including potential global initiatives emanating from the Second Century Summit. In the interim, I feel strongly that we need to show our support.

I didn't know that about Secretary Vilsack. Thanks to you, the last two weeks brought visibility and heightened credibility for the Academy and profession, and that brings with it recognition by other groups, so personally I think the excitement is only beginning! XOXO

Pat, This was a great event that brought together a lot of stakeholders who have a common goal. It reinforced the need to work together and collaborate so that we all are on the same page and can support each other with policy. To have Kevin Concannon and Katie Wilson there from USDA was a coup for AND. Last night's event was also a great opportunity to network and I got a chance to talk to Secretary Vilsack. They say he might be Hillary's VP choice. The next three years cannot possibly compete with the last two weeks! XOXO

Every nutrition/dietetics program faculty need to know that there is an IPE at their institution and graciously and with gusto promote their need for a seat at that table. This is a first and a must. Their most clinically oriented faculty, in the facilities with their students bringing value to the dietitian's role inter-professionally, need to be vocal and active. As we bring more applied research into our preparation of the student for the future, we bring greater value to the facilities where we train and conduct relevant research that truly benefits those facilities, and to the other professional colleagues in clinical education at our institutions. We create sustaining dialog about our value from the grassroots up. Getting on this list is going to take some of our best advocating and serving in DPGs (NEHP, for sure, but many others) to step up with Marsha Schofield and other staff to create a sense of void without us there. But in my opinion, without the grassroots power of members looking where they are to be a part of the solution, it will be a much longer road.

My Wednesday thoughts.....

Thanks Margaret. I wonder how can we get our name listed among the other organizations? We are the largest organization of professionals. It would be great if we were listed along with other healthcare professional organizations.

It does not change the fact that we need to continue to be vigilant. Remember one of our challenges is that physicians work with nurses daily, send prescriptions to pharmacies daily in outpatient and inpatient settings. The question to gain from the writer below, is from what she is experiencing and witnessing.....how can she help us get to that table more quickly? As one who is "in the midst", she can be an invaluable asset to our continuing work with other professions. Let's capitalize on her current role and look for ways to collaborate from within. Sometimes in situations just like this, an individual is more powerful and influential than he/she realizes. We can help.

5. Attend Congressional meetings on the Hill for members from his/her affiliate
6. Assist the affiliate PPC as requested

Thanks Margaret. I wonder how can we get our name listed among the other organizations? We are the largest organization of professionals. It would be great if we were listed along with other healthcare professional organizations.

I agree with Margaret, this member is in a key position to "get us in there" at her school. In addition, the 2017 ACEND standards do emphasize IPE, so it is now spelled out for us, however we have been doing this for a while with students.

I understand the member's concern about "what is the Academy doing" and know that we have many answers.

Regardless, it is our responsibility as members and professionals to do this at our schools. My university has a multi-million dollar grant for IPE and we are the "national center." We meet monthly as an IPE committee of faculty in the Academic Health Center. It takes many years of concerted effort to get our students trained and competent. We (nutrition/dietetics) are at the table. This member's experience has not been positive, but many of us are visible within our schools. Below is our example (it sounds like I am tooting our horn, yet I know that we are not unique):

<http://www.ahceducation.umn.edu/1health/interprofessional-practice-and-education-ippe-committee>

Notice our Phase 1 IPE "course"- we have Food Science and Nutrition (DPD undergrads) involved, and my graduate students (Public Health, Epi and Nutrition):

Hi Everyone

I wanted to offer some comments related to interprofessional education (IPE) in nutrition and dietetics. As many of you know, the educational preparation of future registered dietitian nutritionists (RDN) has included development of the knowledge and skills needed to work with other health professionals for many years. Educational requirements in the 1980s by the then Council on Accreditation of Dietetics Education (CADE) included expectations that students be prepared to work as members of the health care team. This language shifted in the 2002 Standards to requirements that students be prepared to conduct nutrition care as part of interdisciplinary teams. When the Institutes of Medicine (IOM) began the use of the term "interprofessional" rather than an interdisciplinary a few years ago and published its report on Core Competencies for Interprofessional Collaborative Practice, the Accreditation Council for Education in Nutrition and Dietetics (ACEND) adopted this terminology as well. The recently released 2017 Accreditation Standards for programs in nutrition and dietetics, for example, requires that students be prepared to function as members of interprofessional teams.

Nutrition and dietetics educators have been very active in the IPE since the inception of the concept several years ago. Many of their activities have been showcased in presentations at FNCE the past several years. The Nutrition and Dietetics Educators and Practitioners (NDEP) group has a subcommittee on IPE that facilitates the sharing of information on educational strategies for enhancing IPE of nutrition and dietetics students. Dr. Katie Elliott, from St. Louis University, chairs this committee.

The Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics has been actively engaged with the IOM on the topic of IPE since the inception of the IOM Global Forum on Innovation in Health Professional Education, a group created to promote IPE discussion among various health professions. Dr. Kathryn Kolasa, Professor Emeritus, Brody School of Medicine at East Carolina University initially represented the Academy on the Forum and more recently Dr. Katie Elliott has assumed that role. Both have been great advocates for the inclusion of nutrition and dietetics professionals in IPE and have submitted reports to the Academy after each of the IOM meetings.

Two national entities that have been very involved in the promotion of IPE are the Interprofessional Education Collaborative (IPEC) and the National Center for Interprofessional Practice and Education. Both ACEND and the Academy have been involved with both organizations.

IPEC (<https://ipecollaborative.org>) was formed in 2009 by a shared interest collaborative of members of six groups (medicine, dentistry, nursing, pharmacy, public health, and osteopathy). IPEC sponsors workshops each year on IPE. Many nutrition and dietetics educators have attended their workshops and been involved in their discussions of IPE. The group had been firm in having no interest in expanding beyond its six core members. They recently, however, announced the addition of some new members. Dr. Elliott and other members of the Academy are in conversation with the organization to explore options for and potential benefits of future membership in the group.

The National Center for Interprofessional Practice and Education (<https://nexusipe.org>) is a publicly/privately funded entity housed at the University of Minnesota whose goals are to provide leadership, evidence and resources needed to guide the use of interprofessional education and collaborative practice. They too conduct workshops and have a variety of online materials to assist faculty in their IPE work. Dr. Barbara Brandt, director of the Center, worked with the ACEND Board as they reviewed and revised their accreditation standards.

All of that being said, I know there is still much we can do to become more recognized for our role in IPE. Both Dr. Elliott and Joan Vogt from the ACEND staff will be involved next week in an IOM Global Forum on Innovation in Health Professional Education focused on The Role of Accreditation in Enhancing Quality and Innovation in Health Professions Education. ACEND is committed to assuring that future nutrition and dietetics practitioners are prepared to be skilled members of interprofessional teams and believes that RDN educators play a vital role in advocating for inclusion of nutrition and dietetics students in IPE on their campuses.

Please let me know if I can provide any additional information.

I agree with Margaret, this member is in a key position to "get us in there" at her school. In addition, the 2017 ACEND standards do emphasize IPE, so it is now spelled out for us, however we have been doing this for a while with students.

I understand the member's concern about "what is the Academy doing" and know that we have many answers.

Regardless, it is our responsibility as members and professionals to do this at our schools. My university has a multi-million dollar grant for IPE and we are the "national center." We meet monthly as an IPE committee of faculty in the Academic Health Center. It takes many years of concerted effort to get our students trained and competent. We (nutrition/dietetics) are at the table. This member's experience has not been positive, but many of us are visible within our schools. Below is our example (it sounds like I am tooting our horn, yet I know that we are not unique):

<http://www.ahceducation.umn.edu/1health/interprofessional-practice-and-education-ippe-committee>

Notice our Phase 1 IPE "course"- we have Food Science and Nutrition (DPD undergrads) involved, and my graduate students (Public Health, Epi and Nutrition):

This is true, and Jane White was involved in many ways early on, probably 20 years ago and there has been a steady stream since (Marsha Schofield's area). It does not change the fact that we need to continue to be vigilant. Remember one of our challenges is that physicians work with nurses daily, send prescriptions to pharmacies daily in outpatient and inpatient settings. The question to gain from the writer below, is from what she is experiencing and witnessing.....how can she help us get to that table more quickly? As one who is "in the midst", she can be an invaluable asset to our continuing work with other professions. Let's capitalize on her current role and look for ways to collaborate from within. Sometimes in situations just like this, an individual is more powerful and influential than he/she realizes. We can help.

I have asked Dr. Gregoire to respond regarding the Academy's longstanding participation in inter-professional education and collaboration. I want to assure you that the Academy's involvement has been strategic and proactive, not reactionary and spans more than a decade.

Best regards,

Pat

This is true, and Jane White was involved in many ways early on, probably 20 years ago and there has been a steady stream since (Marsha Schofield's area). It does not change the fact that we need to continue to be vigilant. Remember one of our challenges is that physicians work with nurses daily, send prescriptions to pharmacies daily in outpatient and inpatient settings. The question to gain from the writer below, is from what she is experiencing and witnessing.....how can she help us get to that table more quickly? As one who is "in the midst", she can be an invaluable asset to our continuing work with other professions. Let's capitalize on her current role and look for ways to collaborate from within. Sometimes in situations just like this, an individual is more powerful and influential than he/she realizes. We can help.

I have asked Dr. Gregoire to respond regarding the Academy's longstanding participation in inter-professional education and collaboration. I want to assure you that the Academy's involvement has been strategic and proactive, not reactionary and spans more than a decade.

Best regards,

Lisa, please see below!

As a Registered Dietitian Nutritionist, I have found a life, not a job; and choosing to work in school nutrition has helped to truly mold that statement. Every day I get the chance to help mold habits that will last a lifetime. Burke County Public Schools, just 40 minutes south of Augusta, GA, was honored to host The First Lady of United States, Michelle Obama, last week on her Garden Tour. Burke County Middle School, the same school that we implemented the Healthy Kids grant, is also the home of the district's first STEM-based learning garden. This project, coined "The End Hunger Games" allows students to explore where their food comes from, nutrition as it relates to fresh and whole foods, food insecurity, and finally, students learn to identify what it takes to feed the population. Additionally, the garden provides an alternative physical activity route for our students-- an idea that we first introduced to the same school in "Bears on the Move".

Mrs.Obama greeted our students first in the greenhouse, where she spoke the words, "Your Farm to School program is leading the way!"-- whether it was STEM-based gardens, serving local lunches or hosting the district farmers market, she went on to say that each effort individually contributed to better health and academics-- a statement we whole-heartedly agree with. Over 20 sixth grade students were joined by: a local farmer; our SNP director, Donna Martin; TV host, Al Roker; their STEM instructor and of course, Mrs. Obama, as they planted spring vegetables in the garden. Immediately following their time in the garden, students had a picnic-style school lunch.

Our menu for the day, sourced almost entirely of local goods, included an entrée choice of local herb baked chicken with local cornbread, USDA commodity BBQ sandwich with whole wheat bun, or USDA commodity chicken fajita salad with whole wheat crackers. For sides, the students had the options of local cabbage, local collard greens, local baked sweet potatoes, local squash casserole, local cucumber and tomato salad, local aquaponic salad with homemade ranch dressing, a melon skewer, local ranch potatoes and carrots, kiwi, candied apples, oranges, or local strawberries. The students were thrilled that Mrs.Obama could join them for a small portion of their lunch—students never pass up a chance to tell you their opinion on school lunch. And their opinion you ask? We let the empty trays speak for themselves! Of course, our first priority was to feed our students, but we could not pass up the opportunity to showcase a school lunch from our Burke County kitchen and help to represent all school nutrition programs nationwide. As Mrs. Obama left, her staff came in to grab a couple of to-go plates. Once they reached the car, they quickly returned to take the remainder of plates that had been prepared for her extended staff members. We like to believe that once they opened their boxes and saw how yummy everything looked, the general consensus to "go back and get the rest" was formed.

It was truly a pleasure to share just a small piece of what we do every day here in Burke County. Additionally, we feel honored that The First Lady and her team chose to honor what our students are learning. Our team, from our custodians and lunch staff, all the way up to superintendent and board members, support the academic, physical and mental growth of our students-- and we are extremely grateful to provide opportunities to our students that enhance what we believe in most. The Farm to School movement is so close to our hearts here in Burke County and we are excited to see what will come next!

Hi Brianna,

Thanks for the quick reply! This is great info. If you wouldn't mind writing it up into a short article/summary that we could share with the Foundation board and General Mills, that would be really great!

Thank you!

Lisa,

Thank you for your kind words! She did visit the same school that we implemented Bears on the Move walking program....now the gardens have nothing to do with CHK... but it was definitely the same school. The Charlie Cart that we purchased with the funds was mentioned in a lot of their articles, though? I wish it was more connected! I still would be more than happy to help you piece together an article regarding the visit, though?

Hi Brianna,

Congrats on your recent visit from Michelle Obama! I saw some of the footage--how exciting for you and Donna and your great programs! I wondered if any of the projects/schools Michelle was visiting were part of the CHK project? The Foundation (and General Mills) would love to know if it was part of CHK.

Thanks!

Thank you Linda for that suggestion. We worked to give the First Lady special recognition at PPW in 2010. We voted on and approved an award, however we were notified by her office that the First Lady is not able to accept awards. The DC staff is following up on the potential of accepting honorary membership. We are also looking into the post-office rules and regulations regarding both the award and honorary membership options.

Thank you, and I will let you know the results.

On April 7, 2016, the Senate unanimously passed the Older Americans Act (OAA) Reauthorization Act of 2016 (S.192). The Senate originally passed the bill in July 2015, and the House of Representatives passed an amended version on March 21. Due to these changes, the measure had to be reconsidered by the full Senate before being sent to the President for his signature.

Nutrition highlights in the bill include:

- Direct utilization of registered dietitian nutritionists in nutrition programs.
- Increased use of locally grown fresh foods in nutrition programs.
- Separate funding for congregate and home delivered meal programs.

The bill will now go to President Obama to be signed into law, which we expect to happen soon! This is a great bipartisan success, and thank you to all Academy members who worked for this reauthorization since 2011!

Joan, Can you let the person know who is a temp and is helping schedule us for the Spain trip, that I definitely did not ever get a link, login or passcode for the meeting. I missed my appointment with the person because of Michelle Obamas visit, but I need the link before he calls me back to register me. Sorry to bother you, but I do not know how to contact the temp. Thanks!

Importance: High

To: Foundation BOD

On April 7, 2016, the Senate unanimously passed the Older Americans Act (OAA) Reauthorization Act of 2016 (S.192). The Senate originally passed the bill in July 2015, and the House of Representatives passed an amended version on March 21. Due to these changes, the measure had to be reconsidered by the full Senate before being sent to the President for his signature.

Nutrition highlights in the bill include:

- Direct utilization of registered dietitian nutritionists in nutrition programs.
- Increased use of locally grown fresh foods in nutrition programs.
- Separate funding for congregate and home delivered meal programs.

The bill will now go to President Obama to be signed into law, which we expect to happen soon! This is a great bipartisan success, and thank you to all Academy members who worked for this reauthorization since 2011!

This information will be shared with members in Eat Right Weekly and is posted to EatRightPRO and all of our social media channels.

Paul told me about his suggestion that you consider not attending the Congress this year in Spain due to budget constraints. As primary stakeholders (we pay 50% of the dues, prorated based on total membership), our absence would be a political mistake. You are there as the Academy's top leadership, Sylvia is a Board member and our delegate, and I am the alternate delegate. I think we need to carefully assess the ROI and the benefits to our international strategic plan, including potential global initiatives emanating from the Second Century Summit and then make an informed decision regarding continuing our membership. In the interim, I feel strongly that we need to show our support.

I am happy to share some exciting news from the Academy.

We have secured an amazing keynote speaker for the Opening Session in Boston. Lucille Beseler's vision for FNCE is to feature a strong businesswoman who can motivate and inspire our members. We have booked Barbara Corcoran, a nationally recognized personality who will be a big draw for all age groups.

<image003.jpg>As one of the "Sharks" on ABC's hit TV show "Shark Tank," Barbara has invested in 22 businesses, competing to make deals for all to see, then shepherding them to success. I am one of the many millions of fans who watch this popular network show.

Barbara Corcoran's "credentials" include straight D's in high school and college and 20 jobs by the time she turned 23. She took a $1,000 loan to start The Corcoran Group and became one of the most successful entrepreneurs in the country. Barbara's latest book, Shark Tales, takes readers behind the scenes of her life and business and televised venture capitalism. Famously brash and blunt, bold and courageous, Barbara is a brilliant identifier of opportunity and talent that is often invisible to others. Read more about Barbara at www.barbaracorcoran.com.

FNCE promotions are just beginning, and the Academy will aggressively promote this exciting featured speaker to all potential attendees.

Congratulations to Donna Martin! First Lady Michelle Obama will visit Burke County (Ga.) Middle School on April 7, joining Donna and her students to plant the school garden as part of her American Garden Tour highlighting the impact and benefits of diverse gardens across the country. Rural Burke County has a Farm to School Program that provides farm-fresh produce to its students daily. We will share this information with our members in Eat Right Weekly, eatrightPRO.org and on social media channels. By the way, Burke County Middle School was awarded a 2015-2016 General Mills Champions Grant through the Academy Foundation.

In addition, Donna has been invited by USDA's Under Secretary Kevin Concannon to address school nutrition policy changes at The Obesity Society meeting in New Orleans on November 4, 2016. Under Secretary Concannon recommended Donna join him as a panel member so that the audience would benefit from hearing a "real-world perspective from a progressive SFA director."

Thanks Pat for sharing this wonderful experience. If every First Lady was as passionate about nutrition as she is, we would accomplish our vision so much faster. When I told her I was the incoming president-elect of the Academy, she was so excited. She actually had already been told, but I wanted an opportunity to talk to her about our support of her Let's Move initiatives. I told her she had 75,000 RDN's and NDTR's on her team. This is all great news. This has been a very successful and busy year for the members in Public Policy.

On Saturday, April 9, 2016, Patricia Babjak <PBABJAK@eatright.org> wrote:

On April 7, 2016, the Senate unanimously passed the Older Americans Act (OAA) Reauthorization Act of 2016 (S.192). The Senate originally passed the bill in July 2015, and the House of Representatives passed an amended version on March 21. Due to these changes, the measure had to be reconsidered by the full Senate before being sent to the President for his signature.

Nutrition highlights in the bill include:

- Direct utilization of registered dietitian nutritionists in nutrition programs.

- Increased use of locally grown fresh foods in nutrition programs.
- Separate funding for congregate and home delivered meal programs.

The bill will now go to President Obama to be signed into law, which we expect to happen soon! This is a great bipartisan success, and thank you to all Academy members who worked for this reauthorization since 2011!

Now for a downer. We will have something very general as a response to DFPI on Monday. We don't want to show we instantly jump when they question us. We're using a process for deliberations and Andy and his non member colleagues should realize we listen to our members.

Subject: Hello from Dietitians For Professional Integrity

Dear Dr. Martin,

Dietitians For Professional Integrity extends its congratulations on your new position as President-Elect of the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics.

We very interested in advocating for sponsorship reform, and strongly believe dialogue with AND leadership is an important piece of our work.

We are pleased with some of the progress we have seen since our inception in February of 2013, including the formation of the Sponsorship Advisory Task Force in 2014.

Specifically regarding the recently revised sponsorship guidelines, some concerns and questions remain for us:

1) Some of the new guidelines (i.e.: "the sponsor's mission and vision align with AND's") existed in the previous version, under which PepsiCo -- and former sponsors Coca-Cola, Kellogg's, and General Mills -- was deemed an appropriate sponsor.

2) The guidelines focus on product portfolios and do not consider corporate behavior, lobbying history, and media statements as a measure of whether a company is an appropriate sponsor. Current sponsor PepsiCo, for example, has lobbied against soda taxes and against the inclusion of added sugar on the Nutrition Facts Panel. Its CEO has been quoted as saying that "if all consumers exercised... the problem of obesity wouldn't exist." How does this align with AND's mission and vision?

3) Are existing sponsors going to go through this review process? If so, how is PepsiCo an example of a company that "optimizes health through food and nutrition"?

4) Back in January 2016, it was announced that the Board of Directors "voted to implement a pilot program encompassing many of the SATF's recommendations." Can you comment on the status of this new committee and the development of assessment tools to support the sponsorship process?

Our position is not one of "zero sponsorship." While that is certainly an option, we don't see this as an issue of being "for" or "against" sponsorship. That rhetoric creates a dichotomy that only further divides dietitians and does not address systemic issues.

Instead, let's think about what kind of sponsorship is appropriate, relevant, and ethical for a health organization. We also don't think sponsors must be limited to the food sector; wellness, technology, and culinary companies could make for excellent partners.

We hear from dietitians and dietitians-to-be who have concerns about the current sponsorship model on a weekly basis. This is an issue of high priority for many of our colleagues.

We always welcome dialogue, and want you to know that you can always reach out to us for further conversation on this topic. Our foremost priority is to elevate the RDN credential. As evidenced by last year's Kraft Singles/Kids Eat Right controversy, sponsorship plays a large role in public perception of who we are and what we stand for.

Thank you for your time. We look forward to ongoing dialogue with you.

Sincerely,

Dietitians For Professional Integrity

THE WHITE HOUSE

Office of the First Lady

For Immediate Release

FIRST LADY MICHELLE OBAMA TO PLANT WHITE HOUSE KITCHEN GARDEN AND EMBARK ON AMERICAN GARDEN TOUR

Tuesday, April 5, 2016

The White House * 1:30 PM – The First Lady will welcome students from across the country as well as NASA representatives to plant the White House Kitchen Garden for the eighth year in a row, and final time as First Lady. In 2009, Mrs. Obama planted a vegetable garden on the South Lawn to initiate a national conversation around the health and wellbeing of our nation—a conversation that evolved into her Let's Move! initiative.

Mrs. Obama will be joined by students that have inspiring school garden programs from Wisconsin, Colorado, and Louisiana, and she will be joined by students from Bancroft Elementary School and Harriet Tubman Elementary School, who regularly help in the White House Kitchen Garden. The First Lady also invited some of the students from Bancroft Elementary who participated in the ground breaking of the garden and in the very first planting in 2009.

In addition, NASA Deputy Administrator Dava Newman and Astronaut Cady Coleman will join Mrs. Obama and the students to plant the same variety of lettuce that has been grown on the International Space Station.

The event will be livestreamed at www.whitehouse.gov/live.

MEDIA RSVP: This event is open to pre-credentialed media. Members of the media who wish to cover this event must RSVP to firstladypress@who.eop.gov by Monday, April 4, 2016. Members of the media who do not have a hard pass must submit their full name, date of birth, social security number, gender, and city and state.

Students joining the First Lady participate in the following garden programs:

Washburn School Garden Program – Washburn, Wisconsin

The mission of the Washburn School Garden Program is to cultivate environmental stewardship, foster human health, and develop ecological sustainability. The Washburn School District currently maintains a 6,400 square foot school garden and small orchard. Elementary grades each have a section of the garden to maintain throughout the year, and the middle school and high school have classes that use the garden extensively, culminating in an Agriprenuer program. Much of the food grown is used in the school food service, with additional food sold to the community.

Montezuma School to Farm Project – Cortez, Colorado

The Kemper Elementary School Garden is a program of the Mancos Conservation District's Montezuma School to Farm Project (MSTFP) in Cortez, Colorado. Kemper serves several Native American tribal communities along with a strong Hispanic community and students of families that were some of the first settlers in the area. With a strong indigenous and agricultural heritage, students learn science, math, health, and nutrition lessons through experiential education lessons that use native seed varieties and focus on drought resilient water and soil conservation practices. Produce that students grow in their school garden goes directly to school cafeteria meals, student taste testing, and is also utilized in youth farmers' markets.

Edible Schoolyard New Orleans (ESYNOLA) – New Orleans, Louisiana

ESYNOLA is a comprehensive seed-to-table food education program that aims to change the way children eat, learn, and live. The program offers hands-on gardening and kitchen classes that are integrated into the curriculum, culture, and cafeteria programs at the schools it serves. At Arthur Ashe Charter School, each grade level participates in garden classes where the students learn the importance of cultivating the soil, planting, nurturing, growing, sowing, and harvesting fruits, vegetables, herbs, and flowers. From wellness workshops to Family Food Nights, the program helps students learn the importance of eating healthy and connect their experiences in the garden to the subjects they are learning in their classrooms.

Thursday, April 7, 2016

The First Lady will continue her American Garden Tour to highlight the impact and benefits of diverse gardens across the country. Earlier this year, Mrs. Obama surprised students who participate in gardening programs at Watkins Elementary School and John Burroughs Elementary School in Washington, DC, along with a local family, who has made their backyard garden a community effort. In case you missed it, watch the video of the surprise visits HERE.

Burke County, Georgia * 11:00AM ET – The First Lady will visit Burke County Middle School and join students to plant the school garden.

Rural Burke County has a Farm to School Program that provides farm fresh produce to their students daily. By offering local, fresh fruits and vegetables, the school district found that student consumption rates of fruits and vegetables doubled. Burke County Middle School is home to the county's STEM-based learning garden, where students are writing a cookbook that incorporates food they are harvesting from their garden. The district also offers a bi-monthly farmers' market at the high school that showcases the locally grown food, and the district provides cooking demonstrations in class to reinforce the healthy habits being taught in the lunchroom.

This event will be open to pre-credentialed media. Please RSVP by Tuesday, April 5, 2016 at 5pm ET with full name and outlet to Ryan Vilfer at Vilfer.Ryan@gmail.com.

Newark, New Jersey * 3:00PM ET – The First Lady will join students at Philip's Academy Charter School to participate in planting their school garden.

Philip's Academy created the EcoSpaces Education program to connect students to food, how it's grown, and how it nourishes their bodies in order to empower them to make healthy choices throughout their lives. Students receive homemade meals prepared by their culinary team following USDA nutritional guidelines and served family style by the children at a community table. The school uses their learning environments—a rooftop garden, teaching kitchen, AeroFarms indoor growing lab, and dining room—to connect core curriculum to food literacy in an interactive way.

This event will be open to pre-credentialed media. Please RSVP by Tuesday, April 5, 2016 at 5pm ET with full name and outlet to Ken Campbell at kenjcampbell@gmail.com.

Subject: Hello from Dietitians For Professional Integrity

Dear Dr. Martin,

Dietitians For Professional Integrity extends its congratulations on your new position as President-Elect of the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics.

We very interested in advocating for sponsorship reform, and strongly believe dialogue with AND leadership is an important piece of our work.

We are pleased with some of the progress we have seen since our inception in February of 2013, including the formation of the Sponsorship Advisory Task Force in 2014.

Specifically regarding the recently revised sponsorship guidelines, some concerns and questions remain for us:

1) Some of the new guidelines (i.e.: "the sponsor's mission and vision align with AND's") existed in the previous version, under which PepsiCo -- and former sponsors Coca-Cola, Kellogg's, and General Mills -- was deemed an appropriate sponsor.

2) The guidelines focus on product portfolios and do not consider corporate behavior, lobbying history, and media statements as a measure of whether a company is an appropriate sponsor. Current sponsor PepsiCo, for example, has lobbied against soda taxes and against the inclusion of added sugar on the Nutrition Facts Panel. Its CEO has been quoted as saying that "if all consumers exercised... the problem of obesity wouldn't exist." How does this align with AND's mission and vision?

3) Are existing sponsors going to go through this review process? If so, how is PepsiCo an example of a company that "optimizes health through food and nutrition"?

4) Back in January 2016, it was announced that the Board of Directors "voted to implement a pilot program encompassing many of the SATF's recommendations." Can you comment on the status of this new committee and the development of assessment tools to support the sponsorship process?

Our position is not one of "zero sponsorship." While that is certainly an option, we don't see this as an issue of being "for" or "against" sponsorship. That rhetoric creates a dichotomy that only further divides dietitians and does not address systemic issues.

Instead, let's think about what kind of sponsorship is appropriate, relevant, and ethical for a health organization. We also don't think sponsors must be limited to the food sector; wellness, technology, and culinary companies could make for excellent partners.

We hear from dietitians and dietitians-to-be who have concerns about the current sponsorship model on a weekly basis. This is an issue of high priority for many of our colleagues.

We always welcome dialogue, and want you to know that you can always reach out to us for further conversation on this topic. Our foremost priority is to elevate the RDN credential. As evidenced by last year's Kraft Singles/Kids Eat Right controversy, sponsorship plays a large role in public perception of who we are and what we stand for.

Thank you for your time. We look forward to ongoing dialogue with you.

Sincerely,

Dietitians For Professional Integrity

Dear Dr. Martin,

Dietitians For Professional Integrity extends its congratulations on your new position as President-Elect of the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics.

We very interested in advocating for sponsorship reform, and strongly believe dialogue with AND leadership is an important piece of our work.

We are pleased with some of the progress we have seen since our inception in February of 2013, including the formation of the Sponsorship Advisory Task Force in 2014.

Specifically regarding the recently revised sponsorship guidelines, some concerns and questions remain for us:

1) Some of the new guidelines (i.e.: "the sponsor's mission and vision align with AND's") existed in the previous version, under which PepsiCo -- and former sponsors Coca-Cola, Kellogg's, and General Mills -- was deemed an appropriate sponsor.

2) The guidelines focus on product portfolios and do not consider corporate behavior, lobbying history, and media statements as a measure of whether a company is an appropriate sponsor. Current sponsor PepsiCo, for example, has lobbied against soda taxes and against the inclusion of added sugar on the Nutrition Facts Panel. Its CEO has been quoted as saying that "if all consumers exercised... the problem of obesity wouldn't exist." How does this align with AND's mission and vision?

3) Are existing sponsors going to go through this review process? If so, how is PepsiCo an example of a company that "optimizes health through food and nutrition"?

4) Back in January 2016, it was announced that the Board of Directors "voted to implement a pilot program encompassing many of the SATF's recommendations." Can you comment on the status of this new committee and the development of assessment tools to support the sponsorship process?

Our position is not one of "zero sponsorship." While that is certainly an option, we don't see this as an issue of being "for" or "against" sponsorship. That rhetoric creates a dichotomy that only further divides dietitians and does not address systemic issues.

Instead, let's think about what kind of sponsorship is appropriate, relevant, and ethical for a health organization. We also don't think sponsors must be limited to the food sector; wellness, technology, and culinary companies could make for excellent partners.

We hear from dietitians and dietitians-to-be who have concerns about the current sponsorship model on a weekly basis. This is an issue of high priority for many of our colleagues.

We always welcome dialogue, and want you to know that you can always reach out to us for further conversation on this topic. Our foremost priority is to elevate the RDN credential. As evidenced by last year's Kraft Singles/Kids Eat Right controversy, sponsorship plays a large role in public perception of who we are and what we stand for.

Thank you for your time. We look forward to ongoing dialogue with you.

Sincerely,

Doris, They are not going to release the official White House photos for three weeks. I will get you those as soon as I can. The only photos out that I have seen are on Facebook and Twitter. The True Citizen in Waynesboro has posted some pictures on their Facebook page. You can look at my Facebook page and see what people are posting and where it is coming from. There is a link to a live feed on there also. Sorry I can't be much help, but it will be on the today show tomorrow (Friday).

THE WHITE HOUSE

Office of the First Lady

For Immediate Release

FIRST LADY MICHELLE OBAMA TO PLANT WHITE HOUSE KITCHEN GARDEN AND EMBARK ON AMERICAN GARDEN TOUR

Tuesday, April 5, 2016

The White House * 1:30 PM – The First Lady will welcome students from across the country as well as NASA representatives to plant the White House Kitchen Garden for the eighth year in a row, and final time as First Lady. In 2009, Mrs. Obama planted a vegetable garden on the South Lawn to initiate a national conversation around the health and wellbeing of our nation—a conversation that evolved into her Let's Move! initiative.

Mrs. Obama will be joined by students that have inspiring school garden programs from Wisconsin, Colorado, and Louisiana, and she will be joined by students from Bancroft Elementary School and Harriet Tubman Elementary School, who regularly help in the White House Kitchen Garden. The First Lady also invited some of the students from Bancroft Elementary who participated in the ground breaking of the garden and in the very first planting in 2009.

In addition, NASA Deputy Administrator Dava Newman and Astronaut Cady Coleman will join Mrs. Obama and the students to plant the same variety of lettuce that has been grown on the International Space Station.

The event will be livestreamed at www.whitehouse.gov/live.

MEDIA RSVP: This event is open to pre-credentialed media. Members of the media who wish to cover this event must RSVP to firstladypress@who.eop.gov by Monday, April 4, 2016. Members of the media who do not have a hard pass must submit their full name, date of birth, social security number, gender, and city and state.

Students joining the First Lady participate in the following garden programs:

Washburn School Garden Program – Washburn, Wisconsin

The mission of the Washburn School Garden Program is to cultivate environmental stewardship, foster human health, and develop ecological sustainability. The Washburn School District currently maintains a 6,400 square foot school garden and small orchard. Elementary grades each have a section of the garden to maintain throughout the year, and the middle school and high school have classes that use the garden extensively, culminating in an Agriprenuer program. Much of the food grown is used in the school food service, with additional food sold to the community.

Montezuma School to Farm Project – Cortez, Colorado

The Kemper Elementary School Garden is a program of the Mancos Conservation District's Montezuma School to Farm Project (MSTFP) in Cortez, Colorado. Kemper serves several Native American tribal communities along with a strong Hispanic community and students of families that were some of the first settlers in the area. With a strong indigenous and agricultural heritage, students learn science, math, health, and nutrition lessons through experiential education lessons that use native seed varieties and focus on drought resilient water and soil conservation practices. Produce that students grow in their school garden goes directly to school cafeteria meals, student taste testing, and is also utilized in youth farmers' markets.

Edible Schoolyard New Orleans (ESYNOLA) – New Orleans, Louisiana

ESYNOLA is a comprehensive seed-to-table food education program that aims to change the way children eat, learn, and live. The program offers hands-on gardening and kitchen classes that are integrated into the curriculum, culture, and cafeteria programs at the schools it serves. At Arthur Ashe Charter School, each grade level participates in garden classes where the students learn the importance of cultivating the soil, planting, nurturing, growing, sowing, and harvesting fruits, vegetables, herbs, and flowers. From wellness workshops to Family Food Nights, the program helps students learn the importance of eating healthy and connect their experiences in the garden to the subjects they are learning in their classrooms.

The First Lady will continue her American Garden Tour to highlight the impact and benefits of diverse gardens across the country. Earlier this year, Mrs. Obama surprised students who participate in gardening programs at Watkins Elementary School and John Burroughs Elementary School in Washington, DC, along with a local family, who has made their backyard garden a community effort. In case you missed it, watch the video of the surprise visits HERE.

Burke County, Georgia * 11:00AM ET – The First Lady will visit Burke County Middle School and join students to plant the school garden.

Rural Burke County has a Farm to School Program that provides farm fresh produce to their students daily. By offering local, fresh fruits and vegetables, the school district found that student consumption rates of fruits and vegetables doubled. Burke County Middle School is home to the county's STEM-based learning garden, where students are writing a cookbook that incorporates food they are harvesting from their garden. The district also offers a bi-monthly farmers' market at the high school that showcases the locally grown food, and the district provides cooking demonstrations in class to reinforce the healthy habits being taught in the lunchroom.

This event will be open to pre-credentialed media. Please RSVP by Tuesday, April 5, 2016 at 5pm ET with full name and outlet to Ryan Vilfer at Vilfer.Ryan@gmail.com.

Newark, New Jersey * 3:00PM ET – The First Lady will join students at Philip's Academy Charter School to participate in planting their school garden.

Philip's Academy created the EcoSpaces Education program to connect students to food, how it's grown, and how it nourishes their bodies in order to empower them to make healthy choices throughout their lives. Students receive homemade meals prepared by their culinary team following USDA nutritional guidelines and served family style by the children at a community table. The school uses their learning environments—a rooftop garden, teaching kitchen, AeroFarms indoor growing lab, and dining room—to connect core curriculum to food literacy in an interactive way.

This event will be open to pre-credentialed media. Please RSVP by Tuesday, April 5, 2016 at 5pm ET with full name and outlet to Ken Campbell at kenjcampbell@gmail.com.

Hello,

I am looking forward to seeing all of you in Denver for Nutrition News Forecast. Attached is some logistical information as you start preparing for your trip. This includes the agenda and details for the headshot session that will be taking place on Saturday morning. At your convenience, please review and let me know if you have any questions.

Also, all three of you happen to be on the same flight that lands at 7:30pm on Friday night. I think this will make it difficult for you to make our Friday night dinner with the Spokespeople, which starts at 6:30. So please do not feel like you need to rush to the restaurant. We will likely be wrapping up by the time you would arrive. Please eat at your own convenience, and we will see you bright and early on Saturday morning. See you soon!

Thanks,

Amanda Cohen

2. Participate in all Pre-PPW webinar trainings. All webinars will be recorded and posted to the PPW community of interest. All PPW attendees are expected to participate in the pre-PPW webinars.
3. Assist with training his/her affiliate's attendees prior to arrival at PPW.

As of today, 17 affiliates have submitted the name of the PPC who will be serving in the role beginning June 1, 2015. Each Affiliate PPC will receive a separate email with registration instructions.

As affiliates identify the PPW 2016 teams, we encourage you to consider sending additional members of your public policy panel such as the SPR, SRS, CPC and RR.

PPW 2016 DPG and MIG Information

Each DPG and MIG's Policy and Advocacy Leader (PAL) whose term begins on June 1, 2016 will receive a complimentary registration to PPW 2016. 5. Attend Congressional meetings on the Hill for members from his/her affiliate
6. Assist the affiliate PPC as requested
7. Submit reports after Congressional meetings on the Hill on June 24
8. Attend in-district Congressional follow up visits

Since the PAL job requires significant commitment, the scholarship cannot be transferred without approval from Academy staff.

As of today, 12 DPGs and 4 MIGs have submitted the name of the PAL who will be serving in the role beginning June 1, 2016. Each DPG/MIG PAL will receive a separate email with registration instructions.

Action Alert Reminder: Senate Bill -- Child Nutrition and Hunger Programs

Did you send your members a reminder last week about supporting the Senate Agriculture Committee's bipartisan reauthorization of child nutrition programs bill, titled the Improving Child Nutrition Integrity and Access Act of 2016?

As of today, only 3.5% or 2,546 Academy members have responded to the action alert. The U. S. Senators need to know that their constituents strongly support this bill, which incorporates many of the Academy's recommendations to support healthy meals and promote nutrition education for our children. We expect a vote on this bill in the Senate later this spring.

Please send the following message to your membership, if you did not send the message last week:

*Subject line: Action Alert: Child Nutrition and Hunger Programs in the Senate

Your Senators need to know that their constituents strongly support the bi-partisan Child Nutrition Integrity and Access Act of 2016, which incorporates many of the Academy's recommendations to support healthy meals and promote nutrition education for our children.

Please take action today to support healthy meals for hungry children.

I am happy to share some exciting news from the Academy.

We have secured an amazing keynote speaker for the Opening Session in Boston. Lucille Beseler's vision for FNCE is to feature a strong businesswoman who can motivate and inspire our members. We have booked Barbara Corcoran, a nationally recognized personality who will be a big draw for all age groups.

<image003.jpg>As one of the "Sharks" on ABC's hit TV show "Shark Tank," Barbara has invested in 22 businesses, competing to make deals for all to see, then shepherding them to success. I am one of the many millions of fans who watch this popular network show.

Barbara Corcoran's "credentials" include straight D's in high school and college and 20 jobs by the time she turned 23. She took a $1,000 loan to start The Corcoran Group and became one of the most successful entrepreneurs in the country. Barbara's latest book, Shark Tales, takes readers behind the scenes of her life and business and televised venture capitalism. Famously brash and blunt, bold and courageous, Barbara is a brilliant identifier of opportunity and talent that is often invisible to others. Read more about Barbara at www.barbaracorcoran.com.

FNCE promotions are just beginning, and the Academy will aggressively promote this exciting featured speaker to all potential attendees.

Congratulations to Donna Martin! First Lady Michelle Obama will visit Burke County (Ga.) Middle School on April 7, joining Donna and her students to plant the school garden as part of her American Garden Tour highlighting the impact and benefits of diverse gardens across the country. Rural Burke County has a Farm to School Program that provides farm-fresh produce to its students daily. We will share this information with our members in Eat Right Weekly, eatrightPRO.org and on social media channels. By the way, Burke County Middle School was awarded a 2015-2016 General Mills Champions Grant through the Academy Foundation.

In addition, Donna has been invited by USDA's Under Secretary Kevin Concannon to address school nutrition policy changes at The Obesity Society meeting in New Orleans on November 4, 2016. Under Secretary Concannon recommended Donna join him as a panel member so that the audience would benefit from hearing a "real-world perspective from a progressive SFA director."

Paul told me about his suggestion that you consider not attending the Congress this year in Spain due to budget constraints. As primary stakeholders (we pay 50% of the dues, prorated based on total membership), our absence would be a political mistake. You are there as the Academy's top leadership, Sylvia is a Board member and our delegate, and I am the alternate delegate. I think we need to carefully assess the ROI and the benefits to our international strategic plan, including potential global initiatives emanating from the Second Century Summit and then make an informed decision regarding continuing our membership. In the interim, I feel strongly that we need to show our support.

Greetings from ACEND,

The Accreditation Council for Education in Nutrition and Dietetics (ACEND[®]) is writing to keep you informed of our standards development work. A copy of the April update is posted on the ACEND Standards webpage www.eatrightacend.org/ACEND/Standards.

The Aprilupdate explains the process of developing competency statements for the future education model programs. This process includes a validation study of the competencies. On April 7 and 8, the survey will be sent to random samples of RDNs, NDTRs and other stakeholders who will be asked to rate the importance of these competencies for future practice in nutrition and dietetics. If you receive the questionnaire, we encourage you to take time to respond. Respondents can earn CPE credit for participating.

The update also answers questions we received at the ACEND virtual town hall meeting in March. We invite all stakeholders who are interested in learning more about the work of ACEND to attend these meetings which are held the second Thursday of each month at 11:30 a.m. Central Time. The next meeting will occur April 14. Information for connecting to the virtual town hall is posted on the ACEND Standards webpage www.eatrightacend.org/ACEND/Standards.

ACEND also continues to gather feedback on the draft 2017 Standards through an open survey to the public. The 2017 draft standards are the result of a planned five-year review cycle of the current 2012 Accreditation Standards to ensure compliance with USDE regulations; and are different from the future education model associate's, bachelor's and master's degree standards that will be released for public comment later this year. We encourage you to provide input on the 2017 Standards at the following survey link prior to Friday, May 13, 2016.

•<https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/2017Std2>

Please share this information with your constituents/colleagues. If you or they have questions, please send them to acend@eatright.org or call 312-899-4872, so we can respond to them. Future editions of the monthly update will include these questions and an ACEND response.

Thank you so much.

I am happy to announce that we have secured an amazing keynote speaker for the Opening Session in Boston. Lucille's vision for FNCE is to feature a strong businesswoman who can motivate and inspire our members. We have booked Barbara Corcoran, a nationally recognized personality who will be a big draw for all age groups.

<image003.jpg>As one of the "Sharks" on ABC's hit TV show "Shark Tank," Barbara has invested in 22 businesses, competing to make deals for all to see, then shepherding them to success. I am one of the many millions of fans who watch this popular network show.

Barbara Corcoran's "credentials" include straight D's in high school and college and 20 jobs by the time she turned 23. She took a $1,000 loan to start The Corcoran Group and became one of the most successful entrepreneurs in the country.

Barbara's latest book, Shark Tales, takes readers behind the scenes of her life and business and televised venture capitalism. Famously brash and blunt, bold and courageous, Barbara is a brilliant identifier of opportunity and talent that is often invisible to others. Read more about Barbara at www.barbaracorcoran.com.

FNCE promotions are just beginning, and the Academy will aggressively promote this exciting featured speaker to all potential attendees.

Thank you, Lucille, for your vision and recommendation of Barbara Corcoran!

Congrats to Donna Martin! First Lady Michelle Obama will visit Burke County (Ga.) Middle School on April 7, joining Donna and her students to plant the school garden as part of her American Garden Tour highlighting the impact and benefits of diverse gardens across the country. Rural Burke County has a Farm to School Program that provides farm-fresh produce to its students daily. We will share this information with our members in Eat Right Weekly, eatrightPRO.org and on social media channels.

In addition, Donna has been invited by USDA's Under Secretary Kevin Concannon to address school nutrition policy changes at The Obesity Society meeting in New Orleans on November 4, 2016. Under Secretary Concannon recommended Donna join him as a panel member so that the audience would benefit from hearing a "real-world perspective from a progressive SFA director."

Subject: Opening Session keynote speaker

Importance: High

I am happy to announce that we have secured an amazing keynote speaker for the Opening Session in Boston. Lucille's vision for FNCE is to feature a strong businesswoman who can motivate and inspire our members. We have booked Barbara Corcoran, a nationally recognized personality who will be a big draw for all age groups.

As one of the "Sharks" on ABC's hit TV show "Shark Tank," Barbara has invested in 22 businesses, competing to make deals for all to see, then shepherding them to success. I am one of the many millions of fans who watch this popular network show.

Barbara Corcoran's "credentials" include straight D's in high school and college and 20 jobs by the time she turned 23. She took a $1,000 loan to start The Corcoran Group and became one of the most successful entrepreneurs in the country.

Barbara's latest book, Shark Tales, takes readers behind the scenes of her life and business and televised venture capitalism. Famously brash and blunt, bold and courageous, Barbara is a brilliant identifier of opportunity and talent that is often invisible to others. Read more about Barbara at www.barbaracorcoran.com.

FNCE promotions are just beginning, and the Academy will aggressively promote this exciting featured speaker to all potential attendees.

Thank you, Lucille, for your vision and recommendation of Barbara Corcoran!

Best regards,

Pat

Importance: High

I am happy to announce that we have secured an amazing keynote speaker for the Opening Session in Boston. Lucille's vision for FNCE is to feature a strong businesswoman who can motivate and inspire our members. We have booked Barbara Corcoran, a nationally recognized personality who will be a big draw for all age groups.

<image002.jpg>As one of the "Sharks" on ABC's hit TV show "Shark Tank," Barbara has invested in 22 businesses, competing to make deals for all to see, then shepherding them to success. I am one of the many millions of fans who watch this popular network show.

Barbara Corcoran's "credentials" include straight D's in high school and college and 20 jobs by the time she turned 23. She took a $1,000 loan to start The Corcoran Group and became one of the most successful entrepreneurs in the country.

Barbara's latest book, Shark Tales, takes readers behind the scenes of her life and business and televised venture capitalism. Famously brash and blunt, bold and courageous, Barbara is a brilliant identifier of opportunity and talent that is often invisible to others. Read more about Barbara at www.barbaracorcoran.com.

FNCE promotions are just beginning, and the Academy will aggressively promote this exciting featured speaker to all potential attendees.

Thank you, Lucille, for your vision and recommendation of Barbara Corcoran!

Best regards,

Pat

In addition, Donna has been invited by USDA's Under Secretary Kevin Concannon to address school nutrition policy changes at The Obesity Society meeting in New Orleans on November 4, 2016. Under Secretary Concannon recommended Donna join him as a panel member so that the audience would benefit from hearing a "real-world perspective from a progressive SFA director."

Rural Burke County has a Farm to School Program that provides farm-fresh produce to its students daily. We will share this information with our members in Eat Right Weekly, eatrightPRO.org and on social media channels.

In addition, Donna has been invited by USDA's Under Secretary Kevin Concannon to address school nutrition policy changes at The Obesity Society meeting in New Orleans on November 4, 2016. Under Secretary Concannon recommended Donna join him as a panel member so that the audience would benefit from hearing a "real-world perspective from a progressive SFA director."

Subject: Opening Session keynote speaker

I am happy to announce that we have secured an amazing keynote speaker for the Opening Session in Boston. Lucille's vision for FNCE is to feature a strong businesswoman who can motivate and inspire our members. We have booked Barbara Corcoran, a nationally recognized personality who will be a big draw for all age groups.

As one of the "Sharks" on ABC's hit TV show "Shark Tank," Barbara has invested in 22 businesses, competing to make deals for all to see, then shepherding them to success. I am one of the many millions of fans who watch this popular network show.

Barbara Corcoran's "credentials" include straight D's in high school and college and 20 jobs by the time she turned 23. She took a $1,000 loan to start The Corcoran Group and became one of the most successful entrepreneurs in the country.

Barbara's latest book, Shark Tales, takes readers behind the scenes of her life and business and televised venture capitalism. Famously brash and blunt, bold and courageous, Barbara is a brilliant identifier of opportunity and talent that is often invisible to others. Read more about Barbara at www.barbaracorcoran.com.

FNCE promotions are just beginning, and the Academy will aggressively promote this exciting featured speaker to all potential attendees.

Thank you, Lucille, for your vision and recommendation of Barbara Corcoran!

FIRST LADY MICHELLE OBAMA TO PLANT WHITE HOUSE KITCHEN GARDEN AND EMBARK ON AMERICAN GARDEN TOUR

Tuesday, April 5, 2016

The White House * 1:30 PM – The First Lady will welcome students from across the country as well as NASA representatives to plant the White House Kitchen Garden for the eighth year in a row, and final time as First Lady. In 2009, Mrs. Obama planted a vegetable garden on the South Lawn to initiate a national conversation around the health and wellbeing of our nation—a conversation that evolved into her Let's Move! initiative.

Mrs. Obama will be joined by students that have inspiring school garden programs from Wisconsin, Colorado, and Louisiana, and she will be joined by students from Bancroft Elementary School and Harriet Tubman Elementary School, who regularly help in the White House Kitchen Garden. The First Lady also invited some of the students from Bancroft Elementary who participated in the ground breaking of the garden and in the very first planting in 2009.

In addition, NASA Deputy Administrator Dava Newman and Astronaut Cady Coleman will join Mrs. Obama and the students to plant the same variety of lettuce that has been grown on the International Space Station.

The event will be livestreamed at www.whitehouse.gov/live.

MEDIA RSVP: This event is open to pre-credentialed media. Members of the media who wish to cover this event must RSVP to firstladypress@who.eop.gov by Monday, April 4, 2016. Members of the media who do not have a hard pass must submit their full name, date of birth, social security number, gender, and city and state.

Students joining the First Lady participate in the following garden programs:

Washburn School Garden Program – Washburn, Wisconsin

The mission of the Washburn School Garden Program is to cultivate environmental stewardship, foster human health, and develop ecological sustainability. The Washburn School District currently maintains a 6,400 square foot school garden and small orchard. Elementary grades each have a section of the garden to maintain throughout the year, and the middle school and high school have classes that use the garden extensively, culminating in an Agriprenuer program. Much of the food grown is used in the school food service, with additional food sold to the community.

Montezuma School to Farm Project – Cortez, Colorado

The Kemper Elementary School Garden is a program of the Mancos Conservation District's Montezuma School to Farm Project (MSTFP) in Cortez, Colorado. Kemper serves several Native American tribal communities along with a strong Hispanic community and students of families that were some of the first settlers in the area. With a strong indigenous and agricultural heritage, students learn science, math, health, and nutrition lessons through experiential education lessons that use native seed varieties and focus on drought resilient water and soil conservation practices. Produce that students grow in their school garden goes directly to school cafeteria meals, student taste testing, and is also utilized in youth farmers' markets.

Edible Schoolyard New Orleans (ESYNOLA) – New Orleans, Louisiana

ESYNOLA is a comprehensive seed-to-table food education program that aims to change the way children eat, learn, and live. The program offers hands-on gardening and kitchen classes that are integrated into the curriculum, culture, and cafeteria programs at the schools it serves. At Arthur Ashe Charter School, each grade level participates in garden classes where the students learn the importance of cultivating the soil, planting, nurturing, growing, sowing, and harvesting fruits, vegetables, herbs, and flowers. From wellness workshops to Family Food Nights, the program helps students learn the importance of eating healthy and connect their experiences in the garden to the subjects they are learning in their classrooms.

Thursday, April 7, 2016

The First Lady will continue her American Garden Tour to highlight the impact and benefits of diverse gardens across the country. Earlier this year, Mrs. Obama surprised students who participate in gardening programs at Watkins Elementary School and John Burroughs Elementary School in Washington, DC, along with a local family, who has made their backyard garden a community effort. In case you missed it, watch the video of the surprise visits HERE.

Burke County, Georgia * 11:00AM ET – The First Lady will visit Burke County Middle School and join students to plant the school garden.

Rural Burke County has a Farm to School Program that provides farm fresh produce to their students daily. By offering local, fresh fruits and vegetables, the school district found that student consumption rates of fruits and vegetables doubled. Burke County Middle School is home to the county's STEM-based learning garden, where students are writing a cookbook that incorporates food they are harvesting from their garden. The district also offers a bi-monthly farmers' market at the high school that showcases the locally grown food, and the district provides cooking demonstrations in class to reinforce the healthy habits being taught in the lunchroom.

This event will be open to pre-credentialed media. Please RSVP by Tuesday, April 5, 2016 at 5pm ET with full name and outlet to Ryan Vilfer at Vilfer.Ryan@gmail.com.

Newark, New Jersey * 3:00PM ET – The First Lady will join students at Philip's Academy Charter School to participate in planting their school garden.

Philip's Academy created the EcoSpaces Education program to connect students to food, how it's grown, and how it nourishes their bodies in order to empower them to make healthy choices throughout their lives. Students receive homemade meals prepared by their culinary team following USDA nutritional guidelines and served family style by the children at a community table. The school uses their learning environments—a rooftop garden, teaching kitchen, AeroFarms indoor growing lab, and dining room—to connect core curriculum to food literacy in an interactive way.

This event will be open to pre-credentialed media. Please RSVP by Tuesday, April 5, 2016 at 5pm ET with full name and outlet to Ken Campbell at kenjcampbell@gmail.com.

THE WHITE HOUSE

Office of the First Lady

For Immediate Release

April 1, 2016

FIRST LADY MICHELLE OBAMA TO PLANT WHITE HOUSE KITCHEN GARDEN AND EMBARK ON AMERICAN GARDEN TOUR

Tuesday, April 5, 2016

The White House * 1:30 PM – The First Lady will welcome students from across the country as well as NASA representatives to plant the White House Kitchen Garden for the eighth year in a row, and final time as First Lady. In 2009, Mrs. Obama planted a vegetable garden on the South Lawn to initiate a national conversation around the health and wellbeing of our nation—a conversation that evolved into her Let's Move! initiative.

Mrs. Obama will be joined by students that have inspiring school garden programs from Wisconsin, Colorado, and Louisiana, and she will be joined by students from Bancroft Elementary School and Harriet Tubman Elementary School, who regularly help in the White House Kitchen Garden. The First Lady also invited some of the students from Bancroft Elementary who participated in the ground breaking of the garden and in the very first planting in 2009.

In addition, NASA Deputy Administrator Dava Newman and Astronaut Cady Coleman will join Mrs. Obama and the students to plant the same variety of lettuce that has been grown on the International Space Station.

The event will be livestreamed at www.whitehouse.gov/live.

MEDIA RSVP: This event is open to pre-credentialed media. Members of the media who wish to cover this event must RSVP to firstladypress@who.eop.gov by Monday, April 4, 2016. Members of the media who do not have a hard pass must submit their full name, date of birth, social security number, gender, and city and state.

Students joining the First Lady participate in the following garden programs:

Washburn School Garden Program – Washburn, Wisconsin

The mission of the Washburn School Garden Program is to cultivate environmental stewardship, foster human health, and develop ecological sustainability. The Washburn School District currently maintains a 6,400 square foot school garden and small orchard. Elementary grades each have a section of the garden to maintain throughout the year, and the middle school and high school have classes that use the garden extensively, culminating in an Agriprenuer program. Much of the food grown is used in the school food service, with additional food sold to the community.

Montezuma School to Farm Project – Cortez, Colorado

The Kemper Elementary School Garden is a program of the Mancos Conservation District's Montezuma School to Farm Project (MSTFP) in Cortez, Colorado. Kemper serves several Native American tribal communities along with a strong Hispanic community and students of families that were some of the first settlers in the area. With a strong indigenous and agricultural heritage, students learn science, math, health, and nutrition lessons through experiential education lessons that use native seed varieties and focus on drought resilient water and soil conservation practices. Produce that students grow in their school garden goes directly to school cafeteria meals, student taste testing, and is also utilized in youth farmers' markets.

Edible Schoolyard New Orleans (ESYNOLA) – New Orleans, Louisiana

ESYNOLA is a comprehensive seed-to-table food education program that aims to change the way children eat, learn, and live. The program offers hands-on gardening and kitchen classes that are integrated into the curriculum, culture, and cafeteria programs at the schools it serves. At Arthur

Ashe Charter School, each grade level participates in garden classes where the students learn the importance of cultivating the soil, planting, nurturing, growing, sowing, and harvesting fruits, vegetables, herbs, and flowers. From wellness workshops to Family Food Nights, the program helps students learn the importance of eating healthy and connect their experiences in the garden to the subjects they are learning in their classrooms.

Thursday, April 7, 2016

The First Lady will continue her American Garden Tour to highlight the impact and benefits of diverse gardens across the country. Earlier this year, Mrs. Obama surprised students who participate in gardening programs at Watkins Elementary School and John Burroughs Elementary School in Washington, DC, along with a local family, who has made their backyard garden a community effort. In case you missed it, watch the video of the surprise visits HERE.

Burke County, Georgia * 11:00AM ET – The First Lady will visit Burke County Middle School and join students to plant the school garden.

Rural Burke County has a Farm to School Program that provides farm fresh produce to their students daily. By offering local, fresh fruits and vegetables, the school district found that student consumption rates of fruits and vegetables doubled. Burke County Middle School is home to the county's STEM-based learning garden, where students are writing a cookbook that incorporates food they are harvesting from their garden. The district also offers a bi-monthly farmers' market at the high school that showcases the locally grown food, and the district provides cooking demonstrations in class to reinforce the healthy habits being taught in the lunchroom.

This event will be open to pre-credentialed media. Please RSVP by Tuesday, April 5, 2016 at 5pm ET with full name and outlet to Ryan Vilfer at Vilfer.Ryan@gmail.com.

Newark, New Jersey * 3:00PM ET – The First Lady will join students at Philip's Academy Charter School to participate in planting their school garden.

Philip's Academy created the EcoSpaces Education program to connect students to food, how it's grown, and how it nourishes their bodies in order to empower them to make healthy choices throughout their lives. Students receive homemade meals prepared by their culinary team following USDA nutritional guidelines and served family style by the children at a community table. The school uses their learning environments—a rooftop garden, teaching kitchen, AeroFarms indoor growing lab, and dining room—to connect core curriculum to food literacy in an interactive way.

This event will be open to pre-credentialed media. Please RSVP by Tuesday, April 5, 2016 at 5pm ET with full name and outlet to Ken Campbell at kenjcampbell@gmail.com.

Shout out to our blog in morning ag.

- Health leaders are defending the role farm-to-school programs play in teaching kids healthy eating habits after an article in POLITICO's The Agenda questioned the value of such efforts.

Thanks again, Donna, for being willing to co-write this with us! And Jenn - for being such a hero in facilitating between AND and NFSN.

With help from Jason Huffman, Catherine Boudreau and Helena Bottemiller Evich

OPTIMISM BUILDS FOR NEW ENGLAND GMO LABELING PUSH: Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island have long been looking to implement their own GMO labeling statutes, and the rash of companies labeling to comply with Vermont might be just the cover they need to get it done. Labeling supporters are optimistic that legislatures in the three New England states will make a move this year now that Vermont's measure has survived legal and congressional challenges, and food companies have agreed to label without passing those costs onto consumers.

"The state legislatures have definitely been watching what's going on at the federal level, and they are busy, so they don't want to act if the federal government is going to come in and preempt them," said Tara Cook Littman of Citizens for GMO labeling. "I think things kind of were on hold a little bit and are going to pick up now."

New bills in Massachusetts and Rhode Island largely mirror the law in Vermont, while legislation in Connecticut would remove trigger provisions in an existing labeling law that requires at least four other states (one of which must share a border with Connecticut) that total more than 20 million people to enact a similar measure before the statute can go into effect. All three efforts have broad support in their respective state legislatures. Lawmakers are wrapping up in Hartford in the first week of May and Boston and Providence in the beginning of June, so time is running short. But Cook Littman told MA that the time frame shouldn't be too much of a problem given that most bills aren't dealt with until the last few weeks of a session anyway. GMO labeling measures have been taken up by all three states' legislatures in past years, laying the groundwork for passage now.

"These are not new bills so I think there is a real possibility that all three bills could move forward," she said, adding that if one passes "that will really open the door for the other two states."

HAPPY TUESDAY, MARCH 29! Welcome to Morning Ag where it seems that this was the year for Easter Peep feature story . Seems MA needs to get on the marshmallow beat right away. You know the deal: Thoughts, news, tips, Peep-sicles? Send them to jhopkinson@politico.com or @jennyhops. Follow the whole team @Morning_Ag.

AND MAINERS COULD BE HEADED TO BALLOT BOX, TOO: In case you missed it, the Maine House of Representatives passed a bill late last week that also would lob to voters the question of whether to repeal a trigger clause in the state's GMO labeling law. Currently the measure is set to go into effect only if five contiguous states pass similar measures by 2018. However, the bill faces an uphill battle, according to reports from New Hampshire Public Radio. The measure passed the Democrat-controlled House on a party-line vote, and the GOP Senate and governor have been frosty on the issue, according to NHPR.

IT'S NOT JUST THE NORTHEAST THAT'S INTERESTED IN GMOS: While the bills in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island seem the most likely to get passed this year, legislators in Tennessee, Florida, Hawaii, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York and Oregon have also considered labeling laws this spring. Meanwhile, lawmakers in Alaska and Mississippi have mulled restrictions on the sale and cultivation of GMO salmon. Meanwhile, on the other side of the GMO battle, Kansas, Missouri and Wyoming legislatures have looked at resolutions that would urge the U.S. Congress to block labeling.

OBAMA'S ANTIBIOTICS PROGRESS REPORT: To help slow antibiotic resistant bacteria in animal agriculture, the Obama administration should: be able to measure the effectiveness of FDA policies designed to phase out use for growth promotion and expand the oversight of veterinarians; work with state, agriculture industry and academic partners to increase educational outreach, surveillance and develop alternatives to the drugs; and secure continuous funding for these initiatives. Those are a few of the many recommendations contained in a 125-page draft report by a panel of government officials, healthcare professionals, academic experts and industry representatives, a copy of which was obtained by Morning Ag.

The President's Advisory Council on Combating Antibiotic Resistant Bacteria will vote on the report - which also outlines recommendations for human medicine and government-wide progress on a national action plan rolled out last year - at the end of a two-day meeting in Washington on Thursday.

For public health advocates, the recommendations reflect more of the same from the Obama administration and don't go far enough. Namely, there are no reduction targets for antibiotic use in animal agriculture. "Animal agriculture and veterinary oversight are a key component to a successful antibiotic-resistance mitigation strategy," says Susan Vaughn Grooters, policy analyst at Keep Antibiotics Working. "Without clear, concise, and measurable calls for reduction of antibiotic use in animal agriculture from the administration, an opportunity could be lost for more targeted and achievable reforms." Read the report here.

AG GROUPS RAMP UP PRESSURE FOR PSM FIX: Dozens of agriculture groups are pushing House appropriators to require the Occupational Health and Safety Administration to scrap its plan to start applying certain hazardous material storage rules to agricultural retailers, arguing that if OSHA wants to make the change it should have to do so through a formal rulemaking process. In a letter sent to the leaders of the House Appropriations Committee and its labor panel, the groups reiterate their calls to include in report language - to be attached to forthcoming appropriations bills - requests for the administration to withdraw a July 2015 memo that ends the decades-long exemption for retail facilities from Process Safety Management rules. Without relief, OSHA's change will force fertilizer retailers to update the way they handle anhydrous ammonia and could cause businesses to close, the groups have long argued. The letter is here. Pros can brush up on the effort by farm groups to keep the retail exemption in place here.

GMO CITRUS MAKER LOOKS TO EXPAND RESEARCH: Florida could soon be getting 400 acres of genetically engineered citrus trees. Southern Gardens Citrus, the Clewiston, Fla., grower that has inserted spinach genes into a citrus tree to make it resistant to citrus greening disease, is seeking a permit from the EPA to expand its plantings in order to develop more data on whether the GE tree will really be able to handle the disease. The agency, in a Federal Register notice that is set to be published today, will accept comments until April 28. Florida's citrus industry has been devastated by citrus greening. While the state's growers harvested 133.6 million boxes of oranges as recently as the 2012-2013 season, the Agriculture Department's latest forecast has this season's harvest at just 71 million boxes. The notice is here.

BERKELEY TRIES TO GET CITIES TO FOLLOW ON SODA TAXES: The Berkeley, Calif., health group that backed the city's successful soda tax campaign in 2014 has launched a new effort to help other cities across the country pass their own taxes. The Ecology Center posted a 13-minute video today titled Berkeley vs. Big Soda, which tells the story of how soda tax advocates defeated the beverage industry in the liberal city of 118,000, along with other resources to support similar tax efforts in other communities.

The group said it is distributing the film widely to local, state and national groups, noting that organizations from British Columbia and Texas are promoting it. Soda tax measures are "marching forward" in Philadelphia, Seattle, San Francisco, other parts of California and the United Kingdom and "others are forming under the radar," the groups said. Watch the video here.

The beverage lobby was dismissive of the effort. "Berkeley is a very-pro-tax city that is not at all like the rest the country," said Lauren Kane, a spokeswoman for the American Beverage Association. "Elsewhere, soda tax proposals have been rejected 40 times across the country in the past eight years. Beverage taxes remain highly unpopular because the majority of Americans oppose discriminatory taxes that single out one item in the grocery cart."

N.Y. NURSERIES ALMOST PERFECT ON INVASIVE SPECIES RULE: New York's nursery industry is doing a great job of staying in line with the state's new invasive species regulations, according to the state agriculture department. Horticultural inspectors report a 95 percent compliance rate among the 1,533 plant dealer facilities and 1,077 plant grower locations they've visited across the state since the new rules went into effect on March 10, 2015. The regulations, which stem from a law signed in July 2012, prohibit 69 plants and require special labeling and care regulations for six others. Among the plant species prohibited: the Multiflora Rose. The plant was once valued for its soil stabilization qualities, but it proved to aggressive and invasive, degrading the quality of hay fields in the state, recounts Chris Logue, director of the state agriculture department's plant industry division.

INSTANT OATS:

- Americans will each eat an average of 54.3 pounds of beef this year on average, the first increase since 2006, according to USDA data, Bloomberg News reports.

- Health leaders are defending the role farm-to-school programs play in teaching kids healthy eating habits after an article in POLITICO's The Agenda questioned the value of such efforts.

- A Saudi dairy company's land purchase in the U.S. Southwest is raising questions about water rights, the AP reports.

Hi Donna,

Do you have some time to chat this afternoon via phone? Deb and I just want to connect on some aspects of the event for next week. We should be good to go, just finalizing a few things on our end. We are available except from 1:30 – 2:30 pm and from 4-4:30pm today.

Thanks!

Debra and Kelly, Attached are pictures of the garden beds ready to be planted. This is the perfect time of the year for this. We can certainly bring 4-5th graders there for the planting. They usually go out to a real farm the week of May 2-4 do plant at a real farm, but we can let them help plant in these beds if you want. We can bring both age groups in or just the age group you want. As soon as we get the go ahead, I will get the kids and Ag teacher lined up with the plants. I have the local farmer on stand by with all the food for the event. Our schools and lunchrooms are beautiful and would be great for a shoot. The weather is predicted to be perfect next Thursday also. We are set for go as soon as we get the word!

No problem - Thanks, Donna! Deb may have asked this already (adding her here so we are all on the same page) – even though the garden is at the middle school, do elementary age students participate in the garden? We usually work with 4-5th graders for these types of events, so wanted to see if it would be normal for the elementary school kids to participate in the garden.

We will circle back soon to answer questions once we are confirmed on our end. Please feel free to keep sending information our way in the meantime.

Thank you!

Debra, We are so on-board with this opportunity. The physical address of the school garden is 356 Southside Drive Waynesboro, GA 30830. They are located at Burke County Middle School. They are ready to be planted and we would have all the plants there for planting. There is not a problem to get the children there for video taping and the menu will be fabulous with all local foods, including herb baked chicken, collards, cabbage, squash casserole, cucumbers and tomato salad, whole wheat rolls. I hope your mouth is watering. I am attaching information about our program. Please check out our Burke County farm to school facebook page at ><https://www.facebook.com/burkecountyfarmtoschool><

I will send the pictures of the gardens later today!

I have lots of logistical questions when you know that you all are coming. Superintendent is 110% supportive and I have a local farmer lined up who will be perfect to interview also.

Thanks again, Donna, for being willing to co-write this with us! And Jenn - for being such a hero in facilitating between AND and NFSN.

With help from Jason Huffman, Catherine Boudreau and Helena Bottemiller Evich

OPTIMISM BUILDS FOR NEW ENGLAND GMO LABELING PUSH: Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island have long been looking to implement their own GMO labeling statutes, and the rash of companies labeling to comply with Vermont might be just the cover they need to get it done. Labeling supporters are optimistic that legislatures in the three New England states will make a move this year now that Vermont's measure has survived legal and congressional challenges, and food companies have agreed to label without passing those costs onto consumers.

"The state legislatures have definitely been watching what's going on at the federal level, and they are busy, so they don't want to act if the federal government is going to come in and preempt them," said Tara Cook Littman of Citizens for GMO labeling. "I think things kind of were on hold a little bit and are going to pick up now."

New bills in Massachusetts and Rhode Island largely mirror the law in Vermont, while legislation in Connecticut would remove trigger provisions in an existing labeling law that requires at least four other states (one of which must share a border with Connecticut) that total more than 20 million people to enact a similar measure before the statute can go into effect. All three efforts have broad support in their respective state legislatures. Lawmakers are wrapping up in Hartford in the first week of May and Boston and Providence in the beginning of June, so time is running short. But Cook Littman told MA that the time frame shouldn't be too much of a problem given that most bills aren't dealt with until the last few weeks of a session anyway. GMO labeling measures have been taken up by all three states' legislatures in past years, laying the groundwork for passage now.

"These are not new bills so I think there is a real possibility that all three bills could move forward," she said, adding that if one passes "that will really open the door for the other two states."

HAPPY TUESDAY, MARCH 29! Welcome to Morning Ag where it seems that this was the year for Easter Peep feature story . Seems MA needs to get on the marshmallow beat right away. You know the deal: Thoughts, news, tips, Peep-sicles? Send them to jhopkinson@politico.com or @jennyhops. Follow the whole team @Morning_Ag.

AND MAINERS COULD BE HEADED TO BALLOT BOX, TOO: In case you missed it, the Maine House of Representatives passed a bill late last week that also would lob to voters the question of whether to repeal a trigger clause in the state's GMO labeling law. Currently the measure is set to go into effect only if five contiguous states pass similar measures by 2018. However, the bill faces an uphill battle, according to reports from New Hampshire Public Radio. The measure passed the Democrat-controlled House on a party-line vote, and the GOP Senate and governor have been frosty on the issue, according to NHPR.

IT'S NOT JUST THE NORTHEAST THAT'S INTERESTED IN GMOS: While the bills in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island seem the most likely to get passed this year, legislators in Tennessee, Florida, Hawaii, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York and Oregon have also considered labeling laws this spring. Meanwhile, lawmakers in Alaska and Mississippi have mulled restrictions on the sale and cultivation of GMO salmon. Meanwhile, on the other side of the GMO battle, Kansas, Missouri and Wyoming legislatures have looked at resolutions that would urge the U.S. Congress to block labeling.

OBAMA'S ANTIBIOTICS PROGRESS REPORT: To help slow antibiotic resistant bacteria in animal agriculture, the Obama administration should: be able to measure the effectiveness of FDA policies designed to phase out use for growth promotion and expand the oversight of veterinarians; work with state, agriculture industry and academic partners to increase educational outreach, surveillance and develop alternatives to the drugs; and secure continuous funding for these initiatives. Those are a few of the many recommendations contained in a 125-page draft report by a panel of government officials, healthcare professionals, academic experts and industry representatives, a copy of which was obtained by Morning Ag.

The President's Advisory Council on Combating Antibiotic Resistant Bacteria will vote on the report - which also outlines recommendations for human medicine and government-wide progress on a national action plan rolled out last year - at the end of a two-day meeting in Washington on Thursday.

For public health advocates, the recommendations reflect more of the same from the Obama administration and don't go far enough. Namely, there are no reduction targets for antibiotic use in animal agriculture. "Animal agriculture and veterinary oversight are a key component to a successful antibiotic-resistance mitigation strategy," says Susan Vaughn Grooters, policy analyst at Keep Antibiotics Working. "Without clear, concise, and measurable calls for reduction of antibiotic use in animal agriculture from the administration, an opportunity could be lost for more targeted and achievable reforms." Read the report here.

AG GROUPS RAMP UP PRESSURE FOR PSM FIX: Dozens of agriculture groups are pushing House appropriators to require the Occupational Health and Safety Administration to scrap its plan to start applying certain hazardous material storage rules to agricultural retailers, arguing that if OSHA wants to make the change it should have to do so through a formal rulemaking process. In a letter sent to the leaders of the House Appropriations Committee and its labor panel, the groups reiterate their calls to include in report language - to be attached to forthcoming appropriations bills - requests for the administration to withdraw a July 2015 memo that ends the decades-long exemption for retail facilities from Process Safety Management rules. Without relief, OSHA's change will force fertilizer retailers to update the way they handle anhydrous ammonia and could cause businesses to close, the groups have long argued. The letter is here. Pros can brush up on the effort by farm groups to keep the retail exemption in place here.

GMO CITRUS MAKER LOOKS TO EXPAND RESEARCH: Florida could soon be getting 400 acres of genetically engineered citrus trees. Southern Gardens Citrus, the Clewiston, Fla., grower that has inserted spinach genes into a citrus tree to make it resistant to citrus greening disease, is seeking a permit from the EPA to expand its plantings in order to develop more data on whether the GE tree will really be able to handle the disease. The agency, in a Federal Register notice that is set to be published today, will accept comments until April 28. Florida's citrus industry has been devastated by citrus greening. While the state's growers harvested 133.6 million boxes of oranges as recently as the 2012-2013 season, the Agriculture Department's latest forecast has this season's harvest at just 71 million boxes. The notice is here.

BERKELEY TRIES TO GET CITIES TO FOLLOW ON SODA TAXES: The Berkeley, Calif., health group that backed the city's successful soda tax campaign in 2014 has launched a new effort to help other cities across the country pass their own taxes. The Ecology Center posted a 13-minute video today titled Berkeley vs. Big Soda, which tells the story of how soda tax advocates defeated the beverage industry in the liberal city of 118,000, along with other resources to support similar tax efforts in other communities.

The group said it is distributing the film widely to local, state and national groups, noting that organizations from British Columbia and Texas are promoting it. Soda tax measures are "marching forward" in Philadelphia, Seattle, San Francisco, other parts of California and the United Kingdom and "others are forming under the radar," the groups said. Watch the video here.

The beverage lobby was dismissive of the effort. "Berkeley is a very-pro-tax city that is not at all like the rest the country," said Lauren Kane, a spokeswoman for the American Beverage Association. "Elsewhere, soda tax proposals have been rejected 40 times across the country in the past eight years. Beverage taxes remain highly unpopular because the majority of Americans oppose discriminatory taxes that single out one item in the grocery cart."

N.Y. NURSERIES ALMOST PERFECT ON INVASIVE SPECIES RULE: New York's nursery industry is doing a great job of staying in line with the state's new invasive species regulations, according to the state agriculture department. Horticultural inspectors report a 95 percent compliance rate among the 1,533 plant dealer facilities and 1,077 plant grower locations they've visited across the state since the new rules went into effect on March 10, 2015. The regulations, which stem from a law signed in July 2012, prohibit 69 plants and require special labeling and care regulations for six others. Among the plant species prohibited: the Multiflora Rose. The plant was once valued for its soil stabilization qualities, but it proved to aggressive and invasive, degrading the quality of hay fields in the state, recounts Chris Logue, director of the state agriculture department's plant industry division.

- Americans will each eat an average of 54.3 pounds of beef this year on average, the first increase since 2006, according to USDA data, Bloomberg News reports.

- Health leaders are defending the role farm-to-school programs play in teaching kids healthy eating habits after an article in POLITICO's The Agenda questioned the value of such efforts.

- A Saudi dairy company's land purchase in the U.S. Southwest is raising questions about water rights, the AP reports.

Hi Donna,

I'm writing on behalf of Kevin Concannon, Under Secretary of USDA-FNCS. He has been invited to speak on a panel at The Obesity Society meeting in New Orleans, LA on November 4, 2016. Specifically, he's been asked to address school nutrition policy changes, and he thought that the audience (mostly scientists) would also benefit from hearing a real-world perspective from a progressive SFA director. As it often does, your name rose to the top of our list! Is there any chance that you would be interested and available to participate? I have attached the invitation form that they sent to us, and am happy to respond to any informal questions you might have (we've had some offline discussion with the conference folks). If you're interested, I will also refer you to our contact on the conference organizing committee.

Thank you for your consideration.

Joan, I am excited about this opportunity to get to speak with Under-Secretary Kevin Concannon, November 4th in New Orleans. Are you keeping a master calendar on travel for us? I am pretty sure the Obesity Society is funding me to speak with him so I am not asking for funding, but wanted to get it on the calendar if appropriate. Still waiting to hear back from the White House for confirmation. Thanks!

Recently Academy members received the following request to take action in support of Child Nutrition Reauthorization. It is critical we have members respond to the Action Alert. Child Nutrition Reauthorization funds thousands of Academy members' positions and assures access to healthy foods and nutrition information for families. We are very proud of this bipartisan crafted bill that included almost all of our recommendations. Now the Senators of the Agriculture Committee are looking to us for support. Please take action and reach out to your colleagues and others to encourage them to do so.

Many thanks for your help and leadership!

Keep These Students Smiling

Support Child Nutrition and Hunger Programs!

I need your voice to take the next step in the Senate, to help support healthy meals and nutrition education for hungry children. Child Nutrition Programs provide nutrition to millions of children as well as providing thousands of jobs for Academy members.

Our members have been leading the way in providing healthy safe meals and engaging nutrition education to help these smiling children be successful – members like the Academy's incoming president-elect, Donna Martin, EdS, RDN, LD, SNS, FAND, school nutrition director in Burke County, Ga.

So here is the next step:

1. Exercise your voice. Tell your Senators to support these by voting to pass the Improving Child Nutrition Integrity and Access Act of 2016. Two minutes of your time means a lifetime of health for these children.

TAKE ACTION TODAY!

2. Make a contribution to ANDPAC. The funds help the Academy support decision makers who understand the importance of child nutrition programs. Because of relationships built through ANDPAC, the Academy successfully advocated for key provisions in the Child Nutrition bill language.

Shout out to our blog in morning ag.

Thanks again, Donna, for being willing to co-write this with us! And Jenn - for being such a hero in facilitating between AND and NFSN.

With help from Jason Huffman, Catherine Boudreau and Helena Bottemiller Evich

OPTIMISM BUILDS FOR NEW ENGLAND GMO LABELING PUSH: Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island have long been looking to implement their own GMO labeling statutes, and the rash of companies labeling to comply with Vermont might be just the cover they need to get it done. Labeling supporters are optimistic that legislatures in the three New England states will make a move this year now that Vermont's measure has survived legal and congressional challenges, and food companies have agreed to label without passing those costs onto consumers.

"The state legislatures have definitely been watching what's going on at the federal level, and they are busy, so they don't want to act if the federal government is going to come in and preempt them," said Tara Cook Littman of Citizens for GMO labeling. "I think things kind of were on hold a little bit and are going to pick up now."

New bills in Massachusetts and Rhode Island largely mirror the law in Vermont, while legislation in Connecticut would remove trigger provisions in an existing labeling law that requires at least four other states (one of which must share a border with Connecticut) that total more than 20 million people to enact a similar measure before the statute can go into effect. All three efforts have broad support in their respective state legislatures. Lawmakers are wrapping up in Hartford in the first week of May and Boston and Providence in the beginning of June, so time is running short. But Cook Littman told MA that the time frame shouldn't be too much of a problem given that most bills aren't dealt with until the last few weeks of a session anyway. GMO labeling measures have been taken up by all three states' legislatures in past years, laying the groundwork for passage now.

"These are not new bills so I think there is a real possibility that all three bills could move forward," she said, adding that if one passes "that will really open the door for the other two states."

HAPPY TUESDAY, MARCH 29! Welcome to Morning Ag where it seems that this was the year for Easter Peep feature story . Seems MA needs to get on the marshmallow beat right away. You know the deal: Thoughts, news, tips, Peep-sicles? Send them to jhopkinson@politico.com or @jennyhops. Follow the whole team @Morning_Ag.

AND MAINERS COULD BE HEADED TO BALLOT BOX, TOO: In case you missed it, the Maine House of Representatives passed a bill late last week that also would lob to voters the question of whether to repeal a trigger clause in the state's GMO labeling law. Currently the measure is set to go into effect only if five contiguous states pass similar measures by 2018. However, the bill faces an uphill battle, according to reports from New Hampshire Public Radio. The measure passed the Democrat-controlled House on a party-line vote, and the GOP Senate and governor have been frosty on the issue, according to NHPR.

IT'S NOT JUST THE NORTHEAST THAT'S INTERESTED IN GMOS: While the bills in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island seem the most likely to get passed this year, legislators in Tennessee, Florida, Hawaii, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York and Oregon have also considered labeling laws this spring. Meanwhile, lawmakers in Alaska and Mississippi have mulled restrictions on the sale and cultivation of GMO salmon. Meanwhile, on the other side of the GMO battle, Kansas, Missouri and Wyoming legislatures have looked at resolutions that would urge the U.S. Congress to block labeling.

OBAMA'S ANTIBIOTICS PROGRESS REPORT: To help slow antibiotic resistant bacteria in animal agriculture, the Obama administration should: be able to measure the effectiveness of FDA policies designed to phase out use for growth promotion and expand the oversight of veterinarians; work with state, agriculture industry and academic partners to increase educational outreach, surveillance and develop alternatives to the drugs; and secure continuous funding for these initiatives. Those are a few of the many recommendations contained in a 125-page draft report by a panel of government officials, healthcare professionals, academic experts and industry representatives, a copy of which was obtained by Morning Ag.

The President's Advisory Council on Combating Antibiotic Resistant Bacteria will vote on the report - which also outlines recommendations for human medicine and government-wide progress on a national action plan rolled out last year - at the end of a two-day meeting in Washington on Thursday.

For public health advocates, the recommendations reflect more of the same from the Obama administration and don't go far enough. Namely, there are no reduction targets for antibiotic use in animal agriculture. "Animal agriculture and veterinary oversight are a key component to a successful antibiotic-resistance mitigation strategy," says Susan Vaughn Grooters, policy analyst at Keep Antibiotics Working. "Without clear, concise, and measurable calls for reduction of antibiotic use in animal agriculture from the administration, an opportunity could be lost for more targeted and achievable reforms." Read the report here.

AG GROUPS RAMP UP PRESSURE FOR PSM FIX: Dozens of agriculture groups are pushing House appropriators to require the Occupational Health and Safety Administration to scrap its plan to start applying certain hazardous material storage rules to agricultural retailers, arguing that if OSHA wants to make the change it should have to do so through a formal rulemaking process. In a letter sent to the leaders of the House Appropriations Committee and its labor panel, the groups reiterate their calls to include in report language - to be attached to forthcoming appropriations bills - requests for the administration to withdraw a July 2015 memo that ends the decades-long exemption for retail facilities from Process Safety Management rules. Without relief, OSHA's change will force fertilizer retailers to update the way they handle anhydrous ammonia and could cause businesses to close, the groups have long argued. The letter is here. Pros can brush up on the effort by farm groups to keep the retail exemption in place here.

GMO CITRUS MAKER LOOKS TO EXPAND RESEARCH: Florida could soon be getting 400 acres of genetically engineered citrus trees. Southern Gardens Citrus, the Clewiston, Fla., grower that has inserted spinach genes into a citrus tree to make it resistant to citrus greening disease, is seeking a permit from the EPA to expand its plantings in order to develop more data on whether the GE tree will really be able to handle the disease. The agency, in a Federal Register notice that is set to be published today, will accept comments until April 28. Florida's citrus industry has been devastated by citrus greening. While the state's growers harvested 133.6 million boxes of oranges as recently as the 2012-2013 season, the Agriculture Department's latest forecast has this season's harvest at just 71 million boxes. The notice is here.

BERKELEY TRIES TO GET CITIES TO FOLLOW ON SODA TAXES: The Berkeley, Calif., health group that backed the city's successful soda tax campaign in 2014 has launched a new effort to help other cities across the country pass their own taxes. The Ecology Center posted a 13-minute video today titled Berkeley vs. Big Soda, which tells the story of how soda tax advocates defeated the beverage industry in the liberal city of 118,000, along with other resources to support similar tax efforts in other communities.

The group said it is distributing the film widely to local, state and national groups, noting that organizations from British Columbia and Texas are promoting it. Soda tax measures are "marching forward" in Philadelphia, Seattle, San Francisco, other parts of California and the United Kingdom and "others are forming under the radar," the groups said. Watch the video here.

The beverage lobby was dismissive of the effort. "Berkeley is a very-pro-tax city that is not at all like the rest the country," said Lauren Kane, a spokeswoman for the American Beverage Association. "Elsewhere, soda tax proposals have been rejected 40 times across the country in the past eight years. Beverage taxes remain highly unpopular because the majority of Americans oppose discriminatory taxes that single out one item in the grocery cart."

N.Y. NURSERIES ALMOST PERFECT ON INVASIVE SPECIES RULE: New York's nursery industry is doing a great job of staying in line with the state's new invasive species regulations, according to the state agriculture department. Horticultural inspectors report a 95 percent compliance rate among the 1,533 plant dealer facilities and 1,077 plant grower locations they've visited across the state since the new rules went into effect on March 10, 2015. The regulations, which stem from a law signed in July 2012, prohibit 69 plants and require special labeling and care regulations for six others. Among the plant species prohibited: the Multiflora Rose. The plant was once valued for its soil stabilization qualities, but it proved to be aggressive and invasive, degrading the quality of hay fields in the state, recounts Chris Logue, director of the state agriculture department's plant industry division.

INSTANT OATS:

- Americans will each eat an average of 54.3 pounds of beef this year on average, the first increase since 2006, according to USDA data, Bloomberg News reports.
- Health leaders are defending the role farm-to-school programs play in teaching kids healthy eating habits after an article in POLITICO's The Agenda questioned the value of such efforts.
- A Saudi dairy company's land purchase in the U.S. Southwest is raising questions about water rights, the AP reports.

Hi Donna,

I'm writing on behalf of Kevin Concannon, Under Secretary of USDA-FNCS. He has been invited to speak on a panel at The Obesity Society meeting in New Orleans, LA on November 4, 2016. Specifically, he's been asked to address school nutrition policy changes, and he thought that the audience (mostly scientists) would also benefit from hearing a real-world perspective from a progressive SFA director. As it often does, your name rose to the top of our list! Is there any chance that you would be interested and available to participate? I have attached the invitation form that they sent to us, and am happy to respond to any informal questions you might have (we've had some offline discussion with the conference folks). Thank you for your consideration.

Hi Donna,

I'm writing on behalf of Kevin Concannon, Under Secretary of USDA-FNCS. He has been invited to speak on a panel at The Obesity Society meeting in New Orleans, LA on November 4, 2016. Specifically, he's been asked to address school nutrition policy changes, and he thought that the audience (mostly scientists) would also benefit from hearing a real-world perspective from a progressive SFA director. As it often does, your name rose to the top of our list! Is there any chance that you would be interested and available to participate? I have attached the invitation form that they sent to us, and am happy to respond to any informal questions you might have (we've had some offline discussion with the conference folks). If you're interested, I will also refer you to our contact on the conference organizing committee.

Thank you for your consideration.

Best,

Rachel

Shout out to our blog in morning ag.

- Health leaders are defending the role farm-to-school programs play in teaching kids healthy eating habits after an article in POLITICO's The Agenda questioned the value of such efforts.

Thanks again, Donna, for being willing to co-write this with us! And Jenn - for being such a hero in facilitating between AND and NFSN.

OPTIMISM BUILDS FOR NEW ENGLAND GMO LABELING PUSH: Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island have long been looking to implement their own GMO labeling statutes, and the rash of companies labeling to comply with Vermont might be just the cover they need to get it done. Labeling supporters are optimistic that legislatures in the three New England states will make a move this year now that Vermont's measure has survived legal and congressional challenges, and food companies have agreed to label without passing those costs onto consumers.

"The state legislatures have definitely been watching what's going on at the federal level, and they are busy, so they don't want to act if the federal government is going to come in and preempt them," said Tara Cook Littman of Citizens for GMO labeling. "I think things kind of were on hold a little bit and are going to pick up now."

New bills in Massachusetts and Rhode Island largely mirror the law in Vermont, while legislation in Connecticut would remove trigger provisions in an existing labeling law that requires at least four other states (one of which must share a border with Connecticut) that total more than 20 million people to enact a similar measure before the statute can go into effect. All three efforts have broad support in their respective state legislatures. Lawmakers are wrapping up in Hartford in the first week of May and Boston and Providence in the beginning of June, so time is running short. But Cook Littman told MA that the time frame shouldn't be too much of a problem given that most bills aren't dealt with until the last few weeks of a session anyway. GMO labeling measures have been taken up by all three states' legislatures in past years, laying the groundwork for passage now.

"These are not new bills so I think there is a real possibility that all three bills could move forward," she said, adding that if one passes "that will really open the door for the other two states."

HAPPY TUESDAY, MARCH 29! Welcome to Morning Ag where it seems that this was the year for Easter Peep feature story . Seems MA needs to get on the marshmallow beat right away. You know the deal: Thoughts, news, tips, Peep-sicles? Send them to jhopkinson@politico.com or @jennyhops. Follow the whole team @Morning_Ag.

AND MAINERS COULD BE HEADED TO BALLOT BOX, TOO: In case you missed it, the Maine House of Representatives passed a bill late last week that also would lob to voters the question of whether to repeal a trigger clause in the state's GMO labeling law. Currently the measure is set to go into effect only if five contiguous states pass similar measures by 2018. However, the bill faces an uphill battle, according to reports from New Hampshire Public Radio. The measure passed the Democrat-controlled House on a party-line vote, and the GOP Senate and governor have been frosty on the issue, according to NHPR.

IT'S NOT JUST THE NORTHEAST THAT'S INTERESTED IN GMOS: While the bills in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island seem the most likely to get passed this year, legislators in Tennessee, Florida, Hawaii, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York and Oregon have also considered labeling laws this spring. Meanwhile, lawmakers in Alaska and Mississippi have mulled restrictions on the sale and cultivation of GMO salmon. Meanwhile, on the other side of the GMO battle, Kansas, Missouri and Wyoming legislatures have looked at resolutions that would urge the U.S. Congress to block labeling.

OBAMA'S ANTIBIOTICS PROGRESS REPORT: To help slow antibiotic resistant bacteria in animal agriculture, the Obama administration should: be able to measure the effectiveness of FDA policies designed to phase out use for growth promotion and expand the oversight of veterinarians; work with state, agriculture industry and academic partners to increase educational outreach, surveillance and develop alternatives to the drugs; and secure continuous funding for these initiatives. Those are a few of the many recommendations contained in a 125-page draft report by a panel of government officials, healthcare professionals, academic experts and industry representatives, a copy of which was obtained by Morning Ag.

The President's Advisory Council on Combating Antibiotic Resistant Bacteria will vote on the report - which also outlines recommendations for human medicine and government-wide progress on a national action plan rolled out last year - at the end of a two-day meeting in Washington on Thursday.

For public health advocates, the recommendations reflect more of the same from the Obama administration and don't go far enough. Namely, there are no reduction targets for antibiotic use in animal agriculture. "Animal agriculture and veterinary oversight are a key component to a successful antibiotic-resistance mitigation strategy," says Susan Vaughn Grooters, policy analyst at Keep Antibiotics Working. "Without clear, concise, and measurable calls for reduction of antibiotic use in animal agriculture from the administration, an opportunity could be lost for more targeted and achievable reforms." Read the report here.

AG GROUPS RAMP UP PRESSURE FOR PSM FIX: Dozens of agriculture groups are pushing House appropriators to require the Occupational Health and Safety Administration to scrap its plan to start applying certain hazardous material storage rules to agricultural retailers, arguing that if OSHA wants to make the change it should have to do so through a formal rulemaking process. In a letter sent to the leaders of the House Appropriations Committee and its labor panel, the groups reiterate their calls to include in report language - to be attached to forthcoming appropriations bills - requests for the administration to withdraw a July 2015 memo that ends the decades-long exemption for retail facilities from Process Safety Management rules. Without relief, OSHA's change will force fertilizer retailers to update the way they handle anhydrous ammonia and could cause businesses to close, the groups have long argued. The letter is here. Pros can brush up on the effort by farm groups to keep the retail exemption in place here.

GMO CITRUS MAKER LOOKS TO EXPAND RESEARCH: Florida could soon be getting 400 acres of genetically engineered citrus trees. Southern Gardens Citrus, the Clewiston, Fla., grower that has inserted spinach genes into a citrus tree to make it resistant to citrus greening disease, is seeking a permit from the EPA to expand its plantings in order to develop more data on whether the GE tree will really be able to handle the disease. The agency, in a Federal Register notice that is set to be published today, will accept comments until April 28. Florida's citrus industry has been devastated by citrus greening. While the state's growers harvested 133.6 million boxes of oranges as recently as the 2012-2013 season, the Agriculture Department's latest forecast has this season's harvest at just 71 million boxes. The notice is here.

BERKELEY TRIES TO GET CITIES TO FOLLOW ON SODA TAXES: The Berkeley, Calif., health group that backed the city's successful soda tax campaign in 2014 has launched a new effort to help other cities across the country pass their own taxes. The Ecology Center posted a 13-minute video today titled Berkeley vs. Big Soda, which tells the story of how soda tax advocates defeated the beverage industry in the liberal city of 118,000, along with other resources to support similar tax efforts in other communities.

The group said it is distributing the film widely to local, state and national groups, noting that organizations from British Columbia and Texas are promoting it. Soda tax measures are "marching forward" in Philadelphia, Seattle, San Francisco, other parts of California and the United Kingdom and "others are forming under the radar," the groups said. Watch the video here.

The beverage lobby was dismissive of the effort. "Berkeley is a very-pro-tax city that is not at all like the rest the country," said Lauren Kane, a spokeswoman for the American Beverage Association. "Elsewhere, soda tax proposals have been rejected 40 times across the country in the past eight years. Beverage taxes remain highly unpopular because the majority of Americans oppose discriminatory taxes that single out one item in the grocery cart."

N.Y. NURSERIES ALMOST PERFECT ON INVASIVE SPECIES RULE: New York's nursery industry is doing a great job of staying in line with the state's new invasive species regulations, according to the state agriculture department. Horticultural inspectors report a 95 percent compliance rate among the 1,533 plant dealer facilities and 1,077 plant grower locations they've visited across the state since the new rules went into effect on March 10, 2015. The regulations, which stem from a law signed in July 2012, prohibit 69 plants and require special labeling and care regulations for six others. Among the plant species prohibited: the Multiflora Rose. The plant was once valued for its soil stabilization qualities, but it proved to be aggressive and invasive, degrading the quality of hay fields in the state, recounts Chris Logue, director of the state agriculture department's plant industry division.

INSTANT OATS:

- Americans will each eat an average of 54.3 pounds of beef this year on average, the first increase since 2006, according to USDA data, Bloomberg News reports.
- Health leaders are defending the role farm-to-school programs play in teaching kids healthy eating habits after an article in POLITICO's The Agenda questioned the value of such efforts.
- A Saudi dairy company's land purchase in the U.S. Southwest is raising questions about water rights, the AP reports.

Thank you to all Academy members and credentialed dietetics practitioners who participated in the Council on Future Practices visioning process survey to provide feedback on the change drivers and trends driving the profession, as identified by the Council. Your input was critical in helping the Council on Future Practice to identify priorities and shape the draft recommendations that are being developed for the Visioning Report 2017.

The Council on Future Practice reviewed the statistical analysis of the survey results in detail. Highlights from the survey include:

- Nearly four percent (4%) of those who received and opened the email communication completed the survey (n=1786);
- Eighty-five percent (85%) of those who completed the survey were Academy members (n=1524);
- Respondents of the visioning process survey were similar to Compensation and Benefits Survey respondents, except there were more educators and PhD respondents to the visioning process survey;
- There were some slight differences in ranking of the change drivers based on age and years in practice;
- All 10 change drivers were rated as very important by respondents from a statistical perspective. Based on this statistical analysis, the Council on Future Practice is considering the implications of all 10 change drivers when drafting recommendations for the Visioning Report 2017.

The Council on Future Practice also appreciates all the comments that were submitted by members, credentialed dietetics practitioners, and Academy organizational units. Each comment was reviewed, and it was determined that most of the comments were addressed in the change drivers document. For those not addressed, these comments are being considered when drafting the recommendations for the Visioning Report.

The draft recommendations will be released late Spring for input from Academy organizational units, Council on Future Practice Think Tank Members, and Academy External Organization Liaisons. Further communications regarding the draft recommendations will be shared at that time. The Visioning Report is projected for publication in 2017.

Again, thank you for your participation in the visioning process survey. Your feedback is critical to this process, and your time and dedication is greatly appreciated.

HHS Secretary: Prevention Saves Money

Crayton, RDN, LDN, FAND, wrote: "Because RDNs and NDTRs are very much involved in, and are being recognized for, our efforts with the Diabetes Prevention Program - whether leading these programs or implementing them in our communities - we will work with CMS to include strong language recognizing the value RDNs and NDTRs bring to such programs."

PPW 2016 Affiliate Information

One of the most important responsibilities of the affiliate Public Policy Coordinator (PPC) is to coordinate activities at PPW. In addition to attending PPW, the PPC or alternate PPC will:

1. Participate in Pre-PPW webinar trainings (webinars will be recorded and posted to the PPW community of interest)
2. Assist with training his/her affiliate's attendees prior to PPW
3. Setup and coordinate Congressional meetings on the Hill for members from his/her affiliate
4. Attend the Pre-PPW meeting on Thursday, June 23, 2016 from 2 p.m. - 3 p.m.
5. Serve as table facilitators during PPW
6. Mentor affiliate attendees
7. Submit reports after Congressional meetings on the Hill on June 24
8. Coordinate in-district Congressional follow up visits

It is a big job! Each affiliate's PPC will receive a complimentary registration to PPW 2016. Each affiliate president-elect has been asked to submit the name of the PPC who will be serving in the role beginning June 1, 2015. Since the PPC job role requires significant commitment, the scholarship cannot be transferred without approval from Academy staff.

As of today, only 13 affiliates have submitted the name of the PPC who will be serving in the role beginning June 1, 2015. Each Affiliate PPC will receive a separate email with registration instructions.

As affiliates identify the PPW 2016 teams, we encourage you to consider sending additional members of your public policy panel such as the SPR, SRS, CPC and RR.

PPW 2016 DPG and MIG Information

Each DPG and MIG's Policy and Advocacy Leader (PAL) whose term begins on June 1, 2016 will receive a complimentary registration to PPW 2016. The DPG and MIG vice chairs have been asked to submit the name of the PAL who will be serving in the position beginning June 1, 2016. In addition to attending PPW, the PAL or alternate PAL will:

1. Participate in Pre-PPW webinar trainings (webinars will be recorded and posted to the PPW community of interest)
2. Attend the Pre-PPW meeting on Thursday, June 23, 2016 from 2 p.m. - 3 p.m.
3. Work with their voting state affiliate PPC

4. Attend Congressional meetings on the Hill for members from his/her affiliate
5. Assist the affiliate PPC as requested
6. Submit reports after Congressional meetings on the Hill on June 24
7. Attend in-district Congressional follow up visits

Since the PAL job requires significant commitment, the scholarship cannot be transferred without approval from Academy staff.

As of today, 9 DPGs and 3 MIGs have submitted the name of the PAL who will be serving in the role beginning June 1, 2016. Each DPG/MIG PAL will receive a separate email with registration instructions.

Pre-PPW Webinar Training Dates Set PPCs and PALs

Below you will find the tentative dates for the four PPW Boot Camp webinars for Affiliate PPCs and DPG/MIG PALs. Specific registration information will be sent next week. Participants will receive 1 CPEU for each session. All webinars will be recorded. The PPCs and the PALS are expected to participate in the boot camp sessions or view the recording.

Hi Donna,

In January a survey was sent to all members via Eat Right Weekly, the Academy website, organizational units' posts and our social media outlets inviting members to submit their names for consideration to serve on a committee. The survey took place January 14-February 11, 2016. After the survey closed, committee appointments were made March 17 by the President-elect, Speaker-elect and Nominating Committee chair, and are currently in the process of being confirmed. If members wish to be considered for a committee appointment for next year they are welcome to send their name and contact information to hod@eatright.org. Other volunteer opportunities in the Academy are available to members year round. A Message from Academy President Dr. Evelyn F. Crayton, RDN, LDN, FAND

HHS: Prevention Saves Money

The Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS), Sylvia Burwell, announced March 23 something that Academy members have known for a long time: Prevention saves money.

The Secretary announced that “the independent Office of the Actuary in the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) certified that expansion of the Diabetes Prevention Program, a model funded by the Affordable Care Act, would reduce net Medicare spending. The expansion was also determined to improve the quality of patient care without limiting coverage or benefits. This is the first time that a preventive service model from the CMS Innovation Center has become eligible for expansion into the Medicare program.”

CMS will be looking at “the best strategies for incorporating the Diabetes Prevention Program into Medicare,” and the Academy is prepared to offer some best practices for RDN-led nutrition interventions.

As Academy members know, about 30 million Americans have type 2 diabetes, resulting in two deaths every five minutes in this country. Additionally, one in every three adults has prediabetes – putting them at increased risk for developing type 2 diabetes, heart disease and stroke. Many people with prediabetes develop type 2 diabetes within ten years.

This new development builds on the Academy’s efforts that will increase opportunities for persons with prediabetes to see an RDN. Last fall, the United States Preventive Services Task Force issued its final recommendation statement (with an impressive Grade B recommendation) for diabetes screening and treatment that aligns with the Academy’s guidelines to expand screening and referral to intensive behavioral counseling interventions to asymptomatic patients at risk for diabetes. The Academy continues to work with HHS and CMS to ensure that implementation of these new diabetes screening guidelines include opportunities for our members to help treat and manage diabetes and prediabetes.

Results of a demonstration project through CMS’s Innovation Center showed that the Diabetes Prevention Program (DPP) reduces health care costs and helps prevent diabetes. The DPP is a lifestyle intervention program that includes changing participants’ nutrition and physical activity behaviors. Many of these DPPs are delivered in the same locations as Diabetes Self-Management Education (DSME) programs, making prevention and treatment of diabetes available to patients. The Academy continues to advocate for RDNs' delivery of the most effective services for preventing diabetes.

As coverage is expanded, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) will ensure the fidelity and rigor of the DPP through the accreditation process of the established CDC Diabetes Prevention Recognition Program (DPRP). This accreditation helps ensure that decisions about individual participation, patient referral and health insurance benefits are based on accurate, reliable and trustworthy information. Many of the programs with DRPR accreditation rely upon RDNs to lead programs in their communities. In addition, expanded coverage will offer new opportunities for our valued nutrition and dietetic technicians, registered (NDTRs).

Details of the proposed new coverage are not known at this time, but the Academy will be integral in formulating the regulatory language CMS will include in its CY 2017 Medicare Physician Fee Schedule proposed rule to be released in the summer. Because RDNs and NDTRs are very much involved in, and are being recognized for, our efforts with the Diabetes Prevention Program – whether leading these programs or implementing them in our communities—we will work with CMS to include strong language recognizing the value RDNs and NDTRs bring to such programs. We will continue to engage our diabetes experts to provide input and guidance into the Academy's formal comments to ensure that final details of coverage are favorable to Academy members and the Medicare beneficiaries we serve.

Please continue to share your outcomes and impactful stories with Academy staff and research networks, as this is what is needed to be successful in driving better policy. And it remains critically important to promote our value to physicians and other providers about the cost- and clinical-effectiveness of MNT and the need for improved Medicare coverage. Your efforts will help increase referrals and provide the solution for physicians searching where to send patients with prediabetes and diabetes for the best treatment.

Meetings are already scheduled with key Congressional leaders on the passage of the Preventing Diabetes in Medicare Act (H.R. 1686), which would expand the Medicare Part B MNT benefit to include coverage for patients at risk of prediabetes. Your robust legislative advocacy and concomitant Academy initiatives with CMS on the proposed rules will enable persons with prediabetes to have access to quality RDN- and NDTR-provided nutrition services.

Members' response to Action Alerts are crucial to help pass legislation. We will continue to keep members informed of activities and actions on both the regulatory and legislative fronts.

You may be asked by members about the latest scam we experienced regarding membership renewal. Former president Connie Diekman informed us about an email telling members their membership is about to expire and to remit their payment to Pay Pal. We believe members whose emails are provided on the Find a Registered Dietitian Nutritionist online referral service were targeted. We have posted information about the scam on the eatrightPRO.org homepage as the top item in Latest News and are disseminating the forewarning via social media.
